New Public Order Bill Passed by Commons

FLQ Suspects Get Jail Terms

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave approval today by a vote of 174 to 31 to the government public order bill that will replace regulations under the War Measures Act.

The legislation provides for the right of immediate access to a lawyer but permits restrictions on bail and allows accused persons to be held more than 24 hours without being charged.

Opposed to passage were 17 New Democrats, 10 Creditistes and four Conservatives.

The legislation which was first presented in the Commons Nov. 2, now goes to the Senate.

Earlier, Lise Rose, 25, was sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court at the inquest into the death of murder of Pierre Laporte. Clement Roy, 22, was jailed nine days for contempt.

In passing sentence against Miss Rose, Judge Jacques Trahan, special coroner, said he was doing so "to my great regret," and after much reflection.

He said Miss Rose had refused to testify at the inquest last week "in deliberate fashion, in noisy fashion."

The short sentence against Roy who also refused to testify at the inquest, came after his lawyer Bernard Mergler said he would attempt to get Roy to testify when the inquest resumes again Dec. 10.

Maximum sentence for the offence is $5,000 and or one year in jail.

Lise Rose and Roy both previously were charged with being or declaring themselves to be members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Pierre Marc-Beauchamp told the court he was ready to testify next week on condition that his testimony not be used against him when he appears for trial in January on charges of being a member of the FLQ.

Examination Order 'Outrages' Lawyer

A Nanaimo lawyer is "outraged" by the court procedure of a Port Alberni provincial court judge who ordered Dr. Glen Stewart remanded Monday to Riverview Mental Hospital for 30 days' psychiatric observation.

Stewart, who returned voluntarily from San Francisco where he was questioned by RCMP about the shooting death of a Pachena Bay caretaker, appeared in court on charges of jumping bail and possession of stolen property.

He was represented by Ron MacIsaac, who entered a plea of not guilty and agreed to a trial date of Dec. 16.

But after MacIsaac had left for Nanaimo, thinking the courtroom procedures completed, Judge William McLeod had Stewart recalled to court after an examination by a doctor.

With MacIsaac absent from the courtroom, McLeod heard Dr. B. Koszegi give evidence that he believed Stewart to be mentally ill.

Stewart was subsequently committed to Riverview for a 30-day period of psychiatric observation.

MacIsaac said Monday night he was "outraged and incensed" by the procedures. "I want the man to be allowed to face trial."

McLeod said Koszegi was in court to examine another person, but examined Stewart and talked to him when he had the opportunity.

'BY THE BOARD'

He said that when Stewart was brought back into court for Koszegi's testimony, the original trial date set and the previous procedures "went by the board."

Stewart had been scheduled to appear last week for a trial concerning possession of a stolen $500 liferaft from a Bamfield biological station.

A bench warrant for his arrest was issued when he allegedly skipped $2,500 cash bail.

He was picked up in San Francisco by U.S. immigration authorities after being rescued from what looked like a double-suicide attempt in a gas-filled motel room with a woman companion, Miss Maria Trigiani, 31, an Italian national.

QUESTIONED

While awaiting a hearing at San Francisco to determine whether he was in the United States lawfully, Stewart was questioned about the shooting of Gordon Kralt, 23, caretaker at a Bible camp four miles south of Bamfield.

Stewart had apparently been linked to the area by his 35-foot yacht Gypsy which cracked up and sank off the mouth of the Columbia River in Oregon early in November.

Kralt's body was found Nov. 22 about 600 yards from the Shantyman's Christian Association lodge where he was a caretaker.

Stewart was also questioned by RCMP from Prince Rupert about the disappearance of a Smithers woman, Mrs. Sheila Haupt, and her three-year-old daughter some 10 months ago.

A suitcase with some of Mrs. Haupt's belongings was found in a river near Smithers.

'WHY TEACHERS SINGLED OUT?'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students booed and jeered Education Minister Donald Brothers Monday night when they received no reply on why the B.C. government singled out teachers for special application of the War Measures Act.

Brothers was at a ceremony to officially open the Langara Campus of Vancouver City College.

The letter asked for an open forum with Brothers and condemned the provincial government order that provided for firing of teachers who expressed support for revolution.

It called the order a "serious infringement upon the freedom of education" and asked that it be withdrawn.

During the unveiling ceremony, placard-carrying students hissed and clapped repeatedly and called for "answers" from Brothers.

As he was leaving the campus in the company of security guards and college officials, Brothers was trailed by student society representatives still asking for a hearing.

Questioned by reporters, he said he was "not aware of any student protest."

TOP KNITTER in Victoria branch of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, Mrs. M. F. Naysmith (left), 303-825 Cook, is awarded gold maple leaf by USC executive director Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova. Mrs. Naysmith knitted more than 200 cardigans as well as several sets of mittens and toques for Korean children. Dr. Hitschmanova has awarded 400 gold maple leaf pins across Canada since beginning her annual fund-raising drive in St. John's, Newfoundland, on Sept. 16.

A Mass of Tiny Faces Prodding the West

When Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova thinks of Korea, she sees only a mass of children's faces, prodding the conscience of the West.

In her own way, she has, for 25 years, tried to ease the suffering of at least some of these poor. Their numbers are almost overpoweringly large, not only in Korea, but in Vietnam, India, the Middle East, Hong Kong and Europe.

FOUNDER

Monday, she returned to Victoria, as she has done every year since 1953, to launch the annual fund-raising and clothing drive of the Unitarian Services Committee of Canada, the private charitable organization she founded in 1945.

This marks the 18th consecutive year that the Victoria Daily Times has sponsored the USC's Children of Asia Fund in the region.

Speaking at St. John's Church to 150 people, mostly elderly women, Dr. Hitschmanova revealed her story of human need and misery with slides taken on her 1970 Middle East Asian tour.

The USC sponsors medical and child care clinics, vocational training schools, self-help agricultural and construction projects, social welfare and community centres and feeding programs for the overseas poor.

BARLEY, MILK

Last year, for example, the USC supplied 640,000 pounds of barley for Korean flood victims, treated 132,445 patients in Indian health clinics, dispensed more than four million cups of milk in India and Korea.

Additionally, 315,755 pounds of clothing were shipped to Korea, Hong Kong, the Middle East and Greece.

To finance these projects, Dr. Hitschmanova travels across Canada in the fall and early winter appealing for

Ecology Battle Begins for Utah

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

PORT HARDY — Opposing forces marshalled here today for what has become the front line in the ecology battle in B.C.—the Utah Mine hearing.

The inquiry opens Wednesday into an application by Utah Construction and Mining Company to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into Rupert Inlet.

Utah is nearing completion of a $74 million copper-molybdenum mining complex, the operation of which is based on dumping solid mine waste into the inlet.

Opponents fear the mine tailings will ruin the almost-landlocked inlet and ultimately Quatsino Sound.

SITE TOUR

Today, Utah escorted representatives of provincial Pollution Control Branch, and four appellants scheduled to be heard at Wednesday's hearing, around the open pit mine site.

The appellants are: E. R. Morton, Cowichan Station; Elaine Price, Duncan; Roger Prentice, North Vancouver, and the Pacific Salmon Society of Vancouver.

Forty-eight other objectors had signified their intention of protesting the Utah plan. Pollution control director William Venables limited the

Portuguese Troops Among Guinea Force

UNITED NATIONS (WP) — The special security council mission investigating the recent invasion of Guinea saw no white mercenaries but did find half a dozen black members of the Portuguese army, it was learned Monday.

These blacks are understood to have acknowledged that they were members of the regular Portuguese forces stationed in neighboring Portuguese Guinea, where it is assumed that the attacks originated. Guinea itself has harbored "freedom fighters" seeking to "liberate" the Portuguese African province.

As a result, the committee is thought to have gathered indications linking Portugal with the attacks of 10 days ago, although there has been no attempt yet to crystalize the opinions of the five members. It is believed that there is some evidence of Portuguese logistic involvement.

The committee met Monday and will meet again Tuesday to prepare a report to the security council expected by the end of the week.

Contrary to some reports, the government of Guinea is said to have co-operated with the committee in enabling it to question all the persons it wishes to see.

B.C. Takes Hard Line On Pesticide Control

Use of DDT and other long-lasting pesticides in British Columbia will be by prescription only beginning next year, Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said today. The new regulations will be the toughest in Canada, Shelford said.

The provincial government will issue such prescriptions in only exceptional cases where other means of control can't be found, Shelford said.

Cabinet regulations approved Monday set March 30 as the starting point for the new controls "which will pretty well eliminate" the use of DDT, dieldrin, aldrin, heptochlor and similar insecticides, Shelford said.

SOUGHT CONTROLS

B.C. had earlier asked for national controls but is taking action on its own in the absence of such action, he said. Other provinces will be asked to follow suit.

"Regional regulations are absolutely hopeless," Shelford said in stressing that he still feels national and international co-operation will be the only way to proper control.

Shelford said the government would exercise strict control on the number of outlets for prescription insecticides.

Purchase of such chemicals at the moment can be made with the customer required to sign for them.

Canadian Lobby Successful

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Mitchell Sharp continued intensive lobbying at European Economic Community headquarters here today to find a soft landing spot for Canada when Britain drops Commonwealth preferences to enter the common market.

He appeared to be making some headway on the Continent, adding to new-found encouragement gained during the weekend in the British Isles where the Tory government displayed significantly more sympathy over Ottawa's concern about wheat, timber and other exports than did Harold Wilson's Labor government a few months ago.

External Affairs press briefing officer Ross Francis told reporters here Monday night that UK Premier Heath, Foreign Minister Alec Home and other Conservative cabinet members listened carefully to Sharp's plea for phased entry into ECC to give time for Canadian exporters to adjust gradually to the new situation.

"We have, I think, a somewhat better relationship with this government than with the Labor government," said Francis. "We had a very obvious problem when Wilson came to Ottawa last January."

"He was invited . . . to indicate that he would keep us informed of the progress of (ECC) negotiations but treated our ministers in private meetings and the press in public to a dazzling display of non-committalness.

"The position now is somewhat better in that we are being kept regularly informed and given an opportunity to register our views."

Sharp was told in London that the UK is only making a serious issue of New Zealand agriculture and Commonwealth sugar arrangements because those are "life or death" matters for countries concerned.

Sharp pressed Canada's need for time to roll with the punch as the long-term impact of UK entry could be absorbed if there were no sudden short-run disruption to the $1 billion plus Canada-UK trade, 70 per cent of which could be affected some way if the transition is not arranged smoothly, allowing more trade with the EEC as a whole or finding alternative markets.

OTTAWA PLANS HIKE IN WAR VET GRANTS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government today gave formal notice of legislation to increase war veterans' disability pensions.

The legislation would also establish a bureau of pensions advocates outside the veterans' affairs department and two new appeal boards—an entitlement board and a pension review board.

The notice was given on the Commons order paper by Veterans Minister Jean-Eudes Dube.

funds. This year, the USC hopes to raise $1.265 million to continue its work.

Victorians help the USC, not only through their contributions to the Children of Asia Fund, but also through a standing committee of workers of the USC called the Victoria Work Group.

During 1970, the Victoria Work Group shipped 7,493 pounds of food and clothing in 100 cartons to Korea. These included 981 hand-knitted cardigan sweaters and approximately 170 hand-made quilts for beds and cribs.

Dr. Hitschmanova said the USC is the "agency with a heart" that emphasises person-to-person aid. More than 90 cents of every dollar raised by the USC is given in direct aid.

Dr. Hitschmanova guarantees that USC programs are "rigorously protected" against inefficiency and graft.

The USC campaign has the official sanction of Prime Minister Trudeau who said the society stands in the forefront of the struggle to combat hunger, poverty, disease and ignorance in the less developed countries of the world.

The USC is a non-political, non denominational volunteer agency administered by a board of directors in Ottawa. Dr. Hitschmanova is its executive director.

She was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, and studied at the Sorbonne in Paris before taking a doctorate degree in philosophy from the University of Prague.

She also holds diplomas in social science and journalism. Dr. Hitschmanova came to Canada in 1942. After working for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Agency in Washington, she founded the USC.

DECORATIONS

Among her many awards from several countries is the Canadian Medal of Service of the Order of Canada, presented her in 1968.

A key approach to her charitable work is creation of agencies which work so effectively that local governments are eventually persuaded to assume their jobs.

In India, for example, USC health and education centres should become wholly government supported by 1972.

In Seoul, Korea, the USC has finally persuaded the government to assume greater financial reponsibility for its handicapped children's clinic.

"We operate on the principle of trying to put ourselves out of work," she says.

Donations to the Children of Asia Fund may be mailed or delivered personally to the Victoria Daily Times, 2631 Douglas.

Book Prices 'To Stay High'

It's unlikely the price of textbooks will become more reasonable, says Mrs. Gertrude Hartman, director of the University of Victoria bookstore.

Mrs. Hartman said publishers give campus bookstores a 20 per cent discount on textbooks, while private bookstores get a 40 per cent discount on trade books.

One factor cited for the lower discount—and higher price—on textbooks is the cost of returning those which don't get sold.

Return doesn't enter into distribution of trade books.

At the University of B.C., a committee investigating book prices plans to call for an investigation by the department of consumer affairs.

The committee says copyright restrictions limit and in some cases prohibit the import of cheap American editions which get published in Canada at high prices.

Mrs. Hartman agreed Canadian textbooks will always be more expensive than the American version because they are published on a smaller scale.

She said most Uvic texts are American, with a few from Canada, Britain and Europe.

"The whole system is bursting at the seams because of the tremendous variety of textbooks, and besides that you have revisions and new books written by professors coming out all the time."

She said publishers are going through bad times financially—they are cutting back on staff, with the result that service is bad.

Shadow Mischief

Fish Crisis Ends, Citizens Applauded

"The salmon are safe."

Mayor Courtney Haddock, chairman of the Greater Victoria Water Board, made the announcement today, following a rainfall which raised the level of Sooke Lake by two and a half feet, ending the crisis.

Haddock said citizens who have used water-conserving methods to aid the Goldstream River salmon run can now return to normal consumption of water.

Haddock said he wanted to offer a "big thnak you" to everyone who conserved water for their "outstanding co-operation."

Water Commissioner Ron Upward said last week the board's appeal for conservation of water resulted in an average saving of 500,000 gallons a day, with some days reaching 1,000,000 gallons.

The appeal was made earlier this month when it was feared a lack of water in the Goldstream River would prevent salmon from reaching their spawning grounds.

At last count, about 1,000 coho had made the climb, along with 5,000 chum.

Victoria Site Urged For Marine Centre

Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce today called on two area MPs to fight for a Victoria site for the new marine study institute.

The chamber action followed reports last week that Vancouver had the edge over Victoria in the thinking of federal officials who will make the decision on location.

President Phillip Holmes and economic development director John Bovey said establishment of the proposed West Coast Marine Scientific Research Institute in Victoria is in the interests of Victoria, the Canadian taxpayer and the institute itself.

They said "it is of the utmost importance that the case for locating the institute in the capital region of Victoria must be vigorously pressed by every means at our disposal."

WEAK REASONS

The brief said reasons given last week by Dr. W. M. Cameron, director of marine scientific services, for setting up the institute in Vancouver are both weak and unscientific.

They also oppose the findings of a survey conducted by the department two years ago, said the brief.

In a covering letter to David Groos and David Anderson the chamber said that apart from the estimated $12 million capital cost of building the centre, three times that amount could be spent on payroll for it and industries supported by the station.

The federal government has waterfront land available here, the atmosphere and waters are less polluted than in Vancouver, and the University of Victoria is oriented toward biological work, the brief pointed out.

Youth Hurt In Head-On Car Crash

An 18-year-old youth is in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after being injured in a head-on crash Monday evening on the Pat Bay highway.

Dale Coverdale of 6103 Pat Bay Highway, was driver of a car that collided with another car driven by Peter Larsen, 60, of 1753 Haultain, on the Pat Bay highway at Falaise Cresent.

Coverdale suffered a broken leg; Larsen was treated at St. Joseph's for several cuts and released.

In another accident Monday Mrs. Queenie Steed, 75, of 1019 Rockland, suffered a broken wrist, cuts and bruises when she was in collision with a car driven by Dr. David Baird.

Mrs. Steed was walking across the street at Cook and Burdett.

number to be heard here Wednesday to four.

Technical advisers to assist objectors were named Monday by the Pollution Control Branch which said each objector is entitled to one.

Advisers will be Dr. Louis Druehl, marine ecologist from Simon Fraser University; Dr. AL Lucas, professor of law at UBC; Dr. Paul LeBlond, oceanographer with UBC, and Patrick Moore, a UBC PhD student studying resource ecology.

The hearing may continue in Victoria. The Society for Pollution and Environmental Control (SPEC) said Monday the Pollution Control Branch will listen to its appeals to have its brief heard by the branch.

SPEC was one of the appellants denied permission to appear at the Port Hardy hearing.

Utah has opponents to the dumping plan in its own camp. About half the 500 Utah employees at Port Hardy have signed a petition protesting SPEC's exclusion from the hearing here.

A. J. Chmelauskas, chief engineer of the Pollution Control Branch, has rejected SPEC's charge that the branch is paying only lip service to the intent of the Pollution Control Act by holding the hearing at this snowy, inaccessible north-Island spot and limiting the number of objectors.

"The hearing is being held at Port Hardy because that is the area concerned, and that is where the people live who are concerned," he said.

"Anyone who wishes may attend."

PRISONERS APPEAR UNDER BARBITURATES

VANCOUVER (CP) — County Court Judge Graham Darling has requested a report from corrections authorities on how two men held in Oakalla prison could come before him under the influence of barbiturates.

The judge instructed crown counsel Winto K. Derby to seek the co-operation of jail authorities in reporting to him how persons get drugs at the provincial correction institution.

He adjourned sentence until Dec. 8, of Gary Earle Caplette, 21, and Robert Chimaqueski, 20, held in Oakalla pending sentence for breaking and entering and theft.

Both had pleaded guilty.

The question of barbiturates arose when the accused appeared Monday for sentence and the judge was informed that Chimaqueski was "not entirely sober."

Survivor Describes Ordeal On Snow-Swept Mountain

NANAIMO — A 14-year-old survivor of a disastrous hike up snow-swept Mount Benson told Monday of desperate efforts to save the life of companion Frank Tolen, 16, of Nanaimo.

Mike Matthews was one of a party of six Nanaimo teenagers who set out Saturday morning to hike to the snow-bound 3,344-foot summit of the mountain some seven miles from the city.

But by Saturday evening, after trekking all day through three-foot snow and with temperatures hovering around freezing, the expedition knew it was in trouble.

The group, composed of Matthews, Rick and Ron John, Jack Oud and Bill and Frank Tolen, thought of turning back, said Matthews, but realized it was closer to a hunter's cabin near the summit and headed for that.

When they stopped to rest Frank wanted to rest longer than the others and stayed behind when the other five pushed on to the cabin.

They got a fire going then realized that Frank had not followed up the trail. Billy and Rick returned to look for him.

"They found him about 200 yards from the cabin, lying on the ground. He couldn't get going he was so cold," Mike said.

DRAGGED BOY

"We dragged him about 20 or 30 yards but it was going to be too hard for only two of us to get him all the way to the cabin.

"We went back and got everybody to come so we could carry him back.

"We were all carrying Frank to the cabin, but he was saying he couldn't hear anything and he couldn't see. Then his voice trailed off and we couldn't understand him any more.

"When we got him to the cabin we put him on the bed near the fire and covered him with sleeping bags to keep him warm," Mike said, "but then we saw he wasn't breathing so we gave him artificial respiration and tried massaging his body to get some heat into it.

"But he didn't respond at all, and after about 10 minutes we knew he was gone."

The five survivors settled in to wait it out at the cabin and were reached late Sunday by a four-man RCMP-Civil Defence ground party that stayed overnight with the youths.

The party was airlifted out at 8:30 a.m. Monday by a CFB Comox helicopter, and the youths were returned to their homes after a brief hospital check.

Nanaimo RCMP said that unless an autopsy report turned up something unexpected it was not likely there would be an inquest into Tolen's death. An inquiry was more likely, police said, but a date had not yet been set.

Heath's cabinet told Sharp the new UK agricultural policy will try to rationalize the industry and fit it into the EEC scheme without necessarily hurting Canadian wheat growers.

The plan is to levy costs of imports on consumers rather than give U.K. farmers subsidies and a tariff wall.

"We will be discussing the details with them later but the view we were given without any commitment was that this would not necessarily have serious effect by way of increasing British agricultural production," the press officer said.

"According to them there is a physical limit to increasing their production and secondly the preference for hard wheat by British millers will remain such that we will continue to have a market regardless (of EEC negotiation outcome). We want to discuss this in greater detail because there still are some dangers. The agricultural levies once they're on will be easier to jack up in response to farmers' pressure than would subsidies."

EEC president Franco Malfatti and Belgian Foreing Minister Harmel are also sympathetic to Sharp here, say Canada needs time to adjust to U.K. entry and also urges the EEC to avoid protectionism, or else it will be driven closer to the United States and many mutual trade opportunities with Europe would be lost.

Harmel told Sharp that at the present pace formal U.K. entry and subsequent phases might not be completed until the late 1970s, which might give Canada the kind of transitional period needed.

Flight Decks Get Reminder Of Jet Crash

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's second-worst air disaster will leave a grim reminder on the flight decks of most of the DC-8 passenger airliners flying in North America.

The United States Federal Aviation Agency has ordered DC-8s operated by U.S. airlines to post a metal plaque between the pilot and co-pilot warning them not to deploy ground spoilers in flight, a federal government inquiry was told Monday.

Unless the notice is posted the jets will be grounded. FAA flight manuals will also be amended to include a warning against in-flight deployment of the spoilers braking system.

Although FAA regulations do not legally apply in Canada, they are accepted by the federal department of transport. Air Canada officials said after Monday's hearing the little square of metal will be installed in their DC-8-63 aircraft this weekend.

The notice "Deployment in flight prohibited," will be fastened on to a pedestal that supports a lever used to deploy the spoilers.

SPOILERS BLAMED

The inquiry was told earlier it was premature deployment of the spoilers that caused the crash July 5 of a California-bound Air Canada DC-8 north of Toronto International Airport that killed all 109 persons aboard. The plane had been due to land there briefly.

Reber Schoech, a senior flight test engineer for the FAA in Los Angeles, told the hearing the order resulted directly from the inquiry into the Air Canada crash. It becomes law Friday.

The spoilers are steel panels, five to a wing, with a total area of 88.8 square feet. Ordinarily they rise automatically from the wing surfaces to slow and steady an aircraft as its wheels touch down. They sharply reduce a wing's lifting power.

The inquiry before Mr. Justice Hugh Gibson of the Exchequer Court of Canada has already heard evidence that the Air Canada jet fell 60 feet to the runway at the airport after First Officer Donald Rowland inadvertently pulled the lever that activated the spoilers.

The plane dropped an engine and ruptured a fuel tank. The pilot aborted the landing and was circling for another attempt when the right wing was ripped apart by three explosions. The plane fell in flames.

SUGGESTS POSSIBILITY

Crash investigator Allan Clark said it was possible that First Officer Rowland believed the spoilers could not be deployed in flight. He also produced statements from several senior Air Canada flight personnel—some of them instructors—who were concerned about whether the spoilers could be activated in the air.

They had questioned the airline's engineering department. Mr. Clark said he searched through Air Canada's flight manual and the DC-8 specifications manual prepared for Air Canada by McDonnell Douglas, the DC-8 manufacturer, and could find no warning against manual in-flight deployment.

Theologians Propose Church Constitution

By R. J. ANDERSON

TORONTO (CP) — The draft of a proposed constitution for the church that some day may become the national Protestant church of Canada was approved Monday by the general commission on church union. It was hammered out point by point, almost word by word.

There was no disagreement among the 48 theologians and laymen, from many parts of Canada, on the structural organization of the church that proponents of union hope will replace the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada.

This was agreed to in general terms in the Principles of Union adopted in 1965 by the two churches. About six million persons profess adherence to these churches.

They differed on questions of doctrine and ritual which have troubled both denominations since negotiations on union began in 1943.

Pertinent are the views of members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), recent participants in the talks. The Disciples, of whom there are only 5,000 in Canada, do not believe in baptism of infants. They say baptism should be a ceremony in adulthood, completed by immersion.

AGREES ON STANDARD

The commission, meeting to decide on a preliminary draft of a proposed Plan of Union, agreed on the traditional standard of membership in the Holy Catholic Church—baptism of infants in the service of holy communion, followed by confirmation after instruction at the age of accountability.

In the area of consecration of bishops and ordination of presbyters—to replace "ministers" and "priests"—it decided to recommend that the liturgical act of the laying on of hands would be conducted by those already consecrated bishops. In the service of consecration, other clergy and the laity would be given appropriate parts in the service.

The draft of the constitution, the seventh drawn up by the special commission on the constitution, which provides for pastoral zones, districts, regions and a national assembly, was amended in some detail but not in major aspects.

Travel Group Warns Of Pollution Danger

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — An official of the Ontario Travel Associations says that if the current rate of ecological destruction by pollutants continues, rural Canadians will have to move into cities of artificial environment because the countryside will be uninhabitable.

This prospect was put to the convention of the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association Monday by John Sibbald of Jackson's Point, Ont., chairman of the joint board of the association.

He told the 800-member association that since the Second World War Canada has felt the simultaneous impact of industrialization, population growth and technological advance.

And, aside from chemicals used in the industrial process, "just think of the impact of disposable bottles and styrofoam cups as compared with returnable glass and degradable paper cups."

AREA NOT ALONE

Northern Ontario is not alone in pollution problems, he said.

"Where you have mercury poisoning of fish and pulp and paper waste coating the bottoms of your streams and lakes, we in the south have fertilizer, pesticides, animal wastes, industrial waste, road salt and garbage of all kinds growing algae, covering the spawning grounds and killing the wild life and destroying the balance of nature.

"At the present rate we will have to move into the cities and the cities will have to provide a completely artificial environment because the countryside will be uninhabitable.

Biggest Satellite Fails in Launch

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The most expensive, complex scientific satellite ever built in the United States lies in ashes somewhere in Africa or the Indian Ocean today while a review board seeks to learn why it failed to reach orbit.

The doomed Orbiting Astronomical Observatory, OAO-3, had carried a 38-inch space telescope, the world's largest, which might have unlocked many secrets of the universe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration blamed the failure of the $98.5 million project on a protective nose cone which did not jettison as planned four minutes after launch here Monday night.

The 12-foot-tall cone, made of honeycomb glass fibre, was designed to protect the satellite during the Atlas-Centaur rocket's upward thrust through the atmosphere.

Radio signals indicated the shroud deployed partially, but did not fall away. There were these results:

—The Atlas-Centaur had to carry along an extra 2,000 pounds of weight for the remaining eight minutes of powered flight. That was too great a burden for it to achieve orbital speed.

—When the satellite's solar panels and antennae tried to extend, they were restricted by the sides of the shroud. Thus, even if orbit had been reached, the OAO-3 would have been useless.

NASA said the 4,680-pound satellite plunged back to earth over Africa or the Indian Ocean. It probably broke up from atmospheric friction.

Choice: Positive or Negative?

RICH AND MIDDLE-INCOME camels across Canada today are hefting their burdens and asking themselves, if the latest social equalization straw is not the final one, just how many more fiscal and welfare improvements they may survive. The problem, as they see it, and as Prime Minister Trudeau anticipates it, is not so much whether they can stand a still larger financial burden but whether, as a vital segment of the nation's economy, they may find their patience ebbing and a reaction against further welfare measures setting in.

That prospect is furthered, of course, by the fact that no fiscally reasonable level of welfare aid is likely to win unanimous approval from recipients. This, too, Mr. Trudeau recognizes, for in staking his government's life on the new welfare proposals he admits that damaging criticism—for opposite reasons—could come from both those who give and those who receive. "We could tax the rich 100 per cent," he says, "and still not have enough."

Few taxpayers would say "no" to the concept of livable aid to low-income families, the aged, the widows with young children, and disabled persons. But Mr. Trudeau's program means more than a mere income readjustment to enable poverty-stricken persons to survive in an inflationary society. It is nothing less than another step—as was Mr. Benson's white paper on taxation—toward a much wider and more significant series of adjustments to re-apportion the income of the nation on a personal rather than a production basis.

That, too, is in line with the thinking of our era, when the universal guaranteed annual income is being increasingly discussed as the answer to maintenance of all portions of the population at a minimum level at least. But among governmental white papers which are gradually advancing the concept lie two smouldering fuses. One is the basic economic fact that the nation's income can come only from the nation's production. This imposes an upper limit on the total that may be paid to all individuals.

The smoke of the second fuse warns that the non-working percentage of the population is not likely to grow smaller over the coming years. On the contrary it will almost inevitably grow larger under the encouragement of guaranteed incomes and social welfare amenities. Automation is expected to cause, and provide for, much of this unproductive segment. But, quite apart from seasonal unemployment, cyclical unemployment, or loss of jobs caused by temporary catastrophe or shifts in purchasing habits, there will be built into the economic society an increasingly large core of employable but non-working persons. This number, too, must have an upper limit of acceptability—a point beyond which the productive economic structure will be over-burdened.

These are long-term speculations. The immediate interest centres on the government's new approach to family allowances and old-age pensions. Doubtless there will be protesting cries of "means test," but the principle that only families which need family allowances should get them is a valid one. A wide application of this concept in all non-contributory programs for income assistance should do much to place Canadian welfare on a more practicable basis.

The New Merchants of Death

CONVICTION AND THE GENtle punishment of an eight months' suspended sentence and a $4,000 fine imposed by Switzerland's Supreme Court on Dieter Buehrle, multi-millionaire head of the country's largest arms making company, for illegally exporting war materials to world crisis spots automatically revives the image of "merchants of death" excoriated by an earlier generation. Four others were found guilty with the self-admitted richest man in Switzerland for the offence and received varying sentences, the most severe of which was 18 months.

While men of good will direct their efforts to attempts to curtail the manufacture of death-dealing equipment in a world which already has more than enough lethal materials to kill off humanity several times over, it is still a profitable business to deal in the manufacture and sale of such merchandise. Through ready supplies of arms, many a small-scale local insurrection is able to become a full-scale domestic war, with the consequent suffering of innocent populations.

Clearly some international control of armaments exports is necessary in the safe world which we are trying to fashion.

More Japanese Muscle

ONCE AGAIN JAPAN HAS called on Russia for the return of two islands, Kunashiri and Etorofu, off the north east coast of Hokkaido; and once again the demand has provoked hostility in Moscow. The Soviets have agreed to return two smaller islands, Shikotan and Habomai, taken over with the larger islands after Japan's defeat, once a peace treaty is signed between the two nations.

But unlike the earlier claims made by Japan for recovery of its former territory, the present proposal comes from a position of greater Japanese strength. The Russians presumably want a friendly Japan as a balance against China in the event of resumed trouble with Mao. And they have a very practical desire to see Japan bring to the development of certain areas of Siberia the technology which the Japanese have gained in postwar years.

There is no assurance that the Soviet Union will yield Kunashiri or Etorofu, but the demand made by Japan emphasizes once again the sinews which that country has grown since its defeat in the Pacific. It is no helpless supplicant the Soviets are dealing with today.

Just No Box Office

PORNOGRAPHY ON FILM seems to be on the way out—and for commercial rather than moral reasons. The public, originally attracted by curiosity, finds it lacking in sustained appeal. The patrons are staying away in droves and the industry, or that part of it quick to capitalize on prurience, cannot exist if revenue dries up.

Moral arguments may be credited with the trend. The fact seems to be, however, that morality is a relatively minor consideration. The shows just aren't titillating enough, and, in what seems to have been too generally the case, haven't artistic or entertainment merit enough to pull in the crowds.

So the public is returning to "decent" films, and those who don't produce them will suffer. But not necessarily because of high-mindedness. There's just no money in being permanently indecent on celluloid.

". . . now I'd like to exchange it for a Robin Hood outfit . . ."

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Uncertainty Over Canada's Alliance Policy

THE public debate on foreign policy, which ranged minister against minister after Mr. Trudeau's victory at the polls, was bound to divide Liberals in the country. It is apparent from the final convention returns that the rift has not been closed. On the most critical resolution before the delegates, the isolationist wing was badly beaten. This asserted that "membership in military alliances tends to seriously erode Canadian independence" and it called for termination of membership in NATO and NORAD. In the case of NORAD, the least popular alliance, the isolationists managed 143 votes but 520 delegates cast ballots against them.

Western

Passage of such a resolution would have been a plain repudiation of the government's policy as announced following the review. There was no such evident deterrent in the case of other propositions on the ballot paper. These offered three choices: Canada should remain in the alliances and increase its contributions; Canada should remain but work towards decreasing its contributions; Canada should continue to participate "subject to a continuing review of these organizations."

Swallowed Themselves

The first was emphatically defeated, the second narrowly defeated (312 to 293), the third carried by a heavy majority.

Several points emerge from the voting. As the number casting ballots was fairly constant, the isolationists appear to have swallowed themselves. Having voted to take us out, they then voted to stay in so long as the contribution was reduced.

Secondly, the solidly internationalist wing of Liberalism is still much stronger than the isolationist group. No less than 257 delegates voted to increase our contributions to NATO and NORAD.

Thirdly, the undecided vote was large. On the straight issue of membership or withdrawal it ranged (according to the alliance) from 94 to 96 but on the proposal for reducing our contribution it rose to 164. This is certainly high in a total vote, which averaged about 760.

Nor is it the full measure of the uncertainty. There were 31 propositions on the ballot dealing with international relations and on some the total vote ran well above 1,000. (The highest figure was 1,052). Thus it seems clear that perhaps 250 delegates preferred to abstain altogether on what they may have considered a particularly divisive subject.

In politics, the word "review" is comforting, it is reassuringly non-commital. This may account for the relatively heavy vote in favor of the third choice, also for the notable shrinkage in the number of "not sure" ballots.

It can scarcely be suggested, however, that this is very helpful for the government. We had a review. It was a very long one but it ultimately produced a policy of sorts. For this luxury a considerable price was paid since Canada acquired a reputation abroad as a decidedly uncertain ally. The government has been doing its best since then to counteract that impression. But the party on which it relies for support has now voted to condition our participation on a continuing review.

Mr. Sharp presumably is to keep our alliance partners under the microscope as if they were so many, possibly noxious, bugs.

Pearson Example

There was no such confusion over foreign policy in Mr. Pearson's day. At times he made political mistakes. At no time, however, did he encourage his ministers to lead a public debate on vital issues of international relations. The present prime minister would have been wise to follow this example. A different course was chosen with the result that the government now has uncertain support for its alliance policy in its own party, which cannot be to its advantage in dealings with other countries.

No Job for Press

New York Times

Unquestionably, there will continue to be differences of opinion between the press and the courts on the criteria to be applied in establishing a compelling governmental need for a reporter's appearance behind the closed doors of the grand jury. But certainly there can be no valid challenge of the Court of Appeals finding that "to convert newsgatherers into Department of Justice investigators is to invade the autonomy of the press by imposing a governmental function upon them."

FROM WASHINGTON — By TIM TRAYNOR

The Hard Line Comes In—Hickel Goes Out

THERE is a certain appropriateness about the firing of Interior Secretary Walter Hickel in the immediate aftermath of the U.S air-rescue mission and bombing strikes in North Vietnam. The two developments are not, of course, directly linked. But the beginning of the end for Mr. Hickel was his intervention in the controversy following last spring's strike into Cambodia — a strike which was a direct forerunner of the latest moves against North Vietnam.

Traynor

Mr. Hickel's story is a curious and fascinating one — a self-made millionaire who was initially regarded as an enemy by conservationists, he came to be seen as a champion of environmental cleanup and the most independent ally of liberal causes within the Nixon cabinet. (This image was undoubtedly blurred in Canada, where he was associated with the controversial talk of continental resource pooling and with the problem of Great Lakes pollution, problems which have of late prompted Canadian ministers to complain sharply about the sluggishness of U.S. pollution abatement efforts).

The act which set him apart from the rest of the Cbinet and alienated Mr. Nixon was the drawing up of a letter suggesting that the president was out of touch with the nation's youth — many of whom were at that time expressing outrage at the strike into Cambodia. Before the letter reached the White House, it had leaked to the press, and was taken as evidence of a serious split within the Cabinet as to the advisability of the Cambodian excursion. Mr. Hickel continued out of step; especially when the president and vice-president Agnew launched harsh attacks on youthful dissidents during the recent election campaign.

Whatever else may be said about him, the Hickel letter could not be regarded by the president as anything but a severe blow at a critical point in the evolution of the most vital and delicate of administration policies — a scaling down of American involvement in Indochina. Many observers were surprised that the president did not oust Hickel sooner.

The sensitivity of the Hickel intervention cannot be overstated. It flew directly in the face of the president's slow and painful effort to refurbish the concept, seriously undermined by the convulsions of the Johnson years, of a presidency firmly enough based to undertake and sustain strong action despite challenges by internal dissidents.

Minister's Doubts

By his appeal to "the great silent majority" to support a withdrawal tied to the bolstering of South Vietnamese forces, the president had put himself in position to undertake an action — the strike into Cambodia — which would serve notice on the world, and Hanoi in particular, that presidential authority had been substantially rehabilitated. In the event, what the world witnessed was not only furious reaction in Congress and uproar on campuses, but also public airing of a cabinet minister's doubts about the course of administration policy.

In succeeding months, the president has completed the Cambodian operation in reasonably good order, has held off numerous efforts to force a revision of his basic Vietnam policy, and has had moderate success with his election campaign efforts to broaden the basis of support for his Vietnam policy in Congress, and especially the Senate. Hickel or no, the president has pushed doggedly ahead. The firing of the maverick secretary could stand as a symbol of this. As for the raids on North Vietnam, they are part and parcel of the continuing evolution.

The raids and their aftermath add up to a deliberate hardening of the administration's posture to counterbalance the reduction of U.S. combat strength in the South. With Hanoi facing increasing temptation to exploit the situation, the U.S. has underscored its readiness to cast aside restraints on direct strikes against the North — restraints which the U.S. considers to be based on 'understandings' that Hanoi will refrain from thrusts across the demilitarized zone, rocket attacks on South Vietnamese cities, and attacks on unarmed U.S. aircraft on reconnaissance missions over the North. Aside from their stated purposes, the attempts to extricate the American prisoners of war have shown American ability to move a force through North Vietnamese air defences to the heart of the country.

Negotiations Risked

Proponents of a quick end to the war immediately recognize the implicit administration readiness to risk the Paris peace negotiations, which are based on the U.S.-North Vietnamese understandings. This was the basic concern as administration critics, led by Senator William Fullbright, confronted administration spokesmen, notably Defence Secretary Melvin Laird. Significantly, the administration had it out with critics on nation-wide television, and was clearly seen not to give ground. With the critics pulling their punches, so as not to seem unsympathetic to the prisoner of war rescue efforts, the administration was able to emerge in reasonable shape. There was relatively little basis for satisfaction in Hanoi and that matters a good deal to Mr. Nixon.

Looking Back

From the Times of Dec. 1, 1910:

In the Commons yesterday Hon. Mac-Kenzie King introduced a government bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture, sale and use of opium for other than scientific or medicinal purposes. . . . The bill makes opium smoking a criminal offence, gives authority for more effective search by authorities for opium, and puts the onus on the possessor of showing that all opium is kept purely for scientific or medicinal purposes.

Duty to Poverty Stricken

Dorothy Bessex, in a letter in the Victoria Times, November 26, berates Walter Olszewski for his "presumptuous and blatant display of bad taste and ignorance" because of his letter to the Queen suggesting that she stay at home and not visit B.C. in our Centennial year. The writer speaks of the Queen doing her duty, and then asks "Mr. Olszewski, do you understand the word?"

I venture to say Walter Olszewski understands the word "duty" far better than many of us. He understands that he has a duty to the poverty stricken of this city. He and his wife have been fighting a courageous battle on their behalf for some time now. They know what it is to be poverty stricken. They know that the conditions under which many of our unemployed people, our people receiving welfare aid, our old-age pensioners, are existing right here in Victoria are deplorable and disgraceful.

Walter's message in this letter to the Queen is really not to the Queen at all but to the people of Victoria and of this province. What he is pleading for is that in this coming Centennial year, rather than using good money to put on pageantry and display, we should use this money and our own time and energy to making Victoria and B.C. a land wherein all can find fulfilment, and enjoyment. Surely this would be a memorial worth working for in our Centennial year.—J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington.

Suspicious, Too

In the November 26 Times, Mr. J. Everett Brown, chairman of the B.C. Housing Management Commission says that between 1947 and 1967 the average incomes have tripled; the general price level had doubled, but during the same period housing costs have quadrupled. He "suspects" that construction workers wages have increased faster than other wages. I "suspect" he is right. I suspect this would also apply to the wages of all highly organized trade union workers.

The rising cost of land is mentioned as one of the factors in the increasing cost of housing. Quadrupling the cost of the lot shouldn't have the effect of quadrupling the cost of the house that goes onto it.

No, the high cost of housing is obviously the result of the enormous increases in the wages of the men who produce, transport and assemble the materials that go into the making of a house. In the face of this, trade union leaders insult our intelligence by saying that raising wages does not cause inflation.—Mark de Goutiere, 239 Atkins.

Modernizing Pubs

Windsor Star

Slowly, but ever so surely, Ontario's liquor laws are moving into the 20th century. The latest step forward is a government amendment to the Liquor Licence Act that would allow such revolutionary innovations as ending sex segregation in the pub and allowing the sale of liquor as well as beer.

The moves are apparently part of a general plan which would change the image of that semantic monstrosity, the beverage room where one sits and drinks and drinks, to that of a British-style pub where drinking is not the be-all and the end-all of either the customer's or the establishment's existence.

'Land of the Free' Algeria Exile Haven

By GEOFFREY MOORHOUSE

When the Palestinian guerrilla leader, Yasser Arafat, landed at Dar-el Beida last month on his goodwill visit to Algeria, he was met by a cosmopolitan welcoming party of a size and variety usually reserved at airports for incoming heads of state.

Quite apart from any purely Algerian courtesies that President Boumedienne was disposed to offer him, there was a lineup of what you might almost call foreign diplomats.

There were representatives of Angola and Mozamique and South-West Africa and Rhodesia and Harlem and many more places on earth where they are now bursting to acclaim a fighter for his peoples freedom.

The handshakes were from one revolutionary to another, all along the line, and Algeria is the place which is holding them all together.

There are now so many freedom fighters of liberation groups or whatever label you want to give them, of so many different nationalities in Algiers, that it has become difficult to count them. One estimate arrives at 23, which is probably on the high side, but there are certainly well over a dozen.

There are three groups defying Portuguese government for a start—FRELIMO (from Mozambique), MLPA (from Angola) and PAIGC (from Guinea). Then there is ZAPU (Rhodesia), SWAPO (South-West Africa), the African National Congress, a Canary Islands secessionist group, a handful of basques who want their people free, a parcel of Eritreans breathing fire and brimstone, some people from Chad who are rebelling against the French, a man from Oman flying an insurrectionist flag, El Fatah, and the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam.

Not to mention Eldridge Cleaver and his expatriate wing of the Black Panther party.

They have all come to Algiers burning for freedom because Algeria is notoriously ready to shelter any who would follow where it led a decade and more ago, and because it is itself almost a land of the free.

House Arrest

True, Ben Bella is still under close house arrest and the local communist party is still exiled in Budapest; but these are peccadiloes when you have done time in Folsom for being a nigger, or when you have just managed to escape the clutches of apartheid.

They are, at any rate, among the infinite paradoxes of Algeria. Eight years after independence from the French, Algiers remains a distinctly French city with North African overtones. The mustard still comes from Dijon, just as the air force's latest acquisition of 28 jet trainer-fighters came from St. Cloud.

Paris Blessing

You hear at least as much French spoken in the streets as Arabic, and possibly more. You notice that the van which has almost knocked you down, belonging to the FLN magazine "Revolution Africaine," is a Renault like most other vechicles in town, and not a Zim or a Skoda as it might recently have been.

Every year the government goes around France, asking young people to come and work in Algeria for a couple of years to avoid their own national service, as they may with the blessing of Paris. There are about 6,000 of these co-operants in the country, with another 6,000 French teaching in Algerian schools.

The confusion of cultures, with their differing political implications, is rhythmically expressed by the local radio station's large preference for "The Song of Russia" (which is Tchaikovsky mutilated by Hollywood) as a signature tune.

This, mark you, in a very rigorous colony of Islam and all that one might expect to go with it. Rammadhan is at present being observed strictly enough in Algiers for you to be reproved for smoking on the street during the day.

Many of the women in the city go about fully veiled and occasionally you see a lady who has been caught at the cultural crossroads, with bare legs, smart Mackintosh, and Yashmak concealing her mouth and nose, looking like a surburban housewife in time of plague.

It is said that if Boumedienne had his way, the rules of Islam would be applied more strictly still. The city he governs now is tough enough and it is certainly not another Tangier, as poor Dr. Timothy Leary is perhaps just discovering to his consternation.

The hippie making for Algeria had his hair forcibly cut at the frontier until a year ago, and he is still rare enough, when he sits on the steps of the post office, to attract more curious stares than any other object for miles.

All the signs are that neither the Algerians nor Dr. Leary knew what they were letting themselves in for when the high priest of the psychedelic blew in a few weeks ago, as an unofficial addition to Eldridge Cleaver's task force.

High Esteem

The morning he arrived the local papers were describing him (before his plane touched down) as an Afro-American who had been granted political asylum from the United States. Next day, this had been swiftly changed to a mere application for political asylum.

When Dr. Leary, his wife and a couple of friends, flew off shortly afterwards to the real Middle East they discovered, at a succession of airfields, that the doctor was unwelcome.

There is a strong rumor in Algiers that they might not have been allowed back into the country if Cleaver had not personally gone down to the airport to meet them. For Cleaver is held in high esteem here.

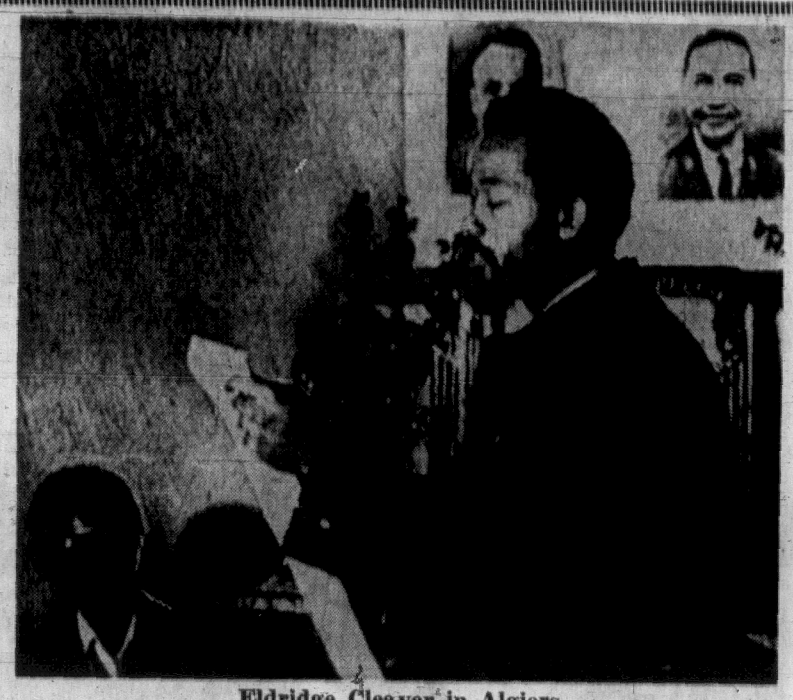
So Dr. Leary remains mutely somewhere in the city, spoken of only in furtive fashion even by those who could tell you where to find him; which they positively decline to do.

Boumedienne had problems enough without allowing Dr. Leary to blow his psychedelic top across the land. He has to preserve his revolutionary reputation and at the same time he has to cultivate economic relationships with distinctly unrevolutionary governments. His sparring with the Americans is, of course, the prime example of this, as it has been for many another man in such a situation before him.

Diplomatic relations with Washington were officially ended during the Six-Day War. Americans, nonetheless, remained in the old U.S. embassy, though this suddenly acquired a European device on the gatepost and the American headman, a Mr. Engleton, is officially known as head of the American Interest Section of the Swiss embassy.

He still has the stars and stripes standing proudly in its socket upon the floor of the reception area, however, even though, when he has drafted his official notes to the Algerian government, he has to nip down the hill to get them signed by an obliging Swiss ambassador.

At the moment there are quite a lot of notes shuttling back and forth and there is a very big deal between the two countries in the offing.



Eldridge Cleaver in Algiers

Algeria is notoriously rich in minerals, which have so far been only half tapped. It is said that there are stretches of desert where vehicles are liable to bog down in a tacky mixture of sand and oil which lies closer to the surface than any other oil on earth.

Potential Gusher

The Algerian state enterprise Sonatrach is now negotiating with the El Paso Oil Company of Texas to get stuck into this potential gusher. It will cost about a billion dollars to set the operation up and the Algerians are at the moment lobbying the World Bank to raise their share, while the Texans are trying to persuade Washington for theirs.

If it comes off — and no one can think of a good reason why it shouldn't — it will produce what was originally estimated at one billion cubic feet of fuel a day, but which now turns out to be half as much again.

And, comically if you like, the revised estimate was probably made by Russians, who have about 100 geologists working the Algerian desert for Sonatrach, all within spitting distance of the 300 or so American technicians who are already stumbling around the country.

If the revolutionary groups in the city know about this trading with the imperialists, they do not let on about it.

Getting Away From Asylums

By BOB HUNTER

Eighth of Series

The asylum concept is dying — or rather, being eroded like a sand castle by ever-increasing knowledge and social awareness.

Our children will look back on places like Riverview Hospital and shake their heads, just as we shake ours when we consider that in our grandparents' time the "insane" were locked up in dungeons, even chained to the wall.

"Decentralization" is the word used to describe the process of consigning the place, brick by brick, to the garbage pail of history.

No one — neither psychiatrists, nurses nor administrators — disputes the need to decentralize. Even politicians agree, although some politicians have taken longer to come to this conclusion than others.

NDP leader Dave Barrett is outraged by the place. Inside an institution like Riverview, he says, "there is no hope for a cure. The problems of the mentally ill are in the outside world. That's where they have to be solved. To concentrate these people in one place, mix them together, then let them go, is to reduce their chances of recovery . . ."

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark has now come out and agreed.

"Our long-range goal," he told me, "is to close Riverview down."

Riverview's clinical director, Dr. W. J. G. McFarlane, says "there is no argument about decentralization. It's definitely a good thing. But there's no provision in B.C. to take this step . . ."

Like every doctor I talked to at Riverview, Dr. McFarlane was specific about the need to escape the asylum setting, but cautious when it came to saying just when or how it might be done.

He was unaware — as was Dave Barrett — that the provincial government had, in fact, belatedly reached the conclusion that Riverview must be gotten rid of.

I asked Health Minister Loffmark for a statement of his philosophy of treatment for the mentally ill. It was already apparent to me that the 17th century conception of confinement was still the dominant reality of "help" when it came to severe psychological disturbances in the province of British Columbia in the year 1970.

The present philosophy of the mental health branch, according to Loffmark, is expressed as follows:

"Services to the mentally disordered in British Columbia are to be provided on a community-oriented local or regional basis, through the same channels of delivery as other medical or social services. Exceptions to this approach would be limited to in-patient security services for dangerous offenders in need of psychiatric care, or similar special services.

"While the necessary community resources such as acute psychiatric beds in general hospitals, out-patient services, day-care services, special extended care and boarding homes and similar facilities are being increased to the point where they can meet the total needs of the population, Riverview Hospital's goal is to use its resources to provide alternative services in the community where these have not yet been developed to the satisfactory level . . ."

Coincidentally, Loffmark had on his desk" a press release announcing the authorization for four B.C. hospitals to "make available as an insured benefit, outpatient psychiatric services, including day-care services."

A small step in the direction of decentralization.

What is interesting here is that, like the administrative efficiency of Riverview itself, this "philosophy" looks grand on paper. Yet it is not a statement about reality. It is, rather, a statement about a goal which has apparently just come into focus.

No one I talked to at Riverview had any knowledge that the provincial government was in fact dedicated to the goal of abandoning the medieval asylum concept.

Of course there is still no deadline. This philosophy reflects a program which is adrift like an ancient Narrenschiff, or Ship of Fools, such as the mad used to be driven into, its future course depending almost entirely on the movement of deficit-shaped icebergs.

ARMS RACE STILL SPEEDING

By ALAN CHALFUNT
New Statesman

In 1966 the Swedish government set up an independent institute for research into problems of peace and conflict, with particular attention to the problems of arms control and disarmament. SIPRI — the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute — which in four years has become one of the most influential organizations of its kind in the world, has just published its second Yearbook of World Armaments and Disarmaments — a monumental work of reference that brings together expert analysis of virtually every significant development in the military technology and disarmament negotiations.

The picture it presents is a sombre one. The arms race between the super-powers shows no sign of abating, in spite of — or possibly because of — the strategic arms limitation talks now going on in Helsinki between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Each side now has over 1,000 intercontinental ballistic missiles — indeed the Russians are now believed to have more than the Americans — and the total stock of nuclear weapons runs into tens of thousands, creating what the handbook calls, with notable understatement, an overkill on both sides so vast that substantial imbalances are not significant.

Meanwhile both sides are still pushing ahead with the multiple re-entry vehicle (a nuclear missile with a number of independent warheads which separate in space and fall on various targets); the Americans are engaged in deploying a version of this delightful piece of military hardware in which each warhead can be independently targeted, and are developing terminal guidance systems to increase their accuracy.

The SIPRI handbook adds the depressing information that the testing of nuclear devices has continued at an increasing rate during 1969 and 1970. The conclusion is that the annual rate of weapon testing in the world has increased since the Test Ban Treaty of 1963.

In the last 18 months the United States has carried out 48 underground weapons tests (of which nine are reported to have released radioactive material into the atmosphere); in the same period the Soviet Union is reported to have made 16 tests, while China and France, who did not sign the 1963 treaty, continue to test in the atmosphere.

The yearly world average for nuclear tests is now 48, as compared with 40 before the Test Ban Treaty was signed.

In case anyone should remain undaunted by all this, the SIPRI handbook offers the 'reasonable guess' that the number of nuclear warheads now in the world's stockpiles is equivalent to 50,000 million tons of high explosive — that is to say, 15 tons for every person on earth, or 60 tons each for the specially-privileged citizens of NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

The purpose of the Yearbook, as set out in its introduction, is to provide a synoptic view of world armaments and military expenditure and of any progress made, in limiting or reducing them.

It reflects the view that the world is devoting a disproportionate share of its resources and expertise to preparations for mutual slaughter and that, although armaments may not be the sole cause of war, the competition to acquire arms and develop new weapons cannot fail to create suspicion and tension, threats and counter-threats.

The Party Game, Western Style

By ANDREW SNADDON
Edmonton Journal

The Saskatchewan Progressive Conservatives propose joining the Saskatchewan Social Crediters.

Now, there's a thing. And for them as finds it all a bit confusing, and amusing, let me refer to you Old Doc Snaddon's Western Political Almanac. Read the chapter on "How The West Is One." (Comes right after "Prairie Humor: The Alberta Liberal Party.")

Let us start out West where Hon. W. A. C. Bennett is the resident Prime Minister. Mr. Bennett served first as an MLA with a small, brave band of Conservatives. Was he converted to the A plus B faith of Major Douglas?

Nope, Mr. B had a fight with the Tory brass, and he and the leaderless Social Crediters embraced. William Andrew Cecil did not fool around with talk of monetary reform. A recently-crushed NDP leader was Tom Berger who used to be a Liberal. So B.C. can be summed up this way: the Conservatives are in power — the Conservatives have all but disappeared.

Hon. Ernest Manning was a Social Credit premier, who marched to the 1935 tune of fiscal reform and won his niche in Alberta history as a very able, conservative leader. So Alberta too really had a conservative government, although until recently it had no Conservative party.

Are you with me? The opposition once consisted of Liberals. The Alberta Liberals have had more leaders than supporters in recent years. However, some of the Grits think they should support the Liberals federally and the Socreds provincially. The Socreds could then be expected to support the Libs federally and themselves provincially.

So when in Alberta is a Liberal (Socred) not a Liberal (Socred)? Just ask yourself, if this is your problem — "Am I voting (a) provincially or (b) federally?" If the answer is (a) and you are a Liberal, vote Socred. If (b) and you are a Socred vote Liberal. Want to go over that again?

The principal opposition to the conservative Social Crediters of Alberta is now the Conservative party. See the difference? One of the Conservatives is Mr. Bill Dickie, who was elected as a Liberal but put his nickel in the Peter (Lougheed) Meter and parked with the Tories. Conservative MP Bob Thompson was a national Socred leader who often voted Liberal. A former federal NDP candidate now seeks a Socred nomination in Rocky Mountain House. Got it?

Now then there is Saskatchewan. A simple, uncomplicated province founded on wheat and potash. No. 1 boy is Ross Thatcher — a Liberal. Sort of. In Ottawa as a CCF MP he was socialist. While storming the gates of entrenched capitalism, merchant Thatcher used to drop in for a tonsil-cleaner or two in the office of a Conservative MP of my acquaintance who spent most of his time declaiming creeping socialism.

So Mr. Thatcher returned to Saskatchewan, naturally, as a Liberal. In most circles Mr. T. is not regarded as a small "l" liberal. In Ottawa when he often attacks the Liberal government with gusto he is not regarded as a big "L" Liberal. Mr. Thatcher is truly a political rainbow.

In union there may be strength, but as to the Socred-P.C. merger there doesn't seem likely to be much. Between them they had about 10 per cent of the vote and got no members last time out.

Manitoba? That's where the action is. Ed Schreyer led the NDP to recent victory. The temples of finance must be torn down, the OLD Line Parties ground to the dust. Weeell.

"Easy Ed," as the image goes, is not a radical so much as a nice young guy who looks like he might have gone to the Harvard Business School.

Did capital flee Manitoba? No, it was soon reported that Mr. Schreyer's money song got a good hearing in Bay Street. Pragmatic is the word for Ed, baby. He's a "Social" Democrat. His government does not have an over-all majority. But a Liberal elected, became a "Liberal" Democrat and votes with the NDP. The lone Social Credit member announced he would too when his conscience permitted. So, Way out West, you must understand the party system.

In The West, if ya wanna live politicalle-e-e
Then y'gotta be conservative, not big "C"-e-e-e
Just plain conservative. —

Like a Liberal can be NDP can be Conservative can be Social Credit can be Independent. Swing your partner,
Allemande left.

Joint Services Study Backed

Esquimalt council reluctantly agreed Monday to take part in a regional study on the feasibility of amalgamating a number of municipal services.

Some aldermen expressed fear the study might be a "back-door approach" to total amalgamation of Greater Victoria municipalities.

Ald. Arthur Mebs thought council should not get involved in the study.

ALL AREAS

It will be carried out by administrative officials of all Greater Victoria municipalities, including unorganized territories.

The study will consider the unification of accounting and auditing procedures, standardization of municipal forms, establishment of a single purchasing commission and amalgamation of assessment records.

It will not deal with the possible unification of fire and police services.

Mayor Arthur Young told council the request for the study had come from Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, who wasn't interested in total amalgamation.

HASN'T WORKED

"When we discussed this matter with the minister, he stressed a number of times that amalgamation hasn't worked anywhere. All the minister wants us to do is consider the possibility of combining certain administrative functions with those of the other municipalities."

Mebs said: "This is aimed at amalgamation, alamgamation means big government—and big governments are inefficient. According to the latest figures, Esquimalt has a very low administrative cost. Let's keep it that way."

Teachers' Jobs Too Safe, Says Board

Teachers, protected by tenure, are too safe in their jobs, teachers and trustees agreed Monday at a special meeting of the Greater Victoria school board.

The meeting was the second of the board's education committee to study the final report of Project Learning, the year-long public involvement project in educational planning.

Trustees and members of the public were discussing a recommendation that legislation be enacted at the provincial level withholding the granting of a teaching certificate for an initial period of five years. At the end of this time probationary teaching appointments would be reviewed.

JOB FOR LIFE

"Why should a teacher be allowed to stay married to his job for 40 years? That's a job for life," trustee Peter Bunn said.

He asked if there were any profession or job, other than teaching, where a person is there for life.

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association president Les Isaacson agreed to some extent with Bunn.

He said there was too little tenure during the first year probation period and too much later. He added that teachers have sent a recommendation to the government asking for changes.

Another recommendation suggested regular reviews of teachers and supervisors within each school district.

Bunn said under the present legislation a teacher has a one-year probationary period and then receives an appointment.

"I don't think any other profession is as protected as this," he said, adding that the idea of tenure on any other standard than ability he thought repugnant.

Dr. John Wiens, school board director of instruction, pointed out that teachers are appointed without reference to the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

He said the federation cannot police people coming into their organization even though it is expected to, adding that this was "unfair."

The Project Learning report summarized recommendations made by six advisory committees set up in September, 1969, to discuss the aims and purposes of education and what schools should be like in five or 10 years.

The committees, composed of trustees, principals, teachers, parents, students and drop-outs, met regularly over a five-month session, submitting proposals for the final report.

Exports Curbed

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan will voluntarily curb exports of some textile goods and vacuum tubes to Canada this year within the same limit as under last year's accord, Japanese government sources said today.

Union To Open Office Here

The Hospital Employees Union will open an office in Victoria with a full-time business agent to serve its members on southern Vancouver Island.

This was disclosed today by Ray McCreadie of Vancouver, business manager for the union which has 10,000 members in British Columbia.

Membership in the union in Greater Victoria was doubled, to 1,600, recently when it defeated the Royal Jubilee Hospital Employees Association in a representation vote.

McCreadie said the B.C. Labor Relations Board has granted certification to the union but it has not disclosed the actual results of the vote. The Jubilee association had held bargaining rights for about 20 years, the only major hospital at which HEU did not have such rights.

McCreadie was coming to Victoria later today to effect the changeover.

Contractors Estimating Fire Damage

Contractors today are estimating the cost of repairing the Sidney town hall which was damaged by fire and smoke Saturday night.

The fire started in the basement Teen Town section of the hall, a fire department spokesman said.

It spread upward into the office of the Sidney detachment of the RCMP.

Smoke damage to other parts of the building was extensive.

Cost to repair the building has been tentatively estimated at about $5,000.

The fire marshal's office is conducting an investigation.

BABY BONUS INCREASE will benefit this Toronto family by almost 100 per cent. Truck driver Bruce Middleton, who earns between $5,500 and $6,000 annually, and his wife Melody receive $34 monthly at present in family allowance payments for their five children. Proposed increase from the federal government will provide them with an extra $30 a month, approximately $13 per child total. (CP Wirephoto)

Allowance Change Hikes Taxes—Phil

Proposed changes in federal government family allowance payments "really mean an increase in taxes for an awful lot of people," Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said Monday.

"It's going to hit an awful lot of people pretty hard," Gaglardi said in reference to the planned elimination of family allowance payments to families with an income of more than $10,000.

Gaglardi said the $10,000 income level is the "borderline" for families seeking to buy a house, suggesting the $10,000 level may not be high enough.

As for the increased family allowance aid to lower income families, Gaglardi said: "If a fellow's got a lot of kids and he's not capable of earning more than $4,000 it should at least keep him off of social assistance."

SUPPLEMENT

Gaglardi said he didn't yet known what effect an increase in the federal old age supplement would have on provincial welfare supplementary aid to pensioners.

He said he couldn't comment on the question of whether such pensioners might lose some provincial aid as a result of having their incomes boosted by a federal increase.

Nobel Winner to Stay Home

MOSCOW (WP) — Novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn said Monday he had decided not to go to Stockholm to receive his Nobel Prize Dec. 10 because he feared that if he left the Soviet Union, he would not be allowed to return.

In a letter to the Royal Swedish Academy and the Nobel Foundation, Zolzhenitsyn said he would be happy to receive the Nobel diploma and medal in Moscow and that he would compose a Nobel lecture in the required six month period.

The letter said that Solzhenitsyn had originally intended to go to Stockholm despite the press of my fatherland during the past weeks, and the state of persecution in which my books find themselves, as before (people are dismissed from their jobs and expelled from institutes for reading them) made me assume that from party organizations even for non-emembers, and instructions about behavior."

Then, Solzhenitsyn said, "The inimical attitude toward my prize, expressed in the bureaucratic gauntlet that a Soviet citizen must run to get permission to travel abroad.

He described it as "a humiliating procedure requiring the filling in of special forms, getting references my journey to Stockholm would be used to cut me off from the land of my birth, quite simply to prevent me from returning home."

TAKES AIM AT SPIRALLING WAGES, PRICES

U.S. to Issue Second Inflation Alert

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Federal Reserve Board making another move toward easier money, the Nixon administration took aim today at wage and price increases it considers inflationary.

The White House put the finishing touches on its second inflation alert, a statement which officials said beforehand spotlights wage-price decisions causing inflation.

The alert comes on the heels of a decision by the Federal Reserve that could have an inflationary effect but nevertheless is supported by the administration.

The Federal Reserve late Monday lowered the discount rate, the amount its member banks charge for borrowing, to 5½ from 5¾ per cent.

It was the second such cut in less than three weeks and signalled another possible drop in the prime interest rate, the amount large banks charge their biggest and best customers for money.

SIGN OF EASIER MONEY

Economists said the discount rate reduction is a clear sign of easier money.

The Federal Reserve described its move as purely technical to mirror already declining short-term interest rates, but its last change on Nov. 11—also described as technical—touched off a decrease in the prime rate.

The discount rate drop, with its psychological impact on the market and effect on interest rates generally, meshed with the administration's policies to expand the economy, even though this could push inflation, to offset unemployment—among other effects.

Up to now, the administration has rejected all proposals for an "incomes policy," a term that covers all types of non-compulsory presidential pressure to hold down inflationary wages and price boosts.

Demands for some such action have multiplied, however, because living costs have continued to surge upward despite restraints.

The U.S. consumer price index bulged upward by six-tenths of one per cent in October—an inflation rate of 7.2 per cent a year.

IMPORT QUOTA ON SHOES REMOVED FROM BILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate finance committee has removed import quotas on shoes from a restrictive foreign-trade bill, giving President Nixon one of several concessions he had asked in the House-passed measure.

Monday's action came on an 8-to-6 vote, which could be changed if three absent senators record their votes.

As a result of the vote, the major item left in the bill is a mandatory quota system on imported woollen and synthetic textiles. The committee diluted that slightly, exempting foreign necktie fabrics.

Backers of quotas on shoes and textiles say such restrictions are needed to protect U.S. industry and labor against cheaper imports. Opponents contend such legislation might touch off a trade war between the United States and its allies, and result in higher prices for American consumers.

President Nixon had asked that the trade bill protect only textiles and offer a tax incentive to boost U.S. exports. But an attempt to amend the bill to fit the president's request failed even to come to a vote when the measure passed the House 215 to 165 Nov. 19.

Both versions of the trade bill contain authority for the president to lower tariffs by up to 20 per cent, and prevent the president from dumping the present oil-quotas system in favor of a less restrictive tariff method.

Weather Changes Worry SST Backers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. interior department in a report has urged developers of the supersonic transport plane to heed warnings that the SST could seriously alter the world's weather.

Senator Gaylord Nelson (Dem. Wis.) says the report raises such serious questions he will seek a delay in the Senate vote scheduled later this week to appropriate $290 million to continue work on SST prototypes.

The interior department questioned whether water vapor from the SST's exhausts would change climatic conditions in polar regions and eventually around the globe.

A similar environmental question was raised Sunday by Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.), who said a projected fleet of 500 to 700 SSTs by the 1980s could destroy a portion of the ozone shield in the upper atmosphere which protects the earth from ultraviolet radiation.

MOVES PRECEDE VOTE

Release of the interior report Monday was one of several manoeuvres by both sides of the SST controversy preceding the appropriations vote, which is expected to be close.

These were other major developments Monday:

—Senator Warren Magnuson (Dem. Wash.), moving to head off SST critics, introduced a bill banning sonic-boom producing flights over all 50 states. He said transoceanic flights alone would assure the SST's economic success. Boeing Aircraft, the primary SST producer, is based in his home state.

—The National Academy of Sciences, through a study panel, said it "is not accusing the SST of potential crimes against the environment" and would not recommend the prototype program be slowed down.

—A member of the Coalition of Environmental Groups said a fleet of 500 SSTs would produce sonic booms over 60 per cent of the Atlantic.

—A director of the Sierra Club, another conservationist group, claimed a fleet of 500 SSTs would use up all the nation's petroleum supplies in 20 years.

QUESTIONS EFFECTS

The interior department report also questioned effects of sonic booms on birds nesting on coastal islands, saying egg laying could be seriously reduced by the loud sounds.

But the report warned most seriously about the possible effects on climate.

"It should be noted that climatic changes in the polar regions have consequences that reach out into temperate areas because they serve as breeding grounds for much of the world's weather," the report said, mentioning temperature changes, precipitation, wind direction and ocean currents.

Bad Drug List Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has released what it says is the most complete list of ineffective drug products ever compiled.

The Food and Drug Administration said here some of the 359 prescription and non-prescription products were earlier declared to have little or no value in improving health. Others are already off the market.

But the agency said it decided government purchasing agencies needed a more up-to-date guide.

Among the prescription items on the list are Aureomycin lozenges, Neo-Cortef nasal sprays, various tablets containing rauwolfia, an anti-high blood pressure compound, and Terramycin in some forms.

Non-prescription products include Colgate dental cream with Gardol, Pepsodent antiseptic mouthwash, Curad Medicated bandages and Amm-I-Dent toothpaste and tooth powder.

The toothpastes listed did not stop tooth decay, the FDA said.

The FDA said some of the drugs are simply ineffective in what their makers say they can do. Others, the agency said, are combinations of drugs which are no more effective than their component ingredients are when used separately.

The list is a product of a study done by a National Academy of Sciences board and FDA doctors who studied 3,000 different preparations approved for sale before 1962, when manufacturers were required to begin proving their products were effective as well as safe.

Grits Announce Meeting Dates

Allan Cox, former Liberal MLA for Oak Bay, will be chairman for the meeting.

DIVORCE ITALIAN STYLE is celebrated by jubilant Italian divorce advocates after it was announced that Chamber of Deputies had approved the bill legalizing divorce. Signs carry such messages as: Italy, You Woke Up! and Divorce in Italy, First Victory! (AP Wirephoto)

Italian Parliament Approves Bill Allowing Legal Divorce

ROME (CP) — Parliament approved an historic bill early today introducing divorce in Italy despite a long battle with the Vatican and the church-backed Christian Democrat party.

The 630-member Chamber of Deputies (lower house) voted 319 to 286 to approve the bill after a five-year legislative battle. An economic package submitted by the government was simultaneously approved.

The divorce bill, already approved by the Senate, now requires only the signature of President Giuseppe Saragat and publication in the official state gazette before becoming law, possibly before the end of this year.

Early next year the courts are expected to start issuing divorce decrees to many of the Italians, estimated at between one and two million, now living separated from their partners.

Under the bill, couples must have been legally separated for five years before applying for divorce. If one partner contests the divorce the required separation period rises to six years. If the separation was granted because of the guilt of one partner, the period goes to seven years.

FEW OTHER GROUNDS

The only other grounds for divorce involve hardship cases, such as when one partner is serving life imprisonment or has tried to murder his wife or children.

Italians now are pondering the cost of obtaining a divorce and how long it will take in civil courts where the calendar is jammed.

Lawyers expect fees to range from the equivalent of $640 to three times that amount—almost a year's salary for an Italian in a lower-income bracket. It could take from six months up to five years for a divorce, legal experts say, considering the complexity of the proceeding and jammed courts.

Aside from a brief period between 1795 and 1815, during the Napoleonic era, divorce always has been banned in Italy. Under Italy's 1929 Concordat with the Vatican, Roman Catholic marriage regulations have the force of law.

The vote climaxed 92 years of pro-divorce agitation during which 12 earlier divorce bills have failed to obtain government approval.

Women's Work Bill in Effect

By LILLIAN NEWBERY

TORONTO (CP) — The Women's Equal Employment Opportunity Act, aimed at protecting one million working women in Ontario from discrimination in job recruitment, hiring, training, promotion and dismissal, went into effect today.

"The whole thing is to educate industry and women themselves to open all jobs to qualified workers of both sexes," says Dr. Lita-Rose Betcherman. She directs the Ontario Women's Bureau responsible for administration of the act.

Companies with fewer than six employees are automatically exempt. A labor department bulletin distributed to 140,000 businesses, unions and associations says that physical reasons will be the factor in setting exemptions based on sex and that lack of mobility will be considered in exemptions because of marital status.

Dr. Betcherman has said that exemption requests on grounds that a man had always done the job will be viewed "with a cold eye."

She explained how the legislation will work:

"A woman who believes she has been discriminated against should get in touch with the bureau (at Queen's Park) with a view to laying a complaint. We will tell her if it comes under the legislation. If it does, officers will be sent to the company to arrange a settlement.

"The routine is investigation, conciliation, settlement. Where a settlement is not reached, the labor minister may appoint a board and its decision could go to the Ontario court of appeal.

"The fines will be used as a last resort."

The Act provides for maximum fines of $800 for an individual and $3,000 for a corporation, employment agency or trade union.

Employers of 25 persons or more are forbidden to fire a woman who becomes pregnant. They are bound to give her up to six weeks maternity leave before the birth if asked and six weeks after with a guarantee she can return to the same position or a comparable one.

IN CAMPBELL RIVER AND LADYSMITH

Two Mayoralty Fights Shape Up-Island

Mayoralty contests in Ladysmith and Campbell River are the highlights of the up-Island municipal election campaign.

In Ladysmith, veteran Mayor Kay Grouhel is being challenged by William T. Brown in the Dec. 12 election.

In Campbell River, Kenneth Forde, 61, who resigned as alderman, is running against Mayor Kenneth McDonald, 38, who is completing his second term as mayor.

Mrs. Grouhel has been mayor of Ladysmith for six years. When she first ran for mayor she had been an alderman for one year and resigned to run against Len Ryan, who had been mayor for 16 years. She was re-elected without opposition for her last two terms.

A newly-revived ratepayers association in Ladysmith is charging council spending is too high and one member said Mrs. Grouhel has "managed to accumulate $1 million in debt for our town." She replied by saying the mayor alone can't borrow five cents for the town.

In North Cowichan, Lorne Campbell was elected by acclamation as a rural school trustee along with David Bradbury.

GREENWELL

HERE'S A GOOD PLACE TO BE A POLITICIAN

LAKE COWICHAN — This is an unusual community—it seems blissfully content with its ruling elite.

There will be no civic elections at Lake Cowichan on Dec. 12 because no one stepped forward to oppose any of the incumbent aldermen and school trustees whose terms expire this year.

Aldermen Bert Brown and Archie Greenwell, Lake Cowichan school trustees Bernice Sawkins and Robert C. Godfrey, and rural trustees Jim Paisley and Brent Friday were all re-elected Monday by acclamation.

FRAUD CHARGE LAID IN BRICK SWINDLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank Huber, 62, of Toronto, charged with fraud in connection with a $5,500 gold-brick swindle earlier this month, has been remanded to June 6 in Vancouver provincial court.

He was charged after two men allegedly bilked Joseph Krushelnicki, 61, of Vancouver out of the money by exchanging it for 10 bars of bronze which had been painted gold.

Pricing Check Asked

TORONTO (CP) — An organization of independent grocers has asked Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford to investigate price-war policies of the large supermarkets. The Canadian Federation of Retail Grocers says if the price war continues a number of small and medium-sized stores will be forced to close and the retail food business will be concentrated into fewer hands.

Comox Blitzed By More Snow

COURTENAY — Winter's second heavy snowfall zoomed in on the Comox Valley Monday, muffling the east side of the island from Cumberland north to Campbell River with three to 12 inches of snow.

More than a foot of snow had fallen in Cumberland by noon, where a resident reported snowflakes "the size of 50-cent pieces."

At Courtenay the fall was estimated at between six to 10 inches while at Campbell River RCMP reported between three to six inches of snow.

MOST ROADS BLOCKED

Roads at Campbell River were said to be in the poorest shape on the island. Most of the highways in the area, RCMP said, were blocked. Plows worked all night and by this morning all roads were passable.

Students in the Comox Valley were released from school early in the afternoon so as to allow them to reach home on the school bus before roads became impossible.

Many events planned for Monday and today were cancelled.

There were a number of accidents but no one reported injured.

Dissident NDPer Booted From Post

CUMBERLAND — Bud Handley of Port Alberni has been voted out as president of the Comox-Alberni NDP Federal Constituency Association.

He had publicly disagreed with NDP Leader T. C. Douglas' opposition to the invocation of the War Measures Act.

Handley was succeeded by Fred Chapman of Courtenay as the association's annual meeting Sunday at Bowser.

In his president's report, Handley outlined his reason, saying that he had taken an oath of allegiance to the Queen and that, at the time the act was invoked, it was the time to stand united.

He pointed out he might be thrown out of the party for his stand but he would not yield.

U.S. RESERVE BOARD SLICES RATE TO 5½%

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Federal Reserve Board Monday lowered its discount rate to 5½ per cent, the second change this month.

The board said its move was in recognition of a further downward trend in short-term interest rates in recent weeks.

The discount rate, the amount the Federal Reserve charges its member banks for borrowing, had been reduced to 5¾ per cent from 6, effective Nov. 111.

The board approved recommendations by Federal Reserve banks at Boston, Cleveland, Atlanta, Minneapolis and Dallas in reducing reducing the discount rate.

Gov't Cuts Rate On Latest Bonds

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bond borrowing launched Monday offers the lowest return to investors on such issues in three years, a reflection of an interest-rate slide since early last summer.

Dealers reported the bonds were in demand by investors, although they bear interest coupons of only 5¼ per cent, 6 per cent and 7 per cent, depending on their duration.

The 6 per cent bond runs for 3½ years. The last 3½-year bond with a coupon as low as 6 per cent was issued Oct. 1, 1967.

An issue two months ago, to run for just under 2½ years, carried a 6½ per cent coupon.

Bond borrowings were costing the federal treasury 8 per cent in 1969 and early this year. A 15-month issue in February has 8 per cent coupons and was discounted on sale to yield 8.11 per cent, compared to the 5¼ per cent coupons and yield of 5.36 per cent on two-year bonds offered Monday.

Canada Savings Bonds sold last month yield 7¾ per cent if held to maturity in 11 years.

Newsprint Demand Slackens

MONTREAL (CP)—A survey released by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association says demand for newsprint in North America for 1970 is falling far short of expectation and forecasts for 1971 will show only a modest increase over this year.

The survey says that for 1970 in North America there is an estimated decrease of about 2 per cent in demand while total demand overseas is expected to show growth of nearly 5 per cent, or one-half million tons.

North American tonnage is almost half of world tonnage.

The survey says the main cause of the demand drop for 1970 "seems to be reduced newspaper advertising lineage which is running about 3 per cent below the 1969 levels."

It says magazines are showing similar reductions but television and radio advertising continue to show modest gains.

"Newspaper strikes and related troubles with labor have been another cause of reduced consumption although not a big one for 1970," it adds.

FIRST FENCE FIASCO

Centennials Win First One On Two-Hitter

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia — The pitching of Les Lisowski of Winnipeg and some timely hitting Monday provided Canada with its first win after eight losses in the world amateur baseball championships.

Lisowski fired a two-hitter, striking out 16, and allowed only five base runners as the Canadians, represented mainly by members of the Victoria Centennials, blanked Holland, 4-0.

Lisowski, a left-hander who attends Arizona University, retired the last 17 batters and did not allow a runner beyond second base.

He struck out the side in the first and fifth innings and now has struck out 36 batters in the 22 innings he has pitched in three games.

ON WILD PITCH

Dave McKay of Vancouver and Yves Blanchard of Montreal each singled and McKay scored on a wild pitch in the first inning.

In the third inning, Tom McKenzie of Kitchener doubled and Barry Harvey of Victoria singled, scoring McKenzie. McKay singled, went to second base on a fielder's choice and scored on a single by Blanchard. After Russ Holmes of Victoria singled, Blanchard scored on a passed ball.

"We finally got a fast start," Lisowski said after the game. "That makes a difference in the way you pitch because it gives you more confidence.

"Everyone played well. It was a great team effort."

LED HITTERS

McKay got three hits and Blanchard two to lead the eight-hit Canadian attack on two pitchers. Blanchard now is hitting .461 and is in contention for the tournament batting title.

Canada plays its last two games of the tournament today, against Italy and Puerto Rico.

United States, which defeated Colombia 4-1 Sunday, clinched at least a tie for first place by defeating the Dominican Republic, 6-4, Monday.

Senators Build Pepperpot Pile

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California Angels and Washington Senators, baseball's most active wheeler-dealers since the end of the 1970 season, have set the early pace at the winter meetings.

The Angels made another three-for-three trade and the Senators acquired another controversial player.

The Angels, who had obtained slugger Tony Conigliaro from Boston Red Sox in a six-player trade during the World Series, dealt for defence Monday and landed veteran outfielder Ken Berry from Chicago White Sox in a three-for-three swap.

Ted Williams' Senators, who have taken on Denny McLain and Curt Flood in the last two months, rescued third baseman Joe Foy from minor league exile during the draft session that kicked off the annual conclave.

Relief pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm, 47-year-old elder statesman of the major leagues, returned to Atlanta Braves after a brief fling with Chicago Cubs and Moe Drabowsky, another veteran reliever, departed the world champion Baltimore Orioles for the second time within two years in other early trade developments.

With Conigliaro and American League batting king Alex Johnson set in the California outfield, Angels' general manager Dick Walsh went shopping for a standout centrefielder. After failing to lure Paul Blair from Baltimore or Mickey Stanley from Detroit Tigers, he came up with Berry, an exceptional glove man whose .276 batting average last season was a six-year career high.

The White Sox also sent infielder Syd O'Brien and pitcher Billy Wynne to the Angels, receiving centrefielder Jay Johnstone, pitcher Tom Bradley and catcher Tom Egan in exchange.

Foy Wasn't One of Gil's Favorites

Washington picked up Foy from Tidewater of the International League for the $25,000 draft price in one of the least active selection sessions ever.

A year ago, Foy, a 27-year-old speedster, was acquired by New York Mets to bolster their defence of teh 1969 world championship.

But Foy batted just .236, had troubles in the field and fell out of favor with manager Gil Hodges.

"A year ago he was worth two players," said Senators' vice-president Joseph Burke. "We don't believe he could have depreciated that much in one year."

Only eight players were drafted by major league clubs, compared with 19 selected last December at Miami.

The San Diego Padres, with the No. 1 pick, took left-handed pitcher Bill Laxton from Philadelphia's Eugene, Ore., affiliate in the Pacific Coast League.

Wilhelm, who has worked more games than any pitcher in major league history, was reacquired by the Braves in a deal that sent first baseman Hal Breeden, plus cash, to the Cubs.

Atlanta sent Wilhelm to Chicago last September during the National League stretch drive. He got into three games with the Cubs, after pitching in 50 with the Braves, for a lifetime total of 1,042 appearances.

Breeden batted .293 for the Braves' Richmond, Va., farm in the International League, belting 37 homers and knocking in 116 runs.

The Orioles dealt Drabowsky, 35, to St. Louis Cardinals for utility infielder Jerry Davanon in the day's first trade. Drabowsky went from Baltimore to Kansas City Royals in the 1968 expansion draft and was traded back to the Orioles last summer.

The Cubs actually were the most active traders with three deals, but two were of the lower-level variety.

They sent Willie Smith, a part-time outfielder-first baseman, to Cincinnati Reds for minor league catcher Danny Breeden, outfielder Roe Skidmore and pitchers Dave Lemonds and Pat Jacquez for outfielder Ossie Blanco in a three-for-two trade with the White Sox.

All Favor Lancaster As All-Canada Caller

By The Canadian Press

Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders, Canada's 1970 player of the year, won unanimous endorsation today as all-Canada quarterback.

The Canadian Football League all-star squad was chosen by ballot among the Football Reporters of Canada.

The running backs were Hugh McKinnis of Stampeders, top ground-gainer of the CFL; Bill Symons of Toronto Argonauts, and Jim Evenson of B.C. Lions.

Narrowly edged in that category were Moses Denson of the Grey Cup-champion Montreal Alouettes and George Reed of Saskatchewan.

Jim Thorpe of Toronto took the flanker spot, well ahead of runners-up Gord Barwell of Saskatchewan and Gerry Shaw of Calgary.

URNESS IS CENTRE

The offensive centre position went to Ted Urness of Saskatchewan, who was well ahead of Gene Ceppetelli of Montreal and Basil Bark of Calgary.

Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan led the offensive guards with a tie for second place between Bill Banychuk of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Charlie Bray of Toronto.

Bill Frank of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Ellison Kelly of Hamilton took the tackle spots and Herm Harrison of Calgary was well ahead of Toronto's Mel Profit for tight end.

Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton outclassed runner-up Hugh Oldham of Ottawa Rough Riders at split end.

PLACE 3 EACH

Saskatchewan and Calgary each placed three with Edmonton Eskimos, British Columbia, Ottawa and Montreal each getting two aboard. Winnipeg came up with one.

On the defensive squad, Steve Smear of Montreal took an end spot with Ed Harrington of Toronto edging Craig Koinzan of Calgary for the other.

Angelo Mosca of Hamilton led the voting for tackle with the second spot going by the margin of one vote to Greg Pipes of Edmonton over Ed McQuarters of Saskatchewan.

Wayne Harris of Calgary, Canadian lineman of the year, was a country mile ahead of runner-up Charlie Collins of Montreal at middle linebacker.

At outside linebacker were Jerry Campbell of Ottawa and Greg Findlay of B.C.

Defensive backs were Marv Luster of Toronto and Garney Henley of Hamilton tied for first spot, followed by John Wydareny of Edmonton, Al Marcelin of Ottawa and Al Phaneuf of Montreal—runner-up in the voting as top CFL Canadian who edged Ted Dushinski of Saskatchewan by one vote.

Only one of the CFL's outstanding player award winners — Jim Young of B.C. — failed to make the all-star squad. The top Canadian came well down in the voting for running backs.

Dolphins Humble Falcons' Defence

ATLANTA (AP) — Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka ripped Atlanta's touted defensive unit to shreds and Bob Griese added the big-play touch Monday night as Miami Dolphins kept alive their hopes of reaching the National Football League playoffs with a 20-7 victory over Atlanta Falcons.

"We just got whipped in every phase of the game," said coach Norm Van Brocklin of the Falcons after the weekly national television attraction.

"Our defence got whipped this time, just like our offence did," Van Brocklin said.

The triumph boosted Miami's American Football Conference East Division mark to 7-4, leaving it 1½ games behind Baltimore. Each has three games remaining, with all of Miami's at home against the New York Jets, Boston Patriots and Buffalo Bills.

"We'll let somebody else worry about the playoffs," said Dolphin coach Don Shula. "We still have a chance to catch them (Baltimore Colts)."

HAS ANOTHER SHOT

However, Miami still has another shot at a playoff spot by compiling the best record of division runnerup.

The only other teams approaching the Dolphin mark are co-leaders in the West, Oakland Raiders and Kansas City Chiefs, both with 6-3-2 records. They still must face each other.

The Falcons never were in the game in the first half when Morris dashed for 71 of his 76 yards on the ground and added a vital 49-yard return of the opening kickoff that set up a field goal.

He also had a 27-yard run in the field-goal drive and sprinted 40 yards in the second quarter to set up Jim Kiick's one-yard touchdown plunge that helped the Dolphins to a 13-0 lead.

INTERCEPTION HELPS

After a Bob Berry pass to Art Malone in the end zone was incomplete, Don Hansen intercepted a Griese pass and returned it 15 yards to the Miami 40. Berry drove Atlanta to a touchdown, despite holding penalty.

On another fourth-down gamble, Berry, unable to find an open receiver, ran seven yards to make a first down by inches at the four.

Two plays later he hit Paul Gipson with a five-yard scoring pass and the margin was trimmed to 13-7.

Then Csonka, who compiled 70 of his 108 yards in the final half, sparked an 80-yard scoring drive for the Dolphins. He capped the march with a one-yard run with less than three minutes remaining.

LEN LUNDE ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks forward Len Lunde is retiring from professional hockey, a spokesman for the National Hockey League club announced Monday.

The 34-year-old Lunde, who turned pro in 1955, was notified six days ago by Bud Poile, Canucks general manager, that he had been waived through the NHL and was to be assigned to the Vancouver-owned Rochester Americans of the American League or perhaps to a Western League club if Lunde preferred.

Y Crew Tops In Volleyball

Victoria YMCA finished first in the Victoria and District Volleyball Association senior men's league after sweeping both games on Monday.

YMCA downed CFB Esquimalt 15-5, 15-11 and Oak Bay 15-1, 15-6 to finish with a 21-1 won-lost record.

Monday's games ended the pre-Christmas portion of the league. Inter-locking games between the senior league and high school teams will commence after the holiday.

Victoria High finished one point behind YMCA with two victories Monday — a 15-3, 15-12 win over Oak Bay and a 15-4, 15-5 romp over Mount Douglas.

Royal Roads swept a pair of victories from Mount Douglas 15-5, 15-3 and then split with CFB Esquimalt 11-15,15-6.

Press Pressure Thwarts Vikettes

SASKATOON — University of Victoria Vikettes stumbled in the starting blocks and dropped a 53-29 decision to University of Saskatchewan Huskiettes in a Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association women's basketball league game Monday.

Vikettes did not score their first point until nine minutes had elapsed, and were trailing 26-9 at halftime.

Saskatchewan startled the coast squad with a player-to-player press and forced Vikettes into 42 turnovers.

Vikettes were playing without the services of captain Rose Jossul, the club's top scorer who is sidelined with a knee injury.

Heather Witzel, a former Vikette, led Huskiettes with 20 points while Sherril Roberts added 10.

In the only other game of the evening, University of British Columbia Thunderettes downed University of Saskatchewan Cougarettes 80-31 in Regina.

THE NAME'S CHANGED . . . BUT ALI THE CLOWN OF OLD

Like Last Time, It Comes in Rhyme . . .

NEW YORK (AP) — It was Muhammad Ali's first New York ring appearance in more than 3½ years—and it was just like the last time. He ranted, he clowned and he predicted a victory in rhyme.

Monday he was back in the new Madison Square Garden, dazzling several hundred followers in a 70-minute workout for his 15-round bout Dec. 7 against Argentina's Oscar Bonavena.

It is only Ali's second fight since being deposed as champion for refusing military induction—but a victory would set up a bout with his successor, champion Joe Frazier.

And Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, has no doubt he'll be the first man to knock out Bonavena.

"It's been a long time since I put my predictions in rhythm and rhyme.

"But it was Bonavena who started it all by getting out of line . , ," the 24-line poem began. And as the crowd shouted "Right on!" he climaxed it with:

"Before round nine is out,

"The referee will jump and shout,

"Th-th-th-that's all, folks,

"This turkey is out?'".

"I couldn't keep quiet," he told the crowd later from the centre of the ring, referring to Bonavena's prediction that he would stop Ali in 11 rounds.

"That's my bag. I'm the one who predicts and calls it right. If there's anything I don't like," Ali grinned, "it's a fighter who talks too much."

He then gave a round-by-round prediction on the battle:

"I will use the first three rounds feeling him out. Then in the fourth and fifth I'll stick and move. In the sixth and seventh I'll talk to him and bounce him around a bit. In the eighth I'll tell him he has one more round. I'm gonna taunt him, talk to him —and whup him!"

Ali carried on a conversation with his delighted followers during his sparring sessions, then stunned them by slumping to the canvas as he traded punches with Los Angeles heavyweight Bunky Atkins.

The gasps turned to cheers, though, as they realized Ali was putting them on.

"There are people who want to see me knocked down," he explained. "I did it just so they'd know how it looked. It'll never happen in real life."

Cruising Class Takes to Water

By PAT DUFOUR

A small armada of 46 power cruisers was enlisted Sunday when the Victoria Power Squadron took the largest class in its history — 130 students — on a training exercise from Sidney to Maple Bay and back.

For many of the students it was a first chance to put into action the instructions they had received in the classroom. In spite of less-than-banana-belt temperatures spirits were high on the rather choppy run home.

Mild nor'easterlies provided good sailing conditions in waters off Oak Bay Marina for two races sailed by members of the Turkey Head Sailing Association Sunday; blowing between five to eight knots for the first time around the buoys and strengthening to 10 knots for the afternoon race.

Aussies Lead By 25 Runs In Test Match

BRISBANE (Reuter) — Australia was 25 runs ahead of England with eight second-innings wickets standing at the close of the fourth day of the first test cricket match here today.

With one day left, a repeat of last Saturday's dramatic Australian batting collapse seemed the only thing that could prevent the match ending in a draw.

England, 365 for six when play began today, was all out for 464 shortly before tea—a first-innings lead of 31.

Australia then scored 56 for two in 127 minutes by the close.

Crowds Delay Victory Parade

MONTREAL (CP) — Monday was victory day for Montreal as the city's Grey Cup champion Alouettes were merrily toasted at a champagne celebration atop Mount Royal and mobbed as heroes in a street parade.

Crowds estimated variously at 100,000 and 300,000 filled downtown streets Monday at noontime to shower confetti and kisses on their favorite football players who defeated Calgary Stampeders 23-10 Saturday to win the Canadian Football League title for the first time in 21 years.

General manager Red O'Quinn told the mountain-top party given by Mayor Jean Drapeau that "I believe this team is one of the greatest sports groups ever put together."

MAYOR SINGS PRAISES

The mayor said the team was "writing glorious pages in the history of sport in Montreal."

The tumultuous crowds who lined a six-mile parade route at noontime Monday often completely halted the players' progress as they clambered aboard convertibles to seek autographs and kiss the victors.

Almost as soon as it started, it became apparent that a tight schedule issued by the mayor's office could not be maintained.

Police motorcycles had to clear separate paths for each car blocked by milling fans.

At one point the car carrying quarterback Sonny Wade, voted outstanding player of the Grey Cup game, and coach Sam Etcheverry, who was quarterback of the last Alouette team to make it to the football final in 1956, was cut off from the rest of the parade. Police used nine motorcycles to keep crowds to a manageable minimum.

'IT'S BEAUTIFUL'

"It's beautiful," shouted Etcheverry when the parade finally made it to city hall an hour later than scheduled. "Last year we had the Grey Cup parade here, but it was nothing compared to this."

Alouette Walt Highsmith exclaimed:

"I was in New York for the welcome they gave the Mets after they won the World Series. Even that didn't equal today."

At city hall, Etcheverry signed the golden book and Mayor Drapeau told him:

"Don't worry, you'll get used to it. You'll be doing this many times again."

The parade brought bankers, stockbrokers and secretaries out of their offices in breezy 40-degree weather.

"It was fantastic," said one policeman, who despite the huge crowds reported no trouble.

But not everybody knew exactly what was happening.

EARLY WARNING FELT TO BE KEY

ENTIRE COASTLINE NOW GUARDED

Britain Fully Prepared to Contend With Oil Spills

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) —When the tankers Pacific Glory and Allegro collided recently off the Isle of Wight, Britain was for the first time fully prepared to meet the threat of massive oil pollution that loomed over the Channel.

Since the Torrey Canyon disaster of 1967, which spewed 100,000 gallons of crude oil in a 35-mile-long slick threatening the coasts of England and France, British authorities have been busy developing a system to detect and deal with the beginnings of another black tide.

Britain feels particularly threatened by the increasing problem of oil pollution because she imports nearly 100 million tons of oil a year and most of the tankers using ports in northwestern Europe pass close to British shores.

In the summer of 1970 Britain became the first major maritime country to instal a round-the-coast organization to combat the oil menace. Basically an early-warning system co-ordinating the coast guard and the marine survey service, it operates from 30 ports around Britain, each of which is equipped with a simple new device for dispersing oil slicks.

SHIPS ON LOOKOUT

The organization, expected to cost £50,000 a year, is run by the board of trade—now part of the new department of trade and industry—which is responsible for ocean pollution beyond one mile from shore. Within that area, local authorities take over.

All British ships and aircraft, both military and civil, now are instructed to report sightings of slicks or accidents likely to produce an oil spillage. Together with the existing early-warning system operated by the coast guard, these reports are fed to the board of trade headquarters in London and to the other main link in the chain—the men of the marine survey service.

The main function of these officers, who already are established at the 30 key ports, is to supervise such matters as seaworthiness and safety in merchant shipping using British coastal waters. Now their role includes mustering ocean-going tugs or similar vessels and equipping them to deal with oil slicks. In cases of major pollution, they can call on units of the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force.

The special equipment stored at each port consists of non-toxic detergent sprays which are mounted on booms projecting from each side of the vessel, and a wooden device resembling a series of five-barred gates, towed behind the tug to mix and disperse the treated oil and water.

DESIGN IS SIMPLE

Devised by a team of oil pollution experts from the government's laboratories at Warren Spring, Hertfordshire, it has been described by an American coast guard official who watched a demonstration as so simple "you could fabricate one almost by looking at it."

It mosts about £300 a set and its effect on oil, said a laboratory spokesman, is similar to what happens when a housewife is washing dishes. Oil or grease is broken up by the detergent into minute specks which dissolve into the water. Mixing it up with the "five-barred-gate" apparatus hastens the process and enables microbes in the sea water to get busy on breaking the particles down still further.

The equipment, which the laboratory claims can handle all types of oil, was designed to fit any vessel with the minimum of handling and crew instruction. The boom carrying the spray nozzles is fixed to the ship's rail and the pumping equipment sprays at about 20 gallons a minute.

One tug running at 10 knots and spraying a 60-foot-wide ribbon of ocean can clear 150 tons of oil in a day.

Although the new equipment was tested successfully in a tanker collision earlier this year and tugs cleared some of the Pacific Glory's spillage, officials admit the new system is geared to "average" slicks of a few hundred tons.

COULD TAKE WEEKS

In a disaster of Torrey Canyon scale—or as the most recent collision might have turned out had the Pacific Glory's bulkheads given way—it would take a fleet of such tugs three weeks in ideal conditions to clear the oil, which would be unlikely to stay obligingly at sea for that period.

Member countries of the Intergovernmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO) are watching Britain's new system with interest.

Those sending representatives to the board of trade's demonstration of the equipment included Sweden, France, The Netherlands, Japan and the United States, which generally prefers not to use chemicals in fighting oil pollution.

Sweden already has a coastal alert system incorporating the coast guard service, some of whose vessels are to be fitted with detergent tanks and spray booms.

Meanwhile Britain, with other governments in IMCO, is pressing ahead with legislation to curb the possibility of another Torrey Canyon. A parliamentary bill now up for amendment in Britain will tighten existing laws and impose heavier penalties for pollution.

Pakistini Plan

DACCA (AP) — The Pakistan cabinet has approved a $172-million plan for the rehabilitation and reconstruction of the areas of East Pakistan ravaged by a cyclone earlier this month. An official sourse said the plan would be implemented on an emergency basis without waiting for World Bank funds. At least 200,000 people died in the cyclone and tidal waves.

Gloves—Older Than You Think

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The other day a few friends of long standing were comfortably relaxed over a cup of tea when the 15-year-old daughter of the hostess came in to greet us.

Forbes

She'd been knitting one of those all-enveloping ponchos that are so popular today. In fact, she had just finished it and was looking for a few compliments.

We obliged. Then the perfectionist in our midst suggested the effect could be enhanced with a pair of heavy knit gloves in the same tones of wool.

"Gloves?" said the young miss with a note of pity in her voice, "I don't need them. My hands are under the poncho."

"After all, dear," cut in her mother, "you can't keep your hands under wraps all the time. Gloves would be a nice touch."

The young miss swished herself and the poncho out of the room with a long drawn out "Oh . . . mother!"

There was silence for a moment. Then our hostess sighed, looked around at us and asked, "How long ago is it since a pair of white kid gloves was the standard of good grooming and a must for social functions, large or small, anywhere?"

That started a trend of thought which somehow led us back beyond our own days to ponder another question. When did gloves first become an item of dress in this world?

"Let's find out," suggested our hostess. She went over to the bookcase and pulled out an encyclopedia.

They were worn thousands of years ago perhaps by prehistoric cave dwellers, she told us. Homer referred to them, the Persians and Romans had gloves and Pliny told that when he made his famed ascent of Vesuvius, he and his companion wore gloves.

She took another look and added that as far back as the eighth and ninth centuries gloves, at first without fingers, were worn even by laborers in almost every north European country.

At that moment a quiet voice asked, "Didn't the first Queen Elizabeth wear ornate gloves decorated with rich embroidery and precious stones?"

Another voice pitched in with "And didn't those old-time kings wear them too? Seems to me the effigies placed over their graves show them with gloved hands folded on their chests."

The romantic one in our midst reminded us that in the days of chivalry knights rode out with their lady's glove in their helmets and they defended those gloves with their lives.

Story goes that Clifford was the first to carry news of the defeat of the Spanish Armada to Elizabeth.

In her excitement the queen dropped a glove. The earl handed it back but she suggested he keep it in memory of that hour. He did so to the end of his days.

Just then someone wished to know if there wasn't a famed poem about a foolish and vain woman who threw her glove among lions in an arena. Her lover risked his life to retrieve it.

"You're right," said the one who loves poetry. "It was written by Leigh Hunt." Then she quoted:

"The leap was quick, return was quick; he had regained his place,
Then threw the glove, but not with love, right in the lady's face."

U.S. Spy Planes Stop Suez Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. sources say American surveillance flights along the Suez canal were stopped more than three weeks ago, about the time they say the buildup of Soviet missile sites along the waterway's west bank came to a halt.

Officials declined Monday to connect the developments, but a great deal of the recent controversy over the roles played in the Middle East by the two superpowers concerned the reconnaissance flights and the missile site construction.

No reason was provided for the halt in the flights by the high-flying American U-2 planes and officials declined to comment on reports that Egypt had made a tough protest about the surveillance. They did acknowledge the Cairo government called in U.S. diplomats to discuss the situation.

The reconnaissance missions started when the original Arab-Israeli ceasefire went into effect last June when the United States took upon itself the task of policing the troubled truce in answer to an Israeli demand.

At that time the United States informed Cairo of the flights and urged the Egyptians not to consider the reconnaissance missions as provocations. The U.S. message said the Egyptians "understood" the situation.

But the Egyptians have indicated of late they don't understand the situation, at least not any more.

Reporter Drowns

OSLO (AP) — Erik Lunde, 33, reporter of Norway's largest newspaper, Aftenposten, was drowned when diving at 230 feet in Oslo fjord to photograph the sunken German warship Bluecher. Lunde was the son of Aftenposten's chief editor, Reidar Lunde. The Bluecher was sunk by Norwegian coastal guns when the Germans attacked Norway in April 1940.

Lousy Mixture of the Particular and Artificially General

A Movie Review, Strawberry Statement (Coronet Theatre)

By PETER McNELLY

The human body is fragile. Slam a fish into its face and it usually bleeds.

The next day that face aches with dull pain.

Take a three-foot wooden stick and batter a body in the chest, groin, neck and kidneys, and the body will swell and ache miserably for several days.

Imagine a group of helmeted men, strong men in sturdy leather boots smashing nightsticks into the bodies of a defenceless crowd. Imagine it in technicolor. Imagine it for several minutes with a soundtrack of screams. Add teargas.

ABUSES VIOLENCE

Violence is depressing. Moves which abuse violence skilfully are doubly depressing. The Strawberry Statement abuses violence.

The Strawberry Statement is a fraud. But, like Easy Rider, a clever fraud. The violence at the end of the movie, so similar to the opening imagery of this review, is a simplistic play for naive sympathy.

Stuart Hagmann's film is rich in material for social comment. Its brilliant photography of pain should sadden anyone. But Hagmann abuses both issues and violence in this wholly irresponsible film.

The Strawberry Statement is based on a book of the same title by James Kunen. Kunen was a student at Columbia University in New York City during the first in a spectacular series of student strikes across the country that year.

HARLEM HOUSING

The strike was engineered by the Students for a Democratic Society in an attempt to stop expropriation of Harlem housing and park land for university purposes. Columbia students are among the brightest in the nation, and it was natural for them to protest what they thought was an unjustified incursion into ghetto territory by the university.

Most Columbia students are far wealthier than the blacks living next door to their campus. The planned expropriation was a logical issue for their socially tuned consciences.

Other important strike issues included demands for an end to on-campus defence research and reserve officer training programs. Defence research, much of it secret, is a source of millions of dollars in grants to Columbia University.

Needless to say, the university administration would not change its plans. When the SDS occupied the administration building, many of the non-committed students and many faculty members supported the strike.

STRIKE FAILED

After several days, Columbia's president called in the police. Many students were gassed, beaten and jailed. In the end, the strike failed.

The Strawberry Statement follows these events only in their sketchiest form. With the aid of bouncy camerawork and a semi-documentary style, it tries to capture the spirit of the strike.

But issues are easily forgotten, so the movie's producers modernized things by adding near-recent rock music, new political figures (Nixon and Agnew in place of Johnson and Humphrey) and posters of Robert Kennedy (now dead, but then alive).

Obviously, they intended a universal look. Instead, the result is a lousy mixture of the particular and the artificially general.

However, this is only a minor weakness. The worst side of the film is its sacrifice of issues to personality. Instead of an honest look at the contemporary United States college student, we get the same cliches.

People who know nothing about university students will know less about them from seeing this movie. What they will know is that a group of erratic, sincere and enthusiastic people had the guts beaten out of them by New York's finest.

The Strawberry Statement follows the political education of a kid named James Simon, played by Bruce Davidson. Simon is an athlete who gets drawn into the strike gradually. No anarchist, he has only the most humanitarian motives.

SEXUAL PROBLEM

His girlfriend Linda, played with a graceful mixture of coyness and social rhetoric by Kim Darby, has fewer political uncertainties but more sexual problems than Simon.

As she works out her sexual hangups, he develops his social conscience. They both reach the same level of understanding just before the cops beat them up.

Davidson and Darby both give fetching performances with the result that we are angrier that they are getting bloodied than that the university considered its research grants and land desires more important than talking to the students.

The idea, of course, is to present a complicated set of issues in the simplest possible way. What better way than to diminish them before a sentimental and basically adolescent love story?

An accurate movie about the Columbia student strike might have helped explain a particularly important time in recent U.S. history. It could have been dramatic, entertaining, lovely to watch and honestly tragic.

It could have told the truth about why the SDS grew to oppose the university's plans and role in the national defence effort. It could have showed more about how the faculty reacted and examined the university president's relationships with the wealthy trustees who guide Columbia.

This would have been much harder to film, but the result would not have been a cheat

'Family Man' Given Long Prison Term

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Lyle Smith, who was described as "a fairly ordinary family man," was sentenced Monday to up to 15 years in prison for embezzling $585,000 from the state treasury.

Smith earlier pleaded guilty to five counts of grand larceny in connection with the misappropriations which occurred while he was cashier in the state treasurer's office.

The sentence imposed by Superior Court Judge Frank Baker was stiffer than recommendations of the prosecution, defence and a state pre-sentence report. None of the recommendations included prison time.

But Baker said: "This man must pay the penalty if we are to maintain respect for the law as we know it today."

"I feel I have no other choice," Baker said. "I cannot accept the pre-sentence investigation nor can I accept the recommendations of the prosecution or defence."

Baker said the money Smith took "was not that of the state of Washington, but that of the citizens of Washington."

Police Court

Peter MacKenzie, 19, of 548 Niagara, who after a desperate search for work snatched the purse of an 84-year-old woman in Beacon Hill Park, was sentenced to five months in jail Monday.

MacKenzie has pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery.

The woman was not injured in the Nov. 16 incident but the strap of her handbag was broken when MacKenzie took it.

Judge William Ostler noted that the charge seemed worse than the offence but that the Criminal Code stipulated robbery with violence because the purse strap had been broken.

He added, however, that it was a minimal charge under the robbery section of the code.

When he first appeared and pleaded guilty, MacKenzie told Ostler he stole the handbag in desperation because he could not find work, could not draw welfare, and his pregnant wife was threatening to leave if he didn't find some money.

"We couldn't do anything," he said. "We couldn't get any money. She said she'd leave me if I didn't get any money."

MacKenzie, who recently came from Toronto, said he had been "knocking on doors" in Vancouver and Victoria in search of a job.

"I tried all over the Island and I couldn't get one. I went to welfare and they said I wasn't eligible. Manpower said I wouldn't be able to go back to school for at least six months and I might have to wait up to two years. There was nothing else to do."

Ostler said he would recommend that MacKenzie be sent to a forestry camp to serve his sentence.

Gregory Laronde, 19, of Salt Spring Island, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for a year for theft of a car Nov. 12.

Beaumont Hutt, 17, of 3216 Wicklow, was given a suspended sentence, and placed on a six-month probation for shoplifting a chocolate bar.

★ ★ ★

Dennis Todd, 27, of 60 Menzies, charged with four counts of trafficking in marijuana, elected trial by magistrate and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded to Jan. 19.

Harry T. Kelly, 22, of 214 West Burnside, charged with trafficking in marijuana, was committed by Ostler for trial in a higher court.

He elected to be tried by a judge without a jury and waived preliminary hearing. Bail remains at $2,000.

Gary Roesch, 23, of Duncan, charged with trafficking in hashish and trafficking in marijuana, was also committed for trial in a higher court.

He elected to be tried by a judge without a jury and waived preliminary hearing. Bail remained at $2,000.

William R. Graham, 17, of 826 North Park, was sentenced to one year definite and one year indeterminate for trafficking in marijuana.

He sold an ounce of the substance to an undercover agent Sept. 16.

Robert W. Hughes, 18, of no fixed address, was sentenced to four months in jail for theft of a motorcycle and seven days for driving a vehicle without insurance coverage.

Ostler said the sentences were to be served concurrently and he would recommend Hughes be sent to the Boulder Bay camp.

Hughes took the motorcycle July 24 with the intention of testing it before buying it but did not return the machine to its owner and was apprehended in the interior.

Richard R. Lamoureaux, 19, of 507 Simcoe, was fined $200 when he pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He hit a parked car on Cadillac Ave. Nov. 28 and drove off.

His driver's licence was suspended except for business purposes.

Peter Verishine, 32, of 3245 Albion, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident Nov. 28.

He was involved in a collision at Tillicum and Sims and drove away.

Ostler also suspended his licence.

Frances D. Mills, 46, of 1923 Quadra, was fined $250 by Ostler when she pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

A security officer testified that she saw the accused put an item worth $1.49 into a paper bag she was carrying while in the Cunningham drug store, 3104 Shelbourne, Nov. 25.

Vernon F. Kelly, 49, of the Belmont Auto Court, was fined $200 in traffic court Wednesday by Judge Edmond St. Jorre for driving while his blood-alcohol content was over .08 per cent Nov. 1.

The House of Commons had a good chuckle Monday when Solicitor-General George McIlraith announced that fires had been set in the Prince Albert penitentiary right after Calgary Stampeder's loss in the Grey Cup.

However the guffaws stopped as soon as McIlraith answered a question from Frank Howard (NDP-Skeena) by saying that the damage from the fires, set by two prisoners, was estimated at $100,000. An inquiry is being held.

CLAY
... reports sighting UFO

U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has been cleared by a special House of Representatives committee investigating his conduct. The committee has ruled that no grounds exist for impeaching him.

Douglas had been accused of a wide range of misconduct dealing with outside writings and associations.

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland was more surprised than anyone else when advised of a Canadian report that he would try to visit China from Hong Kong during his current tour of the Far East.

Smallwood, who has been visiting Tokyo for talks with Japanese businessmen, told a reporter in Hong Kong, "I have no more knowledge of my going to China than you have of your going."

Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay, also known as Muhammed Ali, was one of a number of New Yorkers who reported spotting unidentified flying objects between 5 a.m. and dawn today.

Clay was out on an early-morning run in preparation for a fight on Dec. 7 with Argentinian Oscar Bonavena when he and a reporter sighted a UFO east of Manhattan. Clay said he sees them often when on such runs.

Comedienne Goldie Hawn has sued a poster maker for $1.5 million because she says a poster of her eating a potato chip constitutes invasion of privacy.

The suit, filed in Los Angeles, says the posters, 10,000 in number, embarrassed and humiliated her and prevented her from endorsing other products because the poster advertised Granny Goose potato chips. The posters carry the caption "Granny Who?"

Lawyer William Kunstler, who defended the "Chicago Seven," has been acquitted of assaulting two leaders of a right-wing group in Toronto.

The prosecution recommended the acquittal, saying there was not enough evidence to support a charge that Kunstler struck the two at a Toronto rally June 22.

"It'll ruin my image as a battler," said Kunstler after the verdict, "but the truth had to come out."

Objective Reached

MOOSE JAW (CP) — This southwestern Saskatchewan community Monday became the sixth city in Canada with a population of more than 30,000 to reach its 1970 United Appeal objective. Receipts on the final day of the campaign reached $90,640 or 100.7 per cent of the target of $90,000.

Safety Check Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — Industry should take another look at proper safety instruction for young workers, Dr. M. M. Cantor, Alberta's chief coroner, said Monday. Dr. Cantor told an inquest into the Sept. 19 death of Lloyd Alton Portsmouth, 19, of Blackfalds, Alta., that of 151 persons killed in field accidents since 1967 almost 25 per cent, or 37, were workers 22 years of age or under.

Involvement Needed

REGINA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien told the Saskatchewan Liberal Association convention Monday that Indian people must become more involved in government decision making. "We have to give back to the Indians an opportunity to run their own affairs," he said. "They want what we want, basically. They want to be equal, economically and socially."

★ ★ ★

Rabies Feared

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta could experience its first major outbreak of rabies in 15 years this winter, says Dr. L. H. Ferris, a fderal department of agriculture veterinarian.

The province has been relatively free of the fatal disease until the last few weeks, he said.

About a month ago a rabid dog was discovered in west-central Alberta and since then the disease has appeared in a few isolated cases in the southeast and central parts of the province.

Problems Not Over

CALGARY (CP) — Prairie farmers should not think their marketing problems are over just because grain sales have increased this year, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, said Monday.

Efforts to plan production should not be relaxed, said the minister without portfolio, as the wheat surplus is expected to be 650 million bushels at the end of the crop year in July.

Escaper Suspected

CALGARY (CP) — A branch of the Toronto Dominion Bank in the southwest section of the city was robbed Monday by a man with a sawed-off rifle.

Police said their prime suspect is Ralph Cochrane, 43, of Vancouver who is also believed to have taken part in a bank robbery Friday in which three escapees from Prince Albert Penitentiary were caught.

2 Claim Prize

EDMONTON (CP) — Dr. Byrnes Fleuty, an Edmonton chiropractor, has filed suit against Eaton's department store and the Can-Am car racing team for an $8,300 car.

Dr. Fleuty says he won the car, a new Stingray convertible, but has not been allowed to take possession of it.

Another Edmonton resident, Mrs. F. C. LaRose, also is claiming the car, which was the prize in a raffle. She was disqualified because her son is a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, the group which sponsored the draw.

Dr. Fleuty says he was given the keys to the car but when he went to Eaton's to collect it, he was refused by W. B. McMullen, treasurer of the racing team, who is holding the car until the rightful owner can be determined.

LARGE HOSTEL IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Youth Hostel Association says a hostel due for completion at the end of January at Locarno Beach in Vancouver will be the largest operated by the association in Canada. Executive director Peter Cox says the building will accommodate 200 members at $2 a night with a maximum stay of four nights.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures climbed to the high thirties along the south coast overnight as a surge of milder Pacific air pushed across Vancouver Island. As a result the snowshowers of Monday evening changed to showers of rain along the coast although the snow persisted inland.

Artic air continues to dominate the central and northern interior of the province with temperatures below zero in the Prince George area. Periods of snow will be general over the interior with occasional rain mixed in the extreme south.

'OH NO' CRIES DISMAYED MAYOR

Plastic Wreath Outrage Inflicted On Victoria—Canada's Holly City

By
CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Plastic imitation holly wreaths are being attached to Victoria's antique lamp standards.

The decision to use plastic holly on the streets of Canada's only holly-growing centre was made Nov. 12 by city council.

But not all members of council were aware of their decision.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said today when told the wreaths wre being installed: "Oh, no. That's news to me. I was under the impression they were repudiated because they were ugly."

Haddock promised to "look into it."

IT'S HARD to believe, but going up in the city of (natural) hanging flower pots are plastic imitation wreaths. City crews were installing them downtown this morning for Christmas.

The wreaths were purchased by the Downtown Victoria Association and are being installed by the city. The city will pay the cost of installation, removal, storage and power.

The wreaths are a out five feet high, three feet wide. Clusters of red plastic apple-sized balls and colored electric bulbs are spaced throughout the plastic imitation holly leaves.

Two members of the local holly growing industry said today they were assured a chance to bid on the decorations by the city when the matter was first raised.

A letter dated July 21 from Mayor Haddock to holly growers' representative John Blinko says: "I'm certain the (finance) committee will review the possibility of incorporating natural holly if they decide to go ahead with the program at all."

But the matter did not go to the finance committee. Instead it went from the downtown association through city manager Dennis Young directly to the council.

A report from Young to the Nov. 12 council, dated Nov. 6, says the downtown group purchased 50 wreaths on the strength that finance committee approved in principle in July.

"The proposal (in July) ran into some criticism inasmuch as the sample decoration utilized artificial holly which was felt inappropriate for this area which produces the bulk of Canada's holly crop. The latter aspect I feel tended to dominate the principle, which was unfortunate because the holly formed a very small part of the total cost of the decoration itself."

Young's recommendation goes on: "The matter to be decided at this time is whether or not the city will participate to the extent of undertaking the installation, removal and storage of fixtures, together with the cost of power."

As the downtown Victoria Association is most anxious to have these fixtures installed as soon as possible after delivery, I am submitting this matter directly to city council rather than through the committee which would necessitate a further two-week delay."

The matter went through council without debate. A motion to accept the wreaths was made by Ald. Harold Olafson and seconded by Ald. Ove Witt.

Young's report was not included in the council meeting agenda distributed to the press.

MMMMMMM GOOD! Stores are piled high with presents for Christmas but if you're eyeing the goodie on the left forget it, she's not for sale. Question is, what manner of creature is it Lynn Peasland of 277 Sims St. finds so irresistible? It's got the nose of a bear, mottled fur of a leopard and the feet of a snowshoe rabbit. Maybe somebody should tell her it's also got the eye of a Don Juan. (Bill Halkett Photo)

Yarrows To Hire 250 Men

Some 250 extra men will be hired by Yarrows Ltd. here to carry out construction of massive ocean-going newsprint barge.

Getting the contract from MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Yarrows has now started construction on the stern section.

The bow section is being built at the sister yard of Burrard Dry Dock in Vancouver.

When both sections are done the bow will be towed here and the two sections joined for completion around mid-March.

$2 MILLION COST

The covered barge, which will cost almost $2 million, is destined for the Atlantic coast and is patterned after three others built on the west coast for MacMillan Bloedel's B.C.-California runs.

Built of steel, the new barge, like her sister ships, the Nanoose Carrier, Nootka Carrier and Nahmint Carrier, will share the honors of being the largest cargo deckhouse barge in the world.

With a capacity of 7,200 tons of newsprint, she'll be 363 feet in length and 82 feet wide. The open cargo space in the interior is a mere eight feet shorter than a football field, totalling 23,000 square feet. Eight regulation-sized tennis courts could be laid out on her cargo deck.

LONG DISTANCE

Destined to carry newsprint from the MacMillan Rothesay Mill at Saint John, N.B. (MacMillan Bloedel holds a majority interest in the mill), she will run between New Brunswick and American eastern ports and may be used for service to the Caribbean area. This would involve distances as great as 2,400 miles.

To accommodate the huge barge, a new loading ramp, costing about $1,160,000, will be built at the mill. Supported on 700 piles, the ramp, to allow for a 29-foot tide variance, will have a grid of 14-inch by 14-inch timbers installed alongside it, on which the barge will sit at low tide. The timbers will be sawn at B.C. lumber mills.

PUSHING NOTCH

The ramp project is expected to provide employment for 50 men.

Designed by Vancouver naval architect Robert Allan, the barge will have one major difference to her sister ships.

There will be a narrow notch in her stern that will allow her to be pushed by tug when approaching such river ports as Baltimore and Philadelphia. When at sea, she will be towed by Canada's most powerful tug, the Irving Birch.

After completion, she will begin work immediately, carrying her first cargo on her maiden voyage via the Panama Canal to Saint John.

Uvic Students Plan Crisis Centre

A group comprised mainly of University of Victoria students plans to set up a crisis phone centre next spring to serve Greater Victoria.

The primary purpose of the around-the-clock phone service, which is called Need, will be to reassure and counsel callers suffering from loneliness, depression, bad trips and other personal problems, said Sylvia Blenkin, a third-year sociology student.

Equally important, however, will be Need's role in supplying information on other voluntary social groups operating in the community.

"Not to criticize the other services," said Miss Blenkin, "but there is a lack of communication, so there should be a central phone number that people can call instead of having to confide in the telephone operator."

She said Need will work with Cool-Aid, Victoria Low-Income Group, Alcoholics Anonymous, Teen Challenge, the Pacific Drug Dependency Centre and others.

Starting in January, Need will have a training program in which volunteers will learn how to talk to callers experiencing some kind of personal crisis.

Miss Blenkin said the service should go into operation next April. Need headquarters will be a room in a church which Cool-Aid plans to buy.

She said the group will need several adult volunteers to complement the large proportion of student volunteers.

Gas, Oil Prices Hiked One Cent by Imperial

Imperial Oil Ltd. today raised the price of gasoline, furnace oil and diesel oil by one cent.

The increase is general in the four western provinces, the Yukon and District of Mackenzie — an even cent in all but the latter where new prices are 1.7 cents a gallon higher.

So far no other major oil company has said it would follow Imperial's lead, but in previous price hikes Imperial has often led the indsutry.

Imperial said it had notified the Prices and Incomes Commission of its action.

"The company not only faces higher labor and materials expenditures, but also the need to maintain and expand capital investment for plants and other facilities," Imperial said.

Prices in eastern Canada will remain steady, having been increased as recently as Oct. [illegible].

A gallon of regular grade gasoline at Imperial's Victoria pumps today was 46.9 cents and 51.9 for premium grade, including taxes.

Domestic furnace oil, with tax, reached 22.6 cents at Imperial dealers.

Woman Charged With Setting Fire

A woman was charged in provincial court this morning with setting fire to certain materials at 709 Linden, and was remanded by Judge William Ostler to Dec. 4 for election.

Mrs. Eileen Hindson was undefended.

Victoria Fire Department responded to an alarm at 2:26 a.m. at 709 Linden and put out spot fires on the carpet in the front hall and a burning steamer trunk.

They report minor damage to the residence.

Arthur Mayse . . .

IT IS NOW DECEMBER, and on the theory that if you can't lick 'em you might as well join 'em, I am prepared to face the fact of Christmas coming.

The sight of a twinkling electric star and light-strings on a Cedar Hill Cross Road house helped bring about the change. So did the season's first carols, loosed by a supermart upon the chilly air.

There's also a fact that you too may have discovered. This is that Christmas shopping has begun in earnest, as a tender instep reminds me. It got tramped on by a large lady who had just been startled into a hasty backward step.

What jolted her was a harmless-looking but arresting novelty on a Toyland counter. It is shaped like an old-fashioned radio—the kind that curved from the sides to make a Gothic arch—and it is of a size to nestle snugly in the hand.

Activate it as this shopper did, and it gives off peal after peal of laughter.

It was still laughing when I limped off with my love to inspect the new crop of Christmas cards, and a small crowd had gathered around its counter.

Later, it occurred to me that one of those gimmicks would fit nicely into the toe of a stocking where groping fingers would trigger it. But that space on the counter had been emptied, and a slightly bemused clerk explained that the merry machines had been snapped up almost as fast as they'd been set out.

"I'm not sure why," he said, "but they just seemed to appeal to people."

A young teacher by the name of Les Ferriday visited a low and modern elementary school in one of our newer suburbs one day last week. There was much about it that he admired, but what impressed him most was its library.

"If my students could see those books," he said, "they'd be so excited it would take me an hour to settle them down."

Les Ferriday is one of a staff that teaches at South Park elementary, a red brick pile across from Beacon Hill entrance on Douglas Street. South Park has seen children come and go for well over 70 years. Today, about 230 boys and girls in grades five through seven attend it.

"They're a good bunch," says Les, who has taught at South Park for the last six years, "and I'll tell you one thing that still surprises me. This is the hunger so many of them have for books."

What I didn't learn until later is that at least half of the books these eager young readers borrow from the limited South Park supply weren't financed from taxpayers' dollars.

Principal Wilfrid J. Orchard, Les Ferriday and other teachers dug into their own pockets to put them on the shelves.

That's good. I think it's a fine thing that a school staff should contribute in this fashion to the expanding of youth's horizon.

But I also feel—and hope you will, too—that we could do worse than give South Park a hand in building up a library of a size to meet its needs.

What I suggest is this:

If you have books that your own children have outgrown and are willing to part with, make a Christmas present of them to the kids of South Park.

These boys and girls range in age from nine to 13 or thereabouts. Their interests are many and varied. They like both fact and fiction. They'll seize on books on how to do things and make things, and come back next time for a sport story or a tale of space-adventure.

If you have a few Nancy Drew books kicking around, there are readers who will pounce on them. The same for series books with boy heroes.

As for delivery, drop them off for me at the Times, and I'll ferry them down to South Park. If that's unhandy, give me a call and I'll see they're picked up.

And this you can be sure of—those books which your own children enjoyed will find any number of new, absorbed readers.

It's the Same Old Crud

In 1911, Victoria residents complained about the pollution of Esquimalt Harbor.

Today, 59 years later, they're still complaining.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald admitted in the Commons Monday that 14 Canadian naval vessels based in Esquimalt are polluting the harbor with untreated sewage.

So what's new?

In the Sept. 17 edition of the Times of 1911, this resolution, drawn up by organizations of the First Congregational Church, stated:

"Resolved that this meeting desires to express its sense of the wrong done to the public of Victoria and vicinity by the flagrant trespass upon the rights of the people by the gross pollution of the waters of Esquimalt harbor by the discharge of crude black oil, and begs to request that the government of British Columbia will prevent any further despoilation of this heritage of the people."

On Monday, replying to questions from David Anderson (L-Esquimalt-Saanich), Macdonald said the vessels at fault were the Qu'Appelle, Yukon, St. Croix, Gatineau, Cape Breton, Columbia, Chaudiere, Cowichan, Miramichi, Fundy, Chignecto, the two gate vessels, Porte de la Reine and Porte Quebec, as well as the training ketch Oriole.

Macdonald added that a comprehensive study is under way with Esquimalt municipality co-operating to find ways to counter the sewage problem.

No Excuse for Avoiding Doctor

The other day a chilling call came to my always-busy phone. I still feel frightened for the girl involved, and wish I could find her to talk things over.

She just got to town last week from Montreal. She has no money and no job prospects. She is the mother of two and is eight months pregnant.

No medical plan. And no eligibility for BCHIS. She is wondering if she can deliver her baby at home. She wasn't going to talk to anybody about it. She thought there might be a law against not seeking medical treatment.

I don't know off hand if there is or not. But that's really neither here nor there. The fact is that whether you've got money or not, and whether you've had twelve children or are a prima para (meaning this is your first baby) you've got to have competent pre-natal care.

Luckily for us in Victoria there is a medical clinic available for free advice and treatment if necessary. And in any case, any doctor I've met can be approached frankly about financial problems.

He may be able to arrange, for example, a shorter hospital period — if consistent with your post-natal condition — than he might usually if there is someone at home to help.

What chills me, though, is not this particular girl, for I think we've suggested an appropriate program for her. It's the other folks who find themselves in similar binds and never hear about the alternatives open to them.

Let me assure you all: Being broke is no reason for avoiding going to a doctor.

A local specialist told me that all physicians anticipate a one third write-off. That is to say, (though mind you, this was before the wide-spread participation in pre-paid medical plans) doctors figured to collect from only two thirds of their patients.

Some of this loss would be from outright bill dodgers who can afford to pay but are just disreputable types. This would be a very small minority, though. Most would be those who would pay if they could, and often do pay, five dollars a year or so until the bill is paid off much later.

My informant's opinion was that a doctor by his Hippocratic oath and as part of his professional responsibilities should treat this group most willingly.

sew simple

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I have been asked to make bridesmaids' dresses out of crepe for a wedding. Although I have done quite a bit of sewing, I haven't worked with crepe. Is there anything special you can add in the way of advice that would be of help?

Also, the mother of the groom wonders if a long-sleeved velvet dress with an empire line, deep "V" in front and back, can be worn with a sable boa at the neckline. Even though this is a stunning outfit, she doesn't want to upstage the bride or her mother. Please advise? —Mrs. L.S.

Dear Mrs. L.S.:

Crepe is a little tricky to work with because of the slippery texture which also stretches if you aren't careful. Many cleaners will not clean a crepe dress that has been underlined if they think the quality of the fabric will stretch. If you are using inexpensive fabric, try making a separate lining instead of treating the two layers of fabric as one. Also, when pressing, do so very lightly, preferably without steam, always on the wrong side of the fabric. Don't destroy the soft look of the fabric by pressing it too hard. A pattern with soft fullness is best for this type of fabric.

When it comes to giving advice on what to wear at a wedding, I must pass! Every part of the country as well as every level of our society has their own idea on what is proper. Too many women try to outshine the bride. For this reason there has been a recent trend to dress the bridesmaids, mother of the bride and mother of the groom in different shades of one color.

For a formal evening wedding, the red velvet gown sounds lovely but because of the color and type of fabric, I don't think the sable boa is necessary. Sometimes there is a fine line between good taste and "trying to steal the show." The boa could be worn after the wedding as a small wrap if necessary. Please remember, this is only my opinion, and it could be debatable.

An old-fashioned revival meeting took place when these Hawaiian girls modelled missionary muus by Malia of Honolulu. The gowns are copies of designs fashioned by the wives of early missionaries to conceal the all-too-apparent beauty of Hawaiian girls.

Hawaiians Revive Muumuus

HONOLULU (CP) — A lot of men have been joking in recent months about "Mother Hubbard fashions" in the new longer lengths, but here in Hawaii it has really happened — the original long look brought to these tropic islands by 19th century missionaries is the new fashion item.

The native word for the Mother Hubbard missionary line was muumuu, and now the Malia of Honolulu fashion house will feature the muus in its collective for spring.

"The timing for the fashion was right, too," said Mary Foster, who heads the Malia house. "We are ready for a revival of Victorian modesty."

Malia's eight muu styles are named for the first missionary wives who arrived in Hawaii in 1820 after a five-month voyage from New England.

Each missionary style combines at least four calico prints plus lace and trim, since, as Mrs. Foster said, "the missionary wives were very frugal in character and certainly would not have thrown away any scraps of material."

So "Mercy," in a leg-of-mutton style, is in a tiny sprigged floral print with its yoke and mutton sleeves in floral stripes, or any other calico combinations and with the tight sleeves below the puffs in two different prints.

"Jerusha" in real life was rather fashionable and so her style is a party princesse, with a deep ruffled yoke and long cuffed and ruffled sleeves. The sleeve ruffles are lined in another color. It's these details that bring the missionary muus into the $40-$50 price range.

Most of the muus have modest high collars and sleeves. But to update some styles Malia took "Elizabeth" out of character in a tunic pants-suit but with the collage of prints.

"Sybil" is also modernized in a sleeveless ankle-length version but with the high collar and deep square front-and-back yoke.

To add to the old-fashioned flavor, Mali calls the calico prints by such reminiscent names as Sunday meeting, Schoolhouse, Bandstand. And the colors are old-fashioned, too, as candy apple, strawberry soda, spearmint, Licorice, peppermint and lilac.

Mary and Bill Foster started Malia 10 years ago with a little plant of 5,000 square feet. Now there are 105 workers in two factories. To capture the Canadian, Australian and South African markets, out-priced by the high import duty from Honolulu, the Fosters have a factory in Hong Kong. Prices from there are practically the same as in Honolulu or the mainland United States. The missionary muus for Canada will be produced in Hong Kong and will be available in the spring.

The Fosters are Americans. Mary was born in Chicago and Bill in Hilo, Hawaii. They met at Stanford University where Mary graduated in journalism and Bill in economics and foreign trade. They have four teen-age children.

One of Malia's several designers is Beverly Stearns, born in Niagara Falls, Ont., and educated in Toronto and Seattle. She and her photographer husband came to Honolulu nearly two years ago.

The missionary muus are only a small group in Malia's spring collection of resort clothes. Included in the line are prints that look like circular lava flows, trailing stylized flowers and floral circles.

Malia also produces two men's lines called First Break and Sandwich the old name for Hawaii Islands. There will be men's missionary shirts, too, but not intended as a his-and-hers idea. They will have different calio tabs and contrast collars and cuffs.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

"I don't need you . . . I just wanted to see how long it would take you to get here in case my set conked out in the middle of '50-Dollar Movie'."

Sleazy Packaging Under Government Fire

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — While most eyes in Canada have been on the violent FLQ anarchists, one cabinet minister has been busy planning a major revolution in the market place of every Canadian community.

He's Ron Basford, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, who already has opened his winter campaign against unfair exploiters with a powerful bill to clean out sleazy packaging and labelling gimmicks.

While that's still going through the parliamentary mill, he's carefully packing some explosive elements into several more legislative bombshells, with short fuses attached.

They'll be detonated about mid-session, after the Christmas holidays, to shake the Combines, Bankruptcy, Small Loans and Interest Acts to their foundations in an effort to make them responsive and relevant to the growing needs of the Canadian public which now spends more than $46 billion annually on goods and services.

Basford argues that reforms are essential if private enterprise is to avoid succumbing to socialism and the packaging and labelling bill currently before Parliament is a measure of his range for searching out new directions.

BASFORD

So many changes are built into the bill that various sections will have to wait months, some even years, for proclamation to permit smooth transition.

One of the immediate impacts will be outlawing of deceptive labels by applying standards of unvarnished disclosure about the size and contents of all products reserved previously only for items regulated by the Food and Drug Act.

A delayed-action benefit of almost equal importance — certainly one that will be noticed more by the ordinary Canadian when it comes — will be the spin-off value of repeating all specifications on a product label in metric terms.

With Britain switching over in February and the U.S. expected to follow within five years, this will give Canadians the learn-as-you-buy lessons to visualize a gram, centimetre, kilo and the rest.

"Learning to think metric will be complete when you describe a beauty queen's measurements as 86-61-86 instead of 34-24-34," quips the minister.

But the bill is not indulgent towards merchandisers who throw deceptive curves at the consumer and no other statute on the continent approaches the rigor of a section which would prohibit large empty spaces within a package as a slack-filling dodge to fool the trusting.

And other sections will give consumers a statutory right to challenge confusing proliferation of package shapes or sizes in any class of products, with the cabinet empowered to standardize and simplify them if it is convinced confusion could be eliminated.

"This principle has been market-tested, so to speak, by regulations on dairy products under which you buy butter in standard packages of quarter, half or one pound and not a bewildering variety of ounces and milk in pints, quarts and gallons of Imperial measure.

As for the Combines Act, after 40 years of increasing ineffectiveness, it is scheduled for fundamental overhaul — possibly even replacement by a complete new bill — early in the New Year.

"This revision (will be) designed to expose the market to greater competitive forces and thereby further economic efficiency and serve true consumer interests," the minister told a little-noted world conference on consumer organizations in Austria last summer.

"Included will be improved laws relating to deceptive, misleading and untrue advertising and a whole list of unfair and anti-consumer trade practices."

For the past year he's conducted a personal education campaign for businessmen nervous about his plans by emphasing that "there is no long-term profit in any economic system that allows money to be spent foolishly, or by deception or under non-competitive conditions."

So a stronger, bigger and finer-meshed net can be expected in the legislation to catch and haul before the courts businessmen who combine to use misleading advertising, price fixing, resale price maintenance, allocation of markets or collusion to freeze out new competition.

Soviet System Could Work Here

OTTAWA (CP) — Elements of the Soviet Union's child care system, including overnight and weekly care and preventive health measures, could easily be adopted in Canada, Dorothea Teakles says.

Mrs. Teakles recently returned from a three-month survey of child care centres in the Soviet Union, Finland and Sweden.

Her trip involved a continuation of her studies of the Russian language as well as a study of day care centres, a service which she performed for the International Council of Women, of which she is a member.

In a report on that trip, she said Soviet day care centres aren't free or compulsory but they do come under the federal education department.

The main goals are fostering good health habits, teaching children that they are units in a collective society, and emphasis on the fundamental Soviet assumption that personal gain is secondary to the common good.

Though Mrs. Teakles said she was concerned about the Soviet emphasis on group activity, she was impressed by the childrens' health and did not see one unhealthy-looking child in the USSR.

She attributed much of this to the Soviet system of preventive hospitals.

Some centres took weekly or even annual boarders, plus provision for family emergencies. However day care was not universal. In large cities about 70 per cent of the people could use day care services but in smaller cities it averages about 20 per cent.

Living space is cramped and food is plentiful, but queues often develop from poor distribution and uncertain supply, Mrs. Teakles said. Two hot meals and an afternoon snack are served.

Each group has two teachers and two nurses who alternate six-hour shifts. Teachers, selected for ability with children, are usually trained for a year. Directors have five years of training. Centres also have visiting dentists.

The day's routine includes play, nature periods, music and dancing. Children's books are plentiful.

Mrs. Teakles visited centres in Moscow and Stalingrad and in Helsinki, Finland, she saw a department store day centre. She also visited one of Helsinki's eight homes for unwed mothers, which are financially supplemented by the city if their clients cannot pay.

In Sweden she saw three types of centres expected this year to handle more than 93,000 children for full-time working mothers and part-time working mothers.

"It suddenly occurred to me. These are the days we'll be looking back upon someday as 'the good old days'."

Bacon Apple Pie

By HILDA BEASTALL

The versatile apple is easily the favorite fruit of British Columbia homemakers. It fits into main courses, vegetable salads, baked desserts, fruit salads, as a fruit drink or as just plain apple to eat raw. And apples are available in the stores from early summer until the last of the storage varieties are finished in spring.

An unusual addition to apple pie turned up the other day. We have used apple sauce or baked apples with roast pork or pork chops, but small chunks of fat pork inside an apple pie was a new idea for the recipe files. The idea apparently originated in the farming districts of the state of Maine.

I tried it with slices of fat bacon cut into small pieces and fried until brown and crisp but not burned.

Line the pie plate with pastry and cover with peeled and sliced apples. Mix a half cup of brown sugar with a quarter teaspoon of combined cinnamon and nutmeg and sprinkle over the apples, followed by two teaspoons of lemon juice over all.

On top of this put the layer of bacon pieces with about one tablespoon of the liquid fat.

Add the top crust, seal the edges and prick over the top.

Brown lightly first in a hot oven around 400 for 10 minutes, then cook for about 30 minutes at 350 so that both bottom pastry and the apples are thoroughly done.

This unusual pie comes out as something speical for Sunday night supper, following a tasty cottage cheese, tomato and watercress salad.

For breakfast with bacon or sausages, try dropping in slices of unpeeled apples into the pan with the bacon or sausage is about half cooked. The hot fat will make them almost transparent in a few minutes.

As well as adding a surprise note to the breakfast plate, the apples get in their good work of aiding digestion of the pork (bacon or sausage).

For salads these apples are finely diced and sprinkled at once with lemon juice to prevent discoloration, and a very little brown sugar. Mix with an equal quantity of chopped watercress or the landcress grown from seed under the name of American cress.

Finely slivered celery with sliced apple and shredded cabbage in equal quantities, is an old favorite when a few chopped walnuts and raisins are scattered over the top. Use your favorite salad dressing. A simple plain one of sour cream mixed with a teaspoon of crumbled Danish blue cheese will meet any standard of taste.

APPLE AND SMOKED BACON CASSEROLE

Apple and Bacon Cooked in a Skillet

Here's a perfect dish for those busy winter weekends when you want to serve a good, hot meal with plenty of flavour appeal — with a minimum of time and effort.

It has a hearty, robust flavor that's distinctively Canadian.

It can be prepared in a very short time and you can do it all in the same skillet, which saves you a lot of clean-up chores.

APPLE AND SMOKED BACON CASSEROLE

4 large apples, unpeeled, cored and cut in ½" thick rings.
⅔ tsp. butter
1 lb. smoked or back bacon, cut in ⅛" slices
1 large onion, cut in rings
½ green pepper, sliced in ⅛" rings
2 tbsp. apple juice
2 tbsp. grated parsley

Melt 2 tbsp. butter in heavy skillet, add the bacon slices. Fry 5-10 min. or until lightly browned. Remove and drain on paper towelling.

Fry the onion rings and green pepper rings in remaining fat in skillet; add additional 1 tbsp. butter if necessary. When onions are starting to be transparent, add the apple rings. Simmer over heat 5 to 10 min.; shake the skillet gently to prevent apples from sticking. When apples are sufficiently cooked to let a knife pierce easily through them return bacon to the skillet and add apple juice.

Cover the pan and simmer additional 5 minutes or until bacon is heated through.

Garnish with chopped parsley.

Serves six.

Guilty Feelings Improve Your Looks Advises Parisian Fashion Expert

OTTAWA (CP) — It isn't the length of an outfit that counts, it's the price.

And the price should be just a little bit more than you can afford to make you feel deliciously guilty, confident and fascinating to men, says Mme. Ginette Spanier, director of the high fashion House of Balmain in Paris.

Speaking recently here, Mme. Spanier, wearing a beautifully fitted green suit with a skirt just below the knee, said that during her two weeks in North America, she had been bombarded with questions about "this business of the midi."

She advised the 750 women at the meeting not to let anyone bully them in the matter of fashion. "Have any length you like.

"I think we want to fascinate men, but as they don't notice what we have on, I think it's silly to spend a lot of money to please them. I think we dress for ourselves.

"For a dress to do a great deal for you, it's got to be a little more expensive than you can afford and make you feel a little bit guilty."

A native of England who has lived for years in France, Mme. Spanier said she personally finds it "jolly difficult" to draw an exact line between right and wrong.

"And if you're going to bring it to the hemline, I think that's madness. The attractive girls get away with whatever hemline they choose."

She did point out, however, that the dictates of classical high fashion had brought down hemlines to cover the knees six months before.

Mme. Spanier started working for Pierre Balmain in 1947 when she went to help a relative select a dress from his collection and was picked out because she was bossy to the saleswoman.

Now she oversees a fashion house which each day shows a collection of 150 outfits except when the collections are being prepared twice a year — the summer one at the end of January and the winter one at the end of July.

"In our firm, 350 women are shut up in the basement. It is always overheated and this always leads to wild hysteria and a great deal of crying," she said matter-of-factly.

Another customer was sexy film star Brigitte Bardot. Although the pouty blonde "hates our kind of clothes," Mme. Spanier said, she wanted something special for presentation to Queen Elizabeth.

But the actress, who likes a generous display of bosom, was upset when Mme. Spanier insisted she cover up for royalty.

So a compromise was arranged and Miss Bardot, wearing a dress with a high neckline, demurely made her curtsy to the Queen. Once out of the reception, however, she ripped off a dickey which cleverly covered a low decolletage, and then met the photographers.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks

While shepherds watched their flocks by night,
All seated on the ground,
The Angel of the Lord came down,
And glory shone around.

"Fear not," said he, for mighty dread
Had seized their troubled mind;
"Glad tidings of great joy I bring
To you and all mankind.

"To you, in David's town, this day
Is born of David's line
A Saviour, who is Christ the Lord;
And this shall be the sign.

"The heavenly Babe you there shall find
To human view displayed,
All meanly wrapped in swathing bands,
And in a manger laid."

Thus spake the seraph; and forthwith
Appeared a shining throng
Of angels, praising God, who thus Addressed their joyful song:
"All glory be to God on high,
And to the earth be peace:
Goodwill henceforth, from heaven to men
Begin and never cease."

Hark, the Herald Angels Sing

Hark! The herald angel sing,
"Glory to the newborn King,
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled."
Joyful, all ye nations rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With angelic hosts proclaim,
"Christ is born in Bethlehem."

Refrain

Hark! The herald angels sing,
"Glory to the newborn King."
Christ, by highest heaven adored,
Christ, the everlasting Lord;
Late in time behold Him come
Offspring of a Virgin's womb.
Veiled in flesh the Godhead see;
Hail the incarnate Deity.
Pleased as man with man to dwell,
Jesus, our Emmanuel.

Hail the heaven-born Prince of Peace
Hail the Sun of Righteousness.
Light and life to all He brings,
Risen with healing in His wings.
Mild He lays His glory by,
Born that man no more may die,
Born to raise the sons of earth,
Born to give them second birth.

Angels From the Realms of Glory

Angels from the realms of glory,
Wing your flight o'er all the earth;
Ye who sang creation's story
Now proclaim Messiah's birth;
Come and worship,
Worship Christ, the newborn King.

Shepherds in the field abiding,
Watching o'er your flocks by night,
God with man is now residing,
Yonder shines the infant light;
Come and worship,
Worship Christ, the newborn King.

Sages, leave your contemplations,
Brighter visions beam afar;
Seek the great desire of nations,
Ye have seen His natal star;
Come and worship,
Worship Christ, the newborn King.

Saints before the altar bending,
Watching long in hope and fear,
Suddenly the Lord descending,
In His temple shall appear:
Come and worship,
Worship Christ, the newborn King.

Adeste Fidelis

Adeste Fidelis
Laeti, triumphantes;
Venite, venite in Bethlehem;
Natum videte
Regum angelorum.

Refrain

Venite adoremus, venite adoremus.
Venite adoremus Dominum.
Deum de Deo,
Lumen de lumine
Gestant puellae viscera;
Deum verum,
Genitum non factum,
Centet nunc Io
Chorus angelorum,
Cantet nunc aula coelestium;
Gloria,
In excelsis Deo!
Ergo qui natus
Die hodierna.
Verbum caro factum.
Patris aeterni,
Jesus, tibi sit gloria;

It Came Upon the Midnight Clear

It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold;
"Peace on the earth, goodwill to men
From heaven's all gracious King."
The world in solemn silence lay
To hear the angels sing.
Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurled;
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lonely plains
And ever o'er its Babel-sounds
The blessed angels sing.

Yet with the woes of sin and strife
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel-strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And men, at war with men, hear not
The words of peace they bring:
O hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing.

And ye, beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low,
Who toil along the arduous way
With painful steps and slow;
Look now, for glad and joyous hours
God's messengers will bring:
O rest beside the weary road
And hear the angels sing.
For lo! The days are hastening on

By prophet-bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes around the age of gold;
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world send back the song
Which now the angels sing.

SONGS and CAROLS

Silent Night

Silent night! Holy night!
All is calm, all is bright;
Round yon virgin mother and child
Holy Infant so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace.

Silent night! Holy night!
Shepherds quake at the sight!
Glories stream from heaven afar.
Heavenly hosts sing Alleluia.
Christ, the Saviour, is born!
Christ, the Saviour is born!

Silent night! Holy night!
Son of God, love's pure light
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth,
Jesus, Lord at Thy birth.

The First Nowel

The first Nowel the angels did say,
Was to certain poor shepherds in fields as they lay;
In fields where they lay keeping their sheep,
On a cold winter's night, that was so deep.

Refrain:

Nowel, Nowel, Nowel, Nowel,
Born is the King of Israel.

They looked up and saw a star
Shining in the East beyond them far,
And to the earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night.

And by the light of that same star
Three wise men came from country far;
To seek for a King was their intent,
And to follow the star wherever it went.

This star drew nigh to the northwest,
O'er Bethlehem it took its rest,
And there it did both stop and stay
Right over the place where Jesus lay.

Then entered in those wise men three
Full reverently upon their knee,
And offered there in his presence
Their gold and myrrh and frankincense.

Then let us all with one accord
Sing praises to our heavenly lord;
That hath made heaven and earth of nought,
And with His blood mankind hath bought.

O Come, All Ye Faithful

O come all ye faithful,
Joyful and triumphant,
Come ye, O come ye to Bethlehem;
Come and behold Him,
Born the King of Angels:

Refrain:

O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
Christ the Lord.

True God of true God,
Light of light eternal,
Lo, He abhors not the Virgin's womb,
Son of the Father,
Begotten, not created.

Sing choirs of angels,
Sing in exultation,
Sing, all yet citizens of heaven above,
Sing, ye, all glory
To God in the highest!

Yea, Lord we hail Thee,
Born this happy morning;
Jesus, to Thee be glory given,
Word of the Father,
Now in flesh appearing.

Away in a Manger

Away in a manger, no crib for a bed,
The little Lord Jesus laid down his sweet head;
The stars in the bright sky looked down where He lay,
The little Lord Jesus, asleep on the hay.
The cattle are lowing, the Baby awakes,
But little Lord Jesus no crying He makes;
I love Thee, Lord Jesus; look down from the sky,
And stay by my side until morning is nigh.
Be near me, Lord Jesus, I ask Thee to stay
Close by me forever and love me, I pray;
Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care,
And fit us for heaven to live with Thee there.

O Little Town of Bethlehem

O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie,
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark street shineth
The everlasting light,
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight.
For Christ is born of Mary;
And, gather'd all above
While mortals sleep, the angels keep
Their watch of wandering love.
O morning stars, together
Proclaim the holy birth
And praises sing of God the King,
And peace to men on earth.
How silently, how silently
The wondrous gift is given,
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
No ear may hear His coming,
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive him still
The dear Christ enters in.
O Holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us, we pray;
Cast out our sin and enter in;
Be born in us today.
We hear the Christmas angels
The great glad tidings tell;
O come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord, Emmanuel.

Christians, Awake!

Christians, awake, salute the happy morn
Whereon the Saviour of the world was born;
Rise to adore the mystery of love,
Which hosts of angels chanted from above
With them the joyful tidings first begun.
Of God incarnate and the Virgin's Son.
Then to the watchful shepherds it was told,
Who heard the angelic herald's voice,
"Behold,
"I bring good tidings of a Saviour's birth!
"To you and all the nations upon the earth!
"This day hath God fulfill'd His promised word;
"This day is born a Saviour, Christ the Lord."
To Bethl'hem straight the enlightened shepherds ran,
To see the wonders God had wrought for man;
Then to their flocks, still praising God, return,
And their glad hearts with holy rapture burn;
To all the joyful tidings they proclaim—
The first apostles of the Saviour's name.
Oh, may we keep and ponder in our mind
God's wondrous love in saving lost mankind;
Trace we the Babe, who has retrieved our loss,
From the poor manger to the bitter cross:
Tread in His steps, assisted by His grace,
Till man's first heavenly state again takes place.
Then may we hope the angelic hosts among,
To join, redeemed, a glad, triumphant throng;
He that was born upon this joyful day
Around us all His glory shall display.
Saved by His love, incessant we shall sing
Eternal praise to heaven's almighty King.

Brightest and Best

Brightest and best of the sons of the morning,
Dawn on our darkness and lend us Thine aid!
Star of the East, horizon adorning,
Guide us where our infant Redeemer is laid.
Cold on His cradle the dewdrops are shining,
Low lies His head with the beasts of the stall;
Angels adore Him in slumber reclining—
Maker and Monarch and Saviour of all!
Say, shall we yield Him, in costly devotion
Odors of Edom and offerings divine?
Gems of the mountains and pearls of the ocean,
Myrrh from the forest and gold from the mine?
Vainly we offer each ample oblation,
Vainly with gifts would his favor secure
Richer by far is the heart's adoration;
Dearer to God are the prayers of the poor.
Brightest and best of the sons of the morning,
Dawn on our darkness and lend us Thine aid!
Star of the East, the horizon adorning,
Guide where our infant Redeemer is laid!

What Child Is This?

What child is this, laid to rest
On Mary's lap is sleeping?
Whom angels greet with anthems sweet
While shepherds watch are keeping.

Refrain:

This, this is Christ the King
Whom Shepherds guard and angels sing,
Haste, haste to bring him in
The Babe, the son of Mary.

Why lies He in such mean estate
Where ox and ass are feeding?
Good Christian, fear for sinners here
The silent word is pleading.

So bring him incense, gold and myrrh,
Come peasant, king and own him,
The King of Kings salvation brings
Let loving hearts enthrone him.

—9—

We Three Kings

We three kings of Orient are Bearing gifts; we traverse afar
Field and fountain, moor and mountain
Following younder star.

Refrain

O star of wonder, star of night,
Star with royal beauty bright,
Westward leading, still proceeding,
Guide us to the perfect light.

Solo (Melchoir)

Born a King of Bethlehem's plain,
Gold I bring to Crown Him again,
King forever, ceasing never,
Over us all to reign.

Solo (Casper)

Frankincense to offer have I,
Incense owns a Deity nigh;
Prayer and Praising, all men raising,
Worship Him, God most high.

Solo (Balthazar)

Myrrh is mine; its bitter perfume
Breathes a life of gathering gloom;
Sorrowing, sighing, bleeding, dying,
Sealed in the stone-cold tomb,

Glorious now behold Him arise,
King and God and Sacrifice;
Alleluia, alleluia,
Earth to heaven replies.

—10—

Infant Holy

Infant holy, infant lowly,
For His bed, a cattle stall;
Oxen lowing, little knowing
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.
Swift are winging, angels singing,
Nowels ringing, tidings bringing,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

Flocks were sleeping shepherds keeping
Vigil till the morning new
Saw the glory, heard the story,
Tidings of a gospel true.
Thus rejoicing, free from sorrow,
Praises voicing, greet the morrow,
Christ the Babe is Lord of all.

—11—

God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen

God rest you merry, gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
Remember Christ your Saviour
Was born upon this day,
To save us all from Satan's power
When we were gone astray.

Refrain:

O tidings of comfort and joy, comfort and joy,
O tidings of comfort and joy.

In Bethlehem, in Jewry,
This blessed Babe was born,
And laid within a manger
Upon this blessed morn;
The which His mother Mary
Did nothing take in scorn.

From God our Heav'nly Father,
A blessed angel came,
And unto certain shepherds
Brought tidings of the same;
How that in Bethlehem was born
The Son of God by name.

"Fear not then," said the angel,
"Let nothing you affright,
This day is born a Saviour
Of a pure Virgin bright,
To free all those who trust in Him,
From Satan's power and might."

The shepherds, at those tidings,
Rejoiced much in mind,
And left their flocks a-feeding
In tempest, storm and wind:
And went to Bethlehem straightway
The Son of God to find.

And when they came to Bethlehem,
Where our dear Saviour lay,
They found Him in a manger,
Where oxen feed on hay;
His mother, Mary, kneeling down,
Unto the Lord did pray.

Now to the Lord sing praises,
All you within this place,
And with true love and brotherhood
Each other now embrace;
This holy tide of Christmas
All other doth efface.

White Christmas

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
Just like the ones I used to know
Where the tree tops glisten
And children listen to hear sleigh bells in the snow.
I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
With ev'ry Christmas card I write
"May your days be merry and bright
And may all your Christmases be white."

Jingle Bells

'Dashing thro' the snow,
In a one-horse open sleigh;
O'er the fields we go,
Laughing all the way;
Bells on bobtail ring,
Making spirits bright;
What fun it is to ride and sing a sleighing song tonight!

Chorus:

Jingle bells, jingle bells,
Jingle all the way!
Oh, what fun it is to ride,
In a one-horse open sleigh!
A day or two ago,
I thought I'd take a ride;
And soon Miss Fannie Bright was seated by my side;
The horse was lean and lank,
Misfortune seem'd his lot,
He got into a drifted bank and then we got upsot!
Now the ground is white,
Go it while you're young;
Take the girls tonight
And sing this sleighing song;
Just get a bobtail'd nag,
Two-forty for his speed,
Then hitch him to an open sleigh and crack! you'll take the lead.

Good King Wenceslas

Good King Wenceslas looked out
On the Feast of Stephen.
When the snow lay round about,
Deep and crisp and even;
Brightly shone the moon that night,
Tho' the frost was cruel,
When a poor man came in sight,
Gath'ring winter fuel.
"Hither, page and stand by me,
If you know'st it, telling,
Yonder peasant, who is he?
Where and what his dwelling?"
"Sire, he lives a good league hence,
Underneath the mountain;
Right against the forest fence,
By St. Agnes' fountain."
"Bring me flesh and bring me wine,
Bring me pine logs hither;
Thou and I will see him dine,
When we bear him thither."
Page and monarch forth they went,
Forth they went together,
Through the rude wind's wild lament,
And the bitter weather.
"Sir, the night is darker now,
And the wind blows stronger;
Fails my heart, I know not how,
I can go no longer."
"Mark my footsteps, good my page;
Tread thou in them boldly;
Thou shalt find the winter's rage
Freeze they blood less coldly."

A Visit From St. Nicholas

(Tune—Chopsticks)

(1st Strain)

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care
In the hope that St. Nicholas soon would be there.

(2nd Strain)

When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter
When what to my wondering eyes should appear
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer.

With a little old driver so lively and quick
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick,
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came
And he whistled and shouted and called them by name.

"Now Dasher! Now Dancer! Now Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! On Cupid! On Donner and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall,
Now dash away, dash away, dash away all!"

And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head and was turning around
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.

His eyes how they twinkled! His dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry.
He was chubby and plump—a right jolly old elf,
And I laughed when I saw him in spite of myself.

He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work
And filled all the stockings, then turned with a jerk,
And laying a finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.

He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle.
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight:
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night."

Here We Come A-Wassailing

Here we come a-wassailing among the leaves so green;
Here we come a-wandering, so fair to be seen.

Refrain

Love and joy come to you and to you our wassail, too,
And God bless you and send you a Happy New Year!
We are not daily beggars that beg from door to door;
But we are neighbor's children whom you have seen before.
We have little purses made of matching leather skin;
We want a little sixpence to line it Well within.
God bless the master of this house, likewise the mistress, too!
And all the little children that round the table go.

Santa Claus Is Coming To Town

Oh, you'd better not pout,
Better not cry,
Better not shout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He's making a list,
Checking it twice,
Going to find out
Who's naughty or nice,
Santa Claus is coming to town.

He sees you when you're sleeping,
He knows if you're awake,
He knows if you've been bad or good,
So be good—for goodness sake!

Oh, you'd better watch out,
Better not cry,
Better not pout,
I'm telling you why,
Santa Clause is coming to town.

Outdoor Mug-Up Pays Off

By HILDA BEASTALL

When the scurry of December preparations gets too pressing take a flask of hot coffee and a mug out to the garden seat. With the quiet of the outdoors and the warmth of the coffee will come relaxation and the inclination to look around for material suitable for using as Christmas decorations indoors. It's too early to gather yet, unless you have special need for early parties. But it pays to know what will be available and how it will last when cut.

Hilda

Conifer boughs of large size dry out quickly indoors, for their wood is slow growing and becomes too hard to take in any quantity of water.

However, treat it as recommended for Christmas trees — make two-inch deep gashes in the base of each branch and stand in deep, warm water in a cool place for several hours before finally arranging.

The branches will not dry out so quickly after this, but still need to have the stems kept in water.

Small twiggy pieces will take in water more readily than older woody branches. Often a large arrangement is composed by using a wide container and massing small pieces, each piece touching water.

Height is achieved by a tall slender container standing in the larger bowl, with drooping boughs of (perhaps) red berries meeting the conifer below. If the container is not exactly suitable, it may easily be camouflaged by a circular piece of bark, a rough textured rock or a piece of weathered wood.

While in the garden, notice some of the evergreen cotoneasters. There's a tiny leaved evergreen with large ruby berries (the variety is aptly called Ruby) sprays of which look very well laid flat on a table cloth for a centerpiece just for the duration of a meal.

Notice also the Viburnum tinus (Laurustinus) with its evergreen leaves and clusters of coral flower buds.

If the stem ends are well smashed for an inch before being put into deep water, this will last for several days indoors. Nothing seems to be needed with it, for it is a bouquet by itself.

One warning about Laurustinus indoors, it acquires a doggy odor when a hard frost is experienced before bringing it in.

If native woodland is part of your property, explore for Oregon-grape, salal, ferns and similar treasures.

Experiment with these to find out how long they will last in your house conditions. Ferns will be the shortest time fresh. After gathering, they should be laid flat on wet newspaper and covered with more wet newspaper sheets.

Some short ferns are lovely if set into damp moss on a shallow tray.

It pays to relax in December. You will come up with good ideas to use for the holidays.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

In the deal presented today, which came up in a rubber-bridge game, our South declarer found himself in the optimistic contract of seven hearts. He fulfilled this contract by means of a simple, neat exhibition of technique. And if it had turned out that technique had failed him, he would have had available, as a last resort, a 50-50 finesse.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

Opening lead: Four of ♡.

West made a good choice when he opened a trump. Had he led a spade, the unbid suit, declarer would have had 13 top tricks.

After winning the trump lead with the board's eight-spot, a club was led, South trumping with his ace. The seven of trumps was returned to the board's nine, after which a second club lead was ruffed.

Next came the ace of diamonds, and this was followed by the queen of diamonds, which was overtaken by dummy's king. South noted with satisfaction that both West and East followed to the two diamond leads, which mean that the five outstanding diamonds were divided 3-2.

A third club was now ruffed in the closed hand. The 10 of diamonds was then overtaken by the board's jack, gathering in the last outstanding diamond en route. The jack of clubs was played next. East perforce covered with the ace, and South ruffed Dummy's king of clubs had just become the highest (and only) club left in the deck.

South now led his four of diamonds, and overtook it with the board's five-spot. On the king of clubs, South discarded his queen of spades. The rest of the tricks belonged to him.

Had the ace of clubs not dropped on the fourth club lead, South would have had no choice but to lead a spade off dummy and finesse his queen. Admittedly, declarer was very lucky in finding the adversely held clubs divided as they were, but their testing was "on the house."

Declarer played the hand well. He needed five entries to dummy, to ruff four clubs and then get there a fifth time to cash the to-be-established king of clubs. To obtain the five entries, he had to overtake the diamond queen with the king, the diamond 10 with the jack, and the diamond four with the fivespot. He fully deserved his victory.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

CABLEVISION 10 PROGRAMS. 5 p.m., Ladies First; 6 p.m., Project Travel, Blue Water Holiday; 6:30 p.m., You and the Law; 7 p.m., Victoria Outdoorsmen, Fishing Edition; 7:30 p.m., B.C. Tel Science Series, Gateways to the Mind.

NANCY. 6 p.m., Channel 2. The Busiest Bride in the World. Adam, in a whirlwind of official functions, gets the full meaning of being married to the president's daughter. He hasn't gained a bride . . . he's gained a globe-trotting dignitary.

THE MOD SQUAD. 7:30 p.m., Channels 4 and 8. The ABC network seems to be going hot and heavy for ghostly chillers, including its regular series. The Squad gets involved in such a story tonight, not really a ghost story, but one eerie enough to produce some similar reactions. Peggy Lipton is the natural choice for the lion's share and Vincent Price, Hollywood's answer to Edgar Allen Poe, is the guest star. He is supposedly dead, and has been for over 20 years. When there are suspicions that he is still alive, Peggy goes to find the truth: Is he really dead?

JULIA. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. There's a great lesson to be learned from this poignant episode, specially for fathers of young boys. Earl Waggerdorn and Corey have school assignments to build water wells. Steve can't be helpful enough to Corey and Earl's father has taken over his project, making his son a silent partner. Both boys appreciate the help despite a deep disappointment. They wanted to do their work themselves.

THE MOVIE OF THE WEEK. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. "Run, Simon, Run." Burt Reynolds was made for strong but sensitive Indian roles like this one. He is a Papago Indian who served a ten-year sentence for killing his brother. Every day has been spent waiting for his release to get vengeance on the real killer, in traditional Indian fashion. But on his release, he finds the people of his reservation subdued by modern reservation life and laws. His passion to bring them back to their pride and determination conflicts with the white Indian agent, a lovely lady he falls for. The late Inger Stevens is featured.

STOREFRONT LAWYERS. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Shadows of Doubt. An accusation from the defendant in a robbery case shakes the storefront office. The accused, when found guilty, demands a motion for mistrial, charging that David Hanson asked $2,500 to arrange a suspended sentence with the district attorney's office.

JOHNNY CASH. 9 p.m., Channel 8. Singers Merle Haggard, Anne Murray and Home and Jethro are the special guests. Anne sings her million-seller Snowbird, Merle sings Sidewalks of Chicago and Johnny sings Put Your Hand in the Hand of Jesus and Twenty-Five Minutes to Go.

FIRST TUESDAY. 9 p.m., Channel 5. Two of the principle features tonight are from opposite sides of the world: Taiwan to the University of Notre Dame. The propaganda battle between Communist China and the Republic of China on Formosa is spotlighted, sometimes looking like a creation of Gilbert and Sullivan were not its history and future consequences so deadly serious. Propaganda efforts across the small channel separating the two nations takes every form from sophisticated leaflet bombing to literally shouting across the ways. Despite the topicality of the college football situation, the Notre Dame story is told in terms of contemporary students rather than athletes. Notre Dame is depicted as another student body recognizing the needs for change in modern society and working toward these ends. The difference is the abhorrence of violence and the determination to "change" with its use, in any form. Father Theodore M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame president, is among the guests.

TO ROME WITH LOVE. 9:30 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. Visitors from back home make some mighty big changes in the lives of the Endicott family. There's a lively widow from Illinois who turns grandpa on, and a former Iowa neighbor has Alison doing the short-berth bit. Alison remembers her neighbor real well, but she never experienced the heady feeling strolling the Iowa cornfields that she feels with him as they lightly trip down the Via Veneto.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Today, most people know that an antibiotic is a drug which cures by killing the germs that are producing an infection of some kind. The antibiotic drugs, of which penicillin is one, have in some cases worked miracles—for example, in the treatment of penumonia and other serious infections such as those of the kidney or bladder.

One problem with strong drugs like antibiotics is that they can cause unpleasant side-effects in some sensitive people, and cannot be used for too long without doing some harm. I have known several men and women who nearly died after taking penicillin a second time after they had had an allergic reaction to it. Anyone who on one occasion nearly lost his life after being given some penicillin, should record this on a card and carry it in his pocket so that in case of emergency, he will not be inadvertently given the drug by a doctor who does not know him.

It is sad to see so many people risking their lives because they took penicillin for a mild cold. Actually, penicillin is not supposed to have any effect on a cold because colds are due primarily to viruses, and unfortunately, the ordinary antibiotic does not kill viruses. We doctors are still looking forward to the day when antiviral drugs will be made and easily purchased in a drugstore.

It is sad that largely because there is such faith in penicillin, when a person is coming down with a bad cold and sends for his doctor, he expects to get a "shot" of penicillin. If the doctor does not give it, the patient would probably feel that he is not getting good and competent medical care. Actually, when the doctor gives the fully expected dose of penicillin, he knows that it will have no effect on the cold; its only good effect could come if the cold should turn into a pneumonia, due not to the original virus, but to a germ.

Marquardt Trial On Fraud Opens

Siegfried Marquardt, 38, of 2841 Sea View Road, Saanich, pleaded not guilty Monday in Victoria county court to a 12-count charge of fraud involving $22,789.

He is being tried by Judge M. T. Drake without a jury.

Crown prosecutor Brian Smith told court Marquardt was involved with lawyer David Hummel and the late William Osland in a 1966 scheme to convert an old U.S. navy ship into a family entertainment centre.

Smith said the 12 counts were divided into three sections.

In several Marquardt is alleged to have obtained labor and materials, furniture and personal items for his own house. The crown contends money for these was diverted from V.I. Shipyards, the firm converting the navy ship.

Another count involves repayment of part of a bank homeowner's loan for $4,000.

The final count, Smith said, involves a cheque for $15,500 in United States funds. This cheque, the crown alleges, was used to purchase a money order which was deposited to the account of one of the companies involved in the conversion project, Frisco Bay Consultants, Ltd.

Smith said the crown alleges the money was later withdrawn and deposited in Victoria.

FURNITURE

John Van Wees, co-owner of a Fort Street antique shop, testified Marquardt bought two period-piece tables from him and paid with a $630 cheque which bore the designation "office furniture, M.S. Emery."

Robert H. Davies, proprietor of Davies Electric, testified about a $122 cheque he was paid for electrical work at Marquardt's house.

Walter Kutzner told about a cheque paid to him for gardening duties.

The trial is expected to continue for two weeks or more.

Hold Line, Farmers Asked

B.C. farmers will be asked to consider limiting their price increase to less than 3.5 per cent in the year ahead as a means of fighting inflation, a farmers' organization told the provincial cabinet Monday.

The proposal is expected to be debated at the B.C. Federation of Agriculture convention later this week in New Westminster.

The Farmers' Institute Advisory Board told the cabinet it has dedicated itself to holding price increases within the limit of the increase in the gross national product.

But Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford pointed out later that many B.C. farmers haven't had as much as a 3 per cent increase in years and some are getting less for their produce than they would have got before the turn of the century.

The institute, which Shelford said represents a "good segment of agriculture" in B.C. urged labor, management and government to join it in a fight against inflation.

Building Slump Continues

Permits worth $474,677 were issued compared with $831,262 in the same month last year.

In the first 11 months, permits worth $12.1 million were issued against $19.6 million in the same period last year.

Residential construction also contined its long decline with permits issued for 14 houses in November compared with 27 a year ago.

So far this year, permits have been issued for 188 houses against 373 in the same period last year.

CAREER MEET PLANNED

Up to 300 persons are expected to take part in a Vancouver Island career education conference planned for Jan. 27 at the Empress Hotel.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce, co-ordinating the meeting of students, counsellors and community representatives for B.C. Chamber of Commerce, said the aim is to give students better understanding of career opportunities.

The chairmen will be youth development chairman Walter Donald and Victoria School District secondary instruction director Victor Thomson.

One or two students from each secondary school are being invited to meet with spokesmen for business, labor, social services and Canada Manpower.

Ryerson Press Sale Concluded by Church

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada today concluded the sale of Ryerson Press to McGraw-Hill Co. of Canada Ltd., placing the 140-year-old textbook publishing firm in American hands.

Conclusion of the sale was announced by Rev. Frank Brisbin, secretary of the communications division of the United Church, who also issued a statement welcoming the announcement Monday night of an Ontario royal commission inquiry into the state of the publishing industry.

"In the absence of any realistic alternatives or proposals, the United Church has concluded its announced plan to sell Ryerson Press to McGraw-Hill," Mr. Brisbin said.

"The lawyers have completed their work on the sale and the transfer of ownership is taking place today."

The transfer involves the inventory of books, copyright and authors' agreements and the name of the firm, but not the accounts receivable, or payment owed by school boards for textbooks already ordered.

Mr. Brisbin declined to reveal the sale price—reported to be about $2 million—and said only that he would receive a cheque from McGraw-Hill today. No formal change-over ceremony was scheduled.

Commenting on the announcement by Ontario Premier John Robarts of a royal commission inquiry into the difficulties facing the publishing industry, Mr. Brisbin said it was "a very good move, but overdue."

He said he hopes the commission gets to the root of the problem— the Ryerson sale was dictated by the firm's indebtedness —and makes effective recommendations.

In making the announcement, Premier Robarts said his government could not stop the sale but recognized that "there are difficulties facing the entire industry."

Girl Slashed

A 19-year-old girl who was slashed in the face and mouth with a broken beer glass Saturday evening is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after undergoing extensive surgery on five wounds.

Jean Harris, 2859 Cedar Hill Road, received about 100 stitches to her face.

Police said she was sitting with several companions at the Century Inn beer parlor when a young man walked up to their table.

He was holding the broken beer glass behind his back and suddenly slashed it into her face and fled.

Police said they have a suspect and an intensive search is under way.

Fee Increase Opposed

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell says Vancouver should cancel its recent increase in licence fees for hotels until the legislature has dealt with the city's request for a hotel room tax.

The city has said that it will drop the fee increase once the legislature grants it the power to levy the room tax, which is expected to produce between $800,000 and $1 million a year for the city.

In an interview Monday, Campbell said that the provincial legislature has previously gone on record as opposing municipal licence fees that discriminate against different classes of businesses.

He wrote to Vancouver city council last week indicating the government would not favor an increased levy on the hotel industry.

WAGE PARITY with United States auto workers is essential to industrial peace in Canada, according to international United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock. He said today Canadian parity must be hooked to the U.S. consumer price index and indicated a strike by 23,000 Canadian UAW workers will continue until that parity is achieved.

WAC—Cut Bank Rate

Premier Bennett sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau Monday urging "immediate drastic action" to cut high interest rates.

"Most damaging factor hurting our economy is high interest rates by chartered banks and high mortgage rates for new homes. Strongly urge drastic action," the telegraph said.

Bennett said later he was thinking of the construction industry when he sent the telegram.

Sisters to Sell Part of Land?

Groundwork laid at a special meeting of hospital authorities Monday could lead to the sale of about two acres alongside St. Joseph's Hospital for its expansion as well as the long-debated extension of Belleville Street.

The closed meeting had the Sisters of St. Ann, owners of the land in question and founders of the hospital, across the table for the first time with Capital Region Hospital Board representatives on the thorny land issue.

LOFFMARK PRESENT

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark proposed the meeting and was also present.

Some of those who took part summarized development this way today:

- A proposal that the land south of the hospital and north of a line extending Belleville Street be utilized for hospital expansion is being studied by each of the parties involved.
- The Sisters will want to know more about how the land would be used for hospital expansion before agreeing to sell.
- The Sisters repeated they are not willing to seel all 7.1 acres they own near the hospital. The part they are willing to negotiate on does not include St. Ann's Academy or the high school.

Both Sister Kathleen Moroney, provincial superior, and James Cumming, who chairs the regional hospital board meetings, said today they were optimistic about Monday's developments.

For over a year a series of disagreements involving the regional group, the society designated to take over the hospital, the provincial government and the city of Victoria has delayed expansion plans at St. Joseph's.

Arguments have involved road patterns, who would hold title to any land bought, what it would be used for, the terms of any lease on the land and how land not used would be disposed of.

"In a sense we all tried to say in front of each other where we stood," said Sister Morney of Monday's meeting. "This is a breakthrough."

GROUP CHOSEN

While representatives of the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society were not present at the meeting, Sister Moroney reaffirmed that this is the group the Sisters would like to have take over management of the hospital once the Roman Catholic order has withdrawn.

But who would hold title to the hospital is still a legal question to be resolved, she said.

TOPS WILSON

Athlete-Politician New British Tory Star

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Christopher Chataway, track champion turned politician, is being hailed today as a rising star of the governing Conservative party after an impressive performance against that veteran master of parliamentary infighting, Harold Wilson.

The Daily Mirror, which usually supports the opposition Labor party, comments that Chataway "won every round" in his clashes with Wilson and other opponents Monday night over the bombshell dismissal last week of Lord Hall, chairman of the Post Office Corp.

As minister of posts and telecommunications, Chataway told the Commons he fired Hall because the then chairman lacked the qualifications for leadership of the post office.

"Smear," shouted Opposition Leader Wilson at this.

But Chataway retorted that the former prime minister's remark sounded strange after Wilson himself had asked for the explanation of Hall's dismissal.

"You are very clearly casting away any pretensions to statesmanship you claim to have," the former runner told Wilson at one point.

"New Tory star born" is The Guardian's page one headline over its account of Chataway's performance.

CENSURE MOTION FAILS

Predictably, Labor lost out on the motion of censure it had brought against the government over the Conservative administration's handling of post office affairs.

More importantly, some Labor members are themselves wondering whether the motion was correctly conceived in the first place.

For Chataway, 39, who helped pace Roger Bannister in the first mile race run under four minutes, the Commons performance was the high point of what until how has been a relatively undistinguished political career.

His appointment as minister of posts after the Conservative victory in the June 18 general election came as something of a surprise.

The Hall affair was his first big parliamentary test and he ended up demolishing—in one observer's words—"opponent after opponent of every weight and size."

Conservative MPs unleashed delighted cheers as Chataway denounced Labor for what he called its bungling while in office.

He at one time held the world record for 5,000 metres with a time of 13 minutes 51.6 seconds.

Santa-for-Hire Business Booming in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Florent Ladouceur, manager of the Association des Peres Noels de la Province de Quebec—The Quebec Santa Claus Association reports that the local Santa-for-hire organization has expanded four-fold in its 11 years of operation.

Mr. Ladouceur, referred to as manabout-Santa, said in an interview that the company has gone from a four-man affair in its first year to the point where it can barely fill orders with 50 part-time Saint Nicks and an equal number of clowns.

Also growing in demand recently, he said, are fairy godmothers, played by fetching young ladies in crowns and formal wedding gowns.

The association operates from an east-end modest-sized showroom and office.

Activities begin to pick up early in October when Mr. Ladouceur starts hiring personnel.

"We are fussy about who we hire," he said. "Our men are usually married, very attached to children and—by necessity—a sober lot."

One of the most popular of the association's services is house calls on Christmas Eve.

Many house calls come as a surprise to the family. The service is arranged in advance as an unexpected gift.

Hello Dolly! To Finally End

NEW YORK (AP) — Hello, Dolly?, the longest running musical in Broadway history, will bid goodbye Dec. 27 after its 2,844th performance.

The show opened Jan. 16, 1964 with Carol Channing in the role of Dolly Gallagher Levi.

Since then six other stars have played the title role: Ginger Rogers, Martha Raye, Betty Grable, Pearl Bailey, Phyllis Diller and Ethel Merman, who is currently in the show.

Dolly surpassed My Fair Lady as the longest running musical last September.

'Farm Won't Be Closed'

Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said Monday the federal government has assured him it has no intention of closing down the Saanichton experimental farm in the foreseeable future.

Shelford said the assurance came in a reply to a letter he wrote expressing concern about the fate of the station, which was earlier reported to be caught in a federal government economy squeeze.

Stanfield Raps Auditor's Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said today he has asked all Conservative MPs to launch a Christmas recess assault in their home ridings on the government's bill to restrict the powers of the auditor-general.

He said at a news conference that he does not accept as true a "rumor" that the government will drop the bill.

"If it intends to do so, the government should remove it from the Commons order paper forthwith," he said.

"Its continued presence there is clearly an attempt to intimidate the auditor-general."

He said a government campaign of intimidation against Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson began this year after Mr. Henderson disclosed $40 million in wasteful expenditures.

The Trudeau government had "continued its government by rumor campaign by allowing a cabinet leak over last weekend that the auditor-general's bill would quietly be allowed to die."

This was a typical ploy intended to persuade the country to lower its guard.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader, told him Monday the government intends to have the bill debated in the Commons.

He added that he does not know whether the government intends to go as far as a vote on it.

The bill would restrict the authority of the auditor-general to report to Parliament all cases he deems worthy of comment.

The government maintains that Mr. Henderson has been commenting on government policy and not just on the spending of public money.

Mr. Stanfield described the government move as giving blunders privileged status and removing "this embarrassing watchdog's hold on the seat of the government's pants."

He said he would as prime minister repeal the bill if the Liberals forced it through Parliament by using closure.

Canada Completes Pakistan Airlift

DACCA (CP) — Canada completed its relief airlift to cyclone-battered East Pakistan today with all indications showing that supplies are getting to those who need them.

Lt.-Col. G. W. Webb, military adviser to the airlift, said here Monday that he watched loading of boats and aircraft carrying the relief supplies south to the stricken delta region and examined the Dacca warehouses where goods were initially stored.

"Everything we have brought in has moved to the disaster area," he said.

"There is no evidence that much of the supplies are disappearing en route—the Pakistani army is supervising movement closely."

Until last week, it had appeared that relief supplies being transported to Dacca by dozens of foreign countries faced lengthy delay in local warehouses before moving to the delta region, where an estimated 200,000 persons were killed by a cyclone and tidal wave Nov. 12.

However, by the middle of the week the logjam had broken with British, American, French, and German troops assisting in the movement of supplies to the stricken area.

Mexican President Inaugurated

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Echeverria Alvarez takes over as Mexico's 26th president today in a colorful inauguration ceremony in Mexico City's Chapultepec Park.

Outgoing President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz was to hand the reins of government over to Echeverria with the ceremonial presentation of a green, white and red sash embroidered in gold by artisans of Tlaxcala state.

Echeverria, who won the June 5 election by the landslide always given the candidate of the Institutional Revolutionary party, promised during his campaign to continue the social, agricultural, educational and industrial programs of Diaz Ordaz. He said he would put special emphasis on agrarian reform, expansion of education and creation of 100,000 jobs a year for the booming population.

The Institutional Revolutionary party, or PRI, has been continuously in power 42 years. The constitution prohibits a president succeeding himself, and Echeverria was Diaz Ordaz's interior secretary.

Echeverria is a 48-year-old lawyer and career politician. The son of a government employee and a native of Mexico City, he became a journalist after receiving a master of laws degree from Mexico's National University. He went to work for the PRI at 24.

Mine Report Denied

BONN (AP) — West German officials today dismissed as "complete nonsense" a British newspaper report that the United States wants work started immediately on a string of anti-invasion atomic mines near West Germany's frontier with East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

The officials said U.S. forces in Germany have ground-based nuclear explosives but there are no plans to plant these along the East-West border. They said the explosives are not mines that detonate on contact, but must be set off by remote control.

Two FLQ Suspects Jailed for Contempt

Lise Rose Given 6-Month Term

MONTREAL (CP) — Lise Rose, 25, was sentenced to six months and Clement Roy, 22, was sentenced to nine days in jail when the two appeared today to face charges of contempt of court at the inquest into the death of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister.

In passing sentence against Miss Rose, Judge Jacques Trahan, special coroner, said he was doing so "to my great regret," and after much reflection.

He said Miss Rose had refused to testify at the inquest last week "in deliberate fashion, in noisy fashion."

The short sentence against Roy who also refused to testify at the inquest, came after his lawyer Bernard Mergler said he would attempt to get Roy to testify when the inquest resumes again Dec. 10.

Maximum sentence for the offence is $5,000 and or one year in jail.

Lise Rose and Roy both previously were charged with being or declaring themselves to be members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Pierre Marc-Beauchamp told the court he was ready to testify next week on condition that his testimony not be used against him when he appears for trial in January on charges of being a member of the FLQ.

The inquest into the death of Mr. Laporte, abducted from in front of his home last Oct. 10 and found dead in the trunk of a car Oct. 18, was postponed after the two witnesses balked at questions.

Both were among several dozen persons arraigned Nov. 5 and awaiting trial in January under terms of the War Measures Act invoked Oct. 16.

Meanwhile, police reported no new clues in the hunt ofr the kidnappers of Mr. Laporte and British envoy James Cross, abducted from his home last Oct. 5.

BROTHERS
. . . booed by students

'WHY TEACHERS SINGLED OUT?'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students received no reply Monday night when they asked Education Minister Donald Brothers why the British Columbia government singled out teachers for special application of the federal War Measures Act.

The letter asked for an open forum with Brothers and condemned the provincial government order that provided for firing of teachers who expressed support for revolution.

It called the order a "serious infringement upon the freedom of education" and asked that it be withdrawn.

During the unveiling ceremony, placard-carrying students hissed and clapped repeatedly and called for "answers" from Brothers.

As she was leaving the campus in the company of security guards and college officials, Brothers was trailed by student society representatives still asking for a hearing.

Questioned by reporters, he said he was "not aware of any student protest."

Examination Order 'Outrages' Lawyer

A Nanaimo lawyer is "outraged" by the court procedure of a Port Alberni provincial court judge who ordered Dr. Glen Stewart remanded Monday to Riverview Mental Hospital for 30 days' psychiatric observation.

Stewart, who returned voluntarily from San Francisco where he was questioned by RCMP about the shooting death of a Pachena Bay caretaker, appeared in court on charges of jumping bail and possession of stolen property.

He was represented by Ron MacIsaac, who entered a plea of not guilty and agreed to a trial date of Dec. 16.

But after MacIsaac had left for Nanaimo, thinking the courtroom procedures completed, Judge William McLeod had Stewart recalled to court after an examination by a doctor.

Stewart was subsequently committed to Riverview for a 30-day period of psychiatric observation.

MacIsaac said Monday night he was "outraged and incensed" by the procedures. "I want the man to be allowed to face trial."

McLeod said Koszegi was in court to examine another person, but examined Stewart and talked to him when he had the opportunity.

'BY THE BOARD'

He said that when Stewart was brought back into court for Koszegi's testimony, the original trial date set and the previous procedures "went by the board."

Steward had been scheduled to appear last week for a trial concerning possession of a stolen $500 liferaft from a Bamfield biological station.

A bench warrant for his arrest was issued when he skipped $2,500 cash bail.

He was picked up in San Francisco by U.S. immigration authorities after being rescued from what looked like a double-suicide attempt in a gas-filled motel room with a woman companion, Miss Maria Trigiani, 31, an Italian national.

QUESTIONED

While awaiting a hearing at San Francisco to determine whether he was in the United States lawfully, Stewart was questioned about the shooting of Gordon Kralt, 23, caretaker at a Bible camp four miles south of Bamfield.

Stewart had apparently been linked to the area by his 35-foot yacht Gypsy which cracked up and sank off the mouth of the Columbia River in Oregon early in November.

Kralt's body was found Nov. 22 about 600 yards from the Shantyman's Christian Association lodge where he was a caretaker.

Stewart was also questioned by RCMP from Prince Rupert about the disappearance of a Smithers woman, Mrs. Sheila Haupt, and her three-year-old daughter some 10 months ago.

A suitcase with some of Mrs. Haupt's belongings was found in a river near Smithers.

Ecology Battle Begins for Utah

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

PORT HARDY — Opposing forces marshalled here today for what has become the front line in the ecology battle in B.C.—the Utah Mine hearing.

The inquiry opens Wednesday into an application by Utah Construction and Mining Company to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into Rupert Inlet.

Utah is nearing completion of a $74 million copper-molybdenum mining complex, the operation of which is based on dumping solid mine waste into the inlet.

Opponents fear the mine tailings will ruin the almost-landlocked inlet and ultimately Quatsino Sound.

SITE TOUR

Today, Utah escored representatives of provincial Pollution Control Branch and four appellants scheduled to be heard at Wednesday's hearing, around the open pit mine site.

The appellants are: E. R. Morton, Cowichan Station; Elaine Price, Duncan; Roger Prentice, North Vancouver, and the Pacific Salmon Society of Vancouver.

Forty-eight other objectors had signified their intention of protesting the Utah plan. Pollution control director William Venables limited the

A Mass of Child Faces Prodding the West

When Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova thinks of Korea, she sees only a mass of children's faces, prodding the conscience of the West.

In her own way, she has, for 25 years tried to ease the suffering of at least some of these poor. Their numbers are almost overpoweringly large, not only in Korea, but in Vietnam, India, the Middle East, Hong Kong and Europe.

FOUNDER

Monday, she returned to Victoria, as she has done every year since 1953, to launch the annual fund-raising and clothing drive of the Unitarian Services Committee of Canada, the private charitable organization she founded in 1945.

This marks the 18th consecutive year that the Victoria Daily Times has sponsored the USC's children of Asia Fund in the region.

Speaking at St. John's Church to 150 people, mostly elderly women, Dr. Hitschmanova revealed her story of human need and misery with slides taken on her 1970 Middle East Asian tour.

The USC sponsors medical and child care clinics, vocational training schools, self-help agricultural and construction projects, social welfare and community centres and feeding programs for the overseas poor.

BARLEY, MILK

Last year, for example, the USC supplied 640,000 pounds of barley for Korean flood victims, treated 132,445 patients in Indian health clinics, dispensed more than four million cups of milk in India and Korea.

Additionally, 315,755 pounds of clothing were shipped to Korea, Hong Kong, the Middle East and Greece.

To finance these projects, Dr. Hitschmanova travels across Canada in the fall and early winter appealing for

Portuguese Troops Among Guinea Force

UNITED NATIONS (WP) — The special security council mission investigating the recent invasion of Guinea saw no white mercenaries but did find half a dozen black members of the Portuguese army, it was learned Monday.

These blacks are understood to have acknowledged that they were members of the regular Portuguese forces stationed in neighboring Portuguese Guinea, where it is assumed that the attacks originated. Guinea itself has harbored "freedom fighters" seeking to "liberate" the Portuguese African province.

As a result, the committee is thought to have gathered indications linking Portugal with the attacks of 10 days ago, although there has been no attempt yet to crystallize the opinions of the five members. It is believed that there is some evidence of Portuguse logistic involvement.

The committee met Monday and will meet again Tuesday to prepare a report to the securily council expected by the end of the week.

Contrary to some reports, the government of Guinea is said to have co-operated with the committee in enabling it to question all the persons it wishes to see.

B.C. Takes Hard Line On Pesticide Control

Use of DDT and other long-lasting pesticides in British Columbia will be by prescription only beginning next year, Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said today. The new regulations will be the toughest in Canada, Shelford said.

The provincial government will issue such prescriptions in only exceptional cases where other means of control can't be found, Shelford said.

Cabinet regulations approved Monday set March 30 as the starting point for the new controls "which will pretty well eliminate" the use of DDT, dieldrin, aldrin, heptochlor and similar insecticides, Shelford said.

SOUGHT CONTROLS

B.C. had earlier asked for national controls but is taking action on its own in the absence of such action, he said. Other provinces will be asked to follow suit.

"Regional regulations are absolutely hopeless," Shelford said in stressing that he still feels national and international co-operation will be the only way to proper control.

Shelford said the government would exercise strict control on the number of outlets for prescription insecticides.

Canadian Lobby Successful

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Mitchell Sharp continued intensive lobbying at European Economic Community headquarters here today to find a soft landing spot for Canada when Britain drops Commonwealth preferences to enter the common market.

He appeared to be making some headway on the Continent, adding to new-found encouragement gained during the weekend in the British Isles where the Tory government displayed significantly more sympathy over Ottawa's concern about wheat, timber and other exports than did Harold Wilson's Labor government a few months ago.

External Affairs press briefing officer Ross Francis told reporters here Monday night that UK Premier Heath, Foreign Minister Alec Home and other Conservative cabinet members listened carefully to Sharp's plea for phased entry into ECC to give time for Canadian exporters to adjust gradually to the new situation.

"We have, I think, a somewhat better relationship with this government than with the Labor government," said Francis. "We had a very obvious problem when Wilson came to Ottawa last January."

He was invited . . . to indicate that he would keep us informed of the progress of (ECC) negotiations but treated our ministers in private meetings and the press in public to a dazzling display of non?commitalness.

SHARP
. . . lobby for trade

"The position now is somewhat better in that we are being kept regularly informed and given an opportunity to register our views."

Sharp was told in London that the UK is only making a serious issue of New Zealand agriculture and Commonwealth sugar arrangements because those are "life or death" matters for countries concerned.

Sharp pressed Canada's need for time to roll with the unch as the long-term impact of UK entry could be absorbed if there were no sudden short-run disruption to the $1 billion plus Canada-UK trade, 70 per cent of which could be affected some way if the transition is not arranged smoothly, allowing more trade with the EEC as a whole or finding alternative markets.

OTTAWA PLANS HIKE WAR VET PENSIONS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government today gave formal notice of legislation to increase war veterans' disability pensions.

The notice was given on the Commons order paper by Veterans Minister Jean-Eudes Dube.

DIVORCE ITALIAN STULE is celebrated by jubilant Italian divorce advocates after it was announced that Chamber of Deputies had approved the bill legalizing divorce. Signs carry such messages as: Italy, You Woke Up! and Divorce in Italy, First Victory! (AP Wirephoto)

Italian Parliament Approves Bill Allowing Legal Divorce

ROME (CP) — Parliament approved an historic bill early today introducing divorce in Italy despite a long battle with the Vatican and the church-backed Christian Democrat party.

The 630-member Chamber of Deputies (lower house) voted 319 to 286 to approve the bill after a five-year legislative battle. An economic package submitted by the government was simultaneously approved.

The divorce bill, already approved by the Senate, now requires only the signature of President Giuseppe Saragat and publication in the official state gazette before becoming law, possibly before the end of this year.

Early next year the courts are expected to start-issuing divorce decrees to many of the Italians, estimated at between one and two million, now living separated from their partners.

Under the bill, couples must have been legally separated for five years before applying for divorce. If one partner contests the divorce the required separation period rises to six years. If the separation was granted because of the guilt of one partner, the period goes to seven years.

FEW OTHER GROUNDS

The only other grounds for divorce involve hardship cases, such as when one partner is serving life imprisonment or has tried to murder his wife or children.

Italians now are pondering the cost of obtaining a divorce and how long it will take in civil courts where the calendar is jammed.

Lawyers expect fees to range from the equivalent of $640 to three times that amount—almost a year's salary for an Italian in a lower-income bracket. It could take from six months up to five years for a divorce, legal experts say, considering the complexity of the proceeding and jammed courts.

Aside from a brief period between 1795 and 1815, during the Napoleonic era, divorce always has been banned in Italy. Under Italy's 1929 Concordat with the Vatican, Roman Catholic marriage regulations have the force of law.

The vote climaxed 92 years of pro-divorce agitation during which 12 earlier divorce bills have failed to obtain government approval.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES FOR ONTARIO WORKERS

By LILLIAN NEWBERY

TORONTO (CP) — The Women's Equal Employment Opportunity Act, aimed at protecting one million working women in Ontario from discrimination in job recruitment, hiring, training, promotion and dismissal, went into effect today.

"The whole thing is to educate industry and women themselves to open all jobs to qualified workers of both sexes," says Dr. Lita-Rose Betcherman. She directs the Ontario Women's Bureau responsible for administration of the act.

Companies with fewer than six employees are automatically exempt. A labor department bulletin distributed to 140,000 businesses, unions and associations says that physical reasons will be the factor in setting exemptions based on sex and that lack of mobility will be considered in exemptions because of marital status.

Dr. Betcherman has said that exemption requests on grounds that a man had always done the job will be viewed "with a cold eye."

She explained how the legislation will work:

"A woman who believes she has been discriminated against should get in touch with the bureau (at Queen's Park) with a view to laying a complaint. We will tell her if it comes under the legislation. If it does, officers will be sent to the company to arrange a settlement.

"The routine is investigation, conciliation, settlement. Where a settlement is not reached, the labor minister may appoint a board and its decision could go to the Ontario court of appeal.

"The fines will be used as a last resort."

The Act provides for maximum fines of $800 for an individual and $3,000 for a corporation, employment agency or trade union.

Employers of 25 persons or more are forbidden to fire a woman who becomes pregnant. They are bound to give her up to six weeks maternity leave before the birth if asked and six weeks after with a guarantee she can return to the same position or a comparable one.

'OH NO' CRIES DISMAYED MAYOR

Plastic Wreath Outrage Inflicted On Victoria—Canada's Holly City

By
CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Plastic imitation holly wreaths are being attached to Victoria's antique lamp standards.

The decision to use plastic holly on the streets of Canada's only holly-growing centre was made Nov. 12 by city council.

But not all members of council were aware of their decision.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said today when told the wreaths wre being installed: "Oh, no. That's news to me. I was under the impression they were repudiated because they were ugly."

Haddock promised to "look into it."

IT'S HARD to believe, but going on in the city of (natural) hanging flower pots are plastic imitation wreaths. City crews were installing them this morning downtown for Christmas.

The wreaths were purchased by the Downtown Victoria Association and are being installed by the city. The city will pay the cost of installation, removal, storage and power.

The wreaths are a out five feet high, three feet wide. Clusters of red plastic apple-sized balls and colored electric bulbs are spaced throughout the plastic imitation holly leaves.

Two members of the local holly growing industry said today they were assured a chance to bid on the decorations by the city when the matter was first raised.

A letter dated July 21 from Mayor Haddock to holly growers' representative John Blinko says: "I'm certain the (finance) committee will review the possibility of incorporating natural holly if they decide to go ahead with the program at all."

But the matter did not go to the finance committee. Instead it went from the downtown association through city manager Dennis Young directly to the council.

A report from Young to the Nov. 12 council, dated Nov. 6, says the downtown group purchased 50 wreaths on the strength that finance committee approved in principle in July.

"The proposal (in July) ran into some criticism inasmuch as the sample decoration utilized artificial holly which was felt inappropriate for this area which produces the bulk of Canada's holly crop. The latter aspect I feel tended to dominate the principle, which was unfortunate because the holly formed a very small part of the total cost of the decoration itself."

Young's recommendation goes on: "The matter to be decided at this time is whether or not the city will participate to the extent of undertaking the installation, removal and storage of fixtures, together with the cost of power."

"... As the downtown Victoria Association is most anxious to have these fixtures installed as soon as possible after delivery, I am submitting this matter directly to city council rather than through committee which would necessitate a further two-week delay."

The matter went through council without debate. A motion to accept the wreaths was made by Ald. Harold Olafson and seconded by Ald. Ove Witt.

Young's report was not included in the council meeting agenda distributed to the press.

MMMMMMM GOOD! Stores are piled high with presents for Christmas but if you're eyeing the goodie on the left forget it, she's not for sale. Question is, what manner of creature is it Lynn Peasland of 277 Sims St. finds so irresistible? It's got the nose of a bear, mottled fur of a leopard and the feet of a snowshoe rabbit. Maybe somebody should tell her it's also got the eye of a Don Juan. (Bill Halkett Photo)

Yarrows To Hire 250 Men

Some 250 extra men will be hired by Yarrows Ltd. here to carry out construction of massive ocean-going newsprint barge.

Getting the contract from MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Yarrows has now started construction on the stern section.

The bow section is being built at the sister yard of Burrard Dry Dock in Vancouver.

When both sections are done the bow will be towed here and the two sections joined for completion around mid-March.

$2 MILLION COST

The covered barge, which will cost almost $2 million, is destined for the Atlantic coast and is patterned after three others built on the west coast for MacMillan Bloedel's B.C.-California runs.

Built of steel, the new barge, like her sister ships, the Nanoose Carrier, Nootka Carrier and Nahmint Carrier, will share the honors of being the largest cargo deckhouse barges in the world.

With a capacity of 7,200 tons of newsprint, she'll be 363 feet in length and 82 feet wide. The open cargo space in the interior is a mere eight feet shorter than a football field, totalling 23,000 square feet. Eight regulation-sized tennis courts could be laid out on her cargo deck.

LONG DISTANCE

Destined to carry newsprint between the MacMillan Rothesay Mill at Saint John, N.B. MacMillan Bloedel holds a majority interest in the mill), she will run between New Brunswick and American eastern ports and may be used for service to the Caribbean area. This would involve distances as great as 2,400 miles.

To accommodate the huge barge, a new loading ramp, costing about $1,160,000, will be built at the mill. Supported on 700 piles, the ramp, to allow for a 29-foot tide variance, will have a grid of 14-inch by 14-inch timbers installed alongside it, on which the barge will sit at low tide. The timbers will be sawn at B.C. lumber mills.

PUSHING NOTCH

The ramp project is expected to provide employment for 50 men.

Designed by Vancouver naval architect Robert Allan, the barge will have one major difference to her sister ships.

There will be a narrow notch in her stern that will allow her to be pushed by tug when approaching such river ports as Baltimore and Philadelphia. When at sea, she will be towed by Canada's most powerful tug, the Irving Birch.

After completion, she will begin work immediately, carrying her first cargo on her maiden voyage via the Panama Canal to Saint John.

Uvic Students Plan Crisis Centre

A group comprised mainly of University of Victoria students plans to set up a crisis phone centre next spring to serve Greater Victoria.

The primary purpose of the around-the-clock phone service, which is called Need, will be to reassure and counsel callers suffering from loneliness, depression, bad trips and other personal problems, said Sylvia Blenkin, a third-year sociology student.

Equally important, however, will be Need's role in supplying information on other voluntary social groups operating in the community.

"Not to criticize the other services," said Miss Blenkin, "but there is a lack of communication, so there should be a central phone number that people can call instead of having to confide in the telephone operator."

She said Need will work with Cool-Aid, Victoria Low-Income Group, Alcoholics Anonymous, Teen Challenge, the Pacfiic Drug Dependency Centre and others.

Starting in January, Need will have a training program in which volunteers will learn how to talk to callers experiencing some kind of personal crisis.

Miss Blenkin said the service should go into operation next April. Need headquarters will be a room in a church which Cool-Aid plans to buy.

She said the group will need several adult volunteers to complement the large proportion of student volunteers.

Gas, Oil Prices Hiked One Cent by Imperial

The increase is general in the four western provinces, the Yukon and District of Mackenzie — an even cent in all but the latter where new prices are 1.7 cents a gallon higher.

So far no other major oil company has said it would follow Imperial's lead, but in previous price hikes Imperial has often led the indsutry.

Imperial said it had notified the Prices and Incomes Commission of its action.

"The company not only faces higher labor and materials expenditures, but also the need to maintain and expand capital investment for plants and other facilities," Imperial said.

Prices in eastern Canada will remain steady, having been increased as recently as Oct. 5.

A gallon of regular grade gasoline at Imperial's Victoria pumps today was 46.9 cents and 51.9 for premium grade, including taxes.

Domestic furnace oil, with tax, reached 22.6 cents at Imperial dealers.

Woman Charged With Setting Fire

A woman was charged in provincial court this morning with setting fire to certain materials at 709 Linden, and was remanded by Judge William Ostler to Dec. 4 for election.

Mrs. Eileen Hindson was undefended.

Victoria Fire Department responded to an alarm at 2:26 a.m. at 709 Linden and put out spot fires on the carpet in the front hall and a burning steamer trunk.

They report minor damage to the residence.

Arthur Mayse . . .

IT IS NOW DECEMBER, and on the theory that if you can't lick 'em you might as well join 'em, I am prepared to face the fact of Christmas coming.

The sight of a twinkling electric star and light-strings on a Cedar Hill Cross Road house helped bring about the change. So did the season's first carols, loosed by a supermart upon the chilly air.

There's also a fact that you too may have discovered. This is that Christmas shopping has begun in earnest, as a tender instep reminds me. It got tramped on by a large lady who had just been startled into a hasty backward step.

What jolted her was a harmless-looking but arresting novelty on a Toyland counter. It is shaped like an old-fashioned radio—the kind that curved from the sides to make a Gothic arch—and it is of a size to nestle snugly in the hand.

Activate it as this shopper did, and it gives off peal after peal of laughter.

It was still laughing when I limped off with my love to inspect the new crop of Christmas cards, and a small crowd had gathered around its counter.

Later, it occurred to me that one of those gimmicks would fit nicely into the toe of a stocking where groping fingers would trigger it. But that space on the counter had been emptied, and a slightly bemused clerk explained that the merry machines had been snapped up almost as fast as they'd been set out.

A young teacher by the name of Les Ferriday visited a low and modern elementary school in one of our newer suburbs one day last week. There was much about it that he admired, but what impressed him most was its library.

"If my students could see those books," he said, "they'd be so excited it would take me an hour to settle them down."

Les Ferriday is one of a staff that teaches at South Park elementary, a red brick pile across from Beacon Hill entrance on Douglas Street. South Park has seen children come and go for well over 70 years. Today, about 230 boys and girls in grades five though seven attend it.

"They're a good bunch," says Les, who has taught at South Park for the last six years, "and I'll tell you one thing that still surprises me. This is the hunger so many of them have for books."

What I didn't learn until later is that at least half of the books these eager young readers borrow from the limited South Park supply weren't financed from taxpayers' dollars.

Principal Wilfrid J. Orchard, Les Ferriday and other teachers dug into their own pockets to put them on the shelves.

That's good. I think it's a fine thing that a school staff should contribute in this fashion to the expanding of youth's horizon.

But I also feel—and hope you will, too—that we could do worse than give South Park a hand in building up a library of a size to meet its needs.

What I suggest is this:

If you have books that your own children have outgrown and are willing to part with, make a Christmas present of them to the kids of South Park.

These boys and girls range in age from nine to 13 or thereabouts. Their interests are many and varied. They like both fact and fiction. They'll seize on books on how to do things and make things, and come back next time for a sport story or a tale of space-adventure.

If you have a few Nancy Drew books kicking around, there are readers who will pounce on them. The same for series books with boy heroes.

As for delivery, drop them off for me at the Times, and I'll ferry them down to South Park. If that's unhandy, give me a call and I'll see they're picked up.

And this you can be sure of—those books which your own children enjoyed will find any number of new, absorbed readers.

It's the Same Old Crud

In 1911, Victoria residents complained about the pollution of Esquimalt Harbor.

Today, 59 years later, they're still complaining.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald admitted in the Commons Monday that 14 Canadian naval vessels based in Esquimalt are polluting the harbor with untreated sewage.

So what's new?

In the Sept. 17 edition of the Times of 1911, this resolution, drawn up by organizations of the First Congregational Church, stated:

"Resolved that this meeting desires to express its sense of the wrong done to the public of Victoria and vicinity by the flagrant trespass upon the rights of the people by the gross pollution of the waters of Esquimalt harbor by the discharge of crude black oil, and begs to request that the government of British Columbia will prevent any further despoilation of this heritage of the people."

On Monday, replying to questions from David Anderson (L-Esquimalt-Saanich), Macdonald said the vessels at fault were the Qu'Appelle, Yukon, St. Croix, Gatineau, Cape Breton, Columbia, Chaudiere, Cowichan, Miramichi, Fundy, Chignecto, the two gate vessels, Porte de la Reine and Porte Quebec, as well as the training ketch Oriole.

Macdonald, added that a comprehensive study is under way with Esquimalt municipality co-operating to find ways to counter

REPLACES WAR MEASURES ACT

Public Order Bill Passes

TOP KNITTER in Victoria branch of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, Mrs. M. F. Naysmith (left), 303-825 Cook, is awarded gold maple leaf by USC executive director Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova. Mrs. Naysmith knitted more than 200 cardigans as well as several sets of mittens and toques for Korean children. Dr. Hitschmanova has awarded 400 gold maple leaf pins across Canada since beginning her annual fund-raising drive in St. John's, Newfoundland, on Sept. 16.

FLQ Suspects Get Jail Terms

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave approval today by a vote of 174 to 31 to the government public order bill that will replace regulations under the War Measures Act.

The legislation provides for the right of immediate access to a lawyer but permits restrictions on bail and allows accused persons to be held more than 24 hours without being charged.

Opposed to passage were 17 New Democrats, 10 Creditistes and four Conservatives.

The legislation which was first presented in the Commons Nov. 2, now goes to the Senate.

Earlier, Lise Rose, 25, was sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court at the inquest into the death of murder of Pierre Laporte. Clement Roy, 22, was jailed nine days for contempt.

In passing sentence against Miss Rose, Judge Jacques Trahan, special coroner, said he was doing so "to my great regret," and after much reflection.

He said Miss Rose had refused to testify at the inquest last week "in deliberate fashion, in noisy fashion."

The short sentence against Roy who also refused to testify at the inquest, came after his lawyer Bernard Mergler said he would attempt to get Roy to testify when the inquest resumes again Dec. 10.

Maximum sentence for the offence is $5,000 and or one year in jail.

Lise Rose and Roy both previously were charged with being or declaring themselves to be members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Pierre Marc-Beauchamp told the court he was ready to testify next week on condition that his testimony not be used against him when he appears for trial in January on charges of being a member of the FLQ.

'Examination Order 'Outrages' Lawyer

A Nanaimo lawyer is "outraged" by the court procedure of a Port Alberni provincial court judge who ordered Dr. Glen Stewart remanded Monday to Riverview Mental Hospital for 30 days' psychiatric observation.

Stewart, who returned voluntarily from San Francisco where he was questioned by RCMP about the shooting death of a Pachena Bay caretaker, appeared in court on charges of jumping bail and possession of stolen property.

He was represented by Ron MacIsaac, who entered a plea of not guilty and agreed to a trial date of Dec. 16.

But after MacIsaac had left for Nanaimo, thinking the courtroom procedures completed, Judge William McLeod had Stewart recalled to court after an examination by a doctor.

With MacIsaac absent from the courtroom, McLeod heard Dr. B. Koszegi give evidence that he believed Stewart to be mentally ill.

Stewart was subsequently committed to Riverview for a 30-day period of psychiatric observation.

MacIsaac said Monday night he was "outraged and incensed" by the procedures. "I want the man to be allowed to face trial."

McLeod said Koszegi was in court to examine another person, but examined Stewart and talked to him when he had the opportunity.

'BY THE BOARD'

He said that when Stewart was brought back into court for Koszegi's testimony, the original trial date set and the previous procedures "went by the board."

Stewart had been scheduled to appear last week for a trial concerning possession of a stolen $500 liferaft from a Bamfield biological station.

A bench warrant for his arrest was issued when he allegedly skipped $2,500 cash bail.

He was picked up in San Francisco by U.S. immigration authorities after being rescued from what looked like a double-suicide attempt in a gas-filled motel room with a woman companion, Miss Maria Trigiani, 31, an Italian national.

QUESTIONED

While awaiting a hearing at San Francisco to determine whether he was in the United States lawfully, Stewart was questioned about the shooting of Gordon Kralt, 23, caretaker at a Bible camp four miles south of Bamfield.

Stewart had apparently been linked to the area by his 35-foot yacht Gypsy which cracked up and sank off the mouth of the Columbia River in Oregon early in November.

Kralt's body was found Nov. 22 about 600 yards from the Shantyman's Christian Association lodge where he was a caretaker.

Stewart was also questioned by RCMP from Prince Rupert about the disappearance of a Smithers woman, Mrs. Sheila Haupt, and her three-year-old daughter some 10 months ago.

A suitcase with some of Mrs. Haupt's belongings was found in a river near Smithers.

'WHY TEACHERS SINGLED OUT?'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students booed and jeered Education Minister Donald Brothers Monday night when they received no reply on why the B.C. government singled out teachers for special application of the War Measures Act.

Brothers was at a ceremony to officially open the Langara Campus of Vancouver City College.

Following his unveiling of a commemorative plaque at the $6 million campus, the education minister sat talking with Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell while student society ombudsman Peter Rutter read a letter of protest from the society.

The letter asked for an open forum with Brothers and condemned the provincial government order that provided for firing of teachers who expressed support for revolution.

It called the order a "serious infringement upon the freedom of education" and asked that it be withdrawn.

During the unveiling ceremony, placard-carrying students hissed and clapped repeatedly and called for "answers" from Brothers.

As he was leaving the campus in the company of security guards and college officials, Brothers was trailed by student society representatives still asking for a hearing.

Questioned by reporters, he said he was "not aware of any student protest."

Ecology Battle Begins for Utah

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

PORT HARDY — Opposing forces marshalled here today for what has become the front line in the ecology battle in B.C.—the Utah Mine hearing.

The inquiry opens Wednesday into an application by Utah Construction and Mining Company to dump 9.3 million gallons of effluent daily into Rupert Inlet.

Utah is nearing completion of a $74 million copper-molybdenum mining complex, the operation of which is based on dumping solid mine waste into the inlet.

Opponents fear the mine tailings will ruin the almost-landlocked inlet and ultimately Quatsino Sound.

SITE TOUR

Today, Utah escorted representatives of provincial Pollution Control Branch, and four appellants scheduled to be heard at Wednesday's hearing, around the open pit mine site.

The appellants are: E. R. Morton, Cowichan Station; Elaine Price, Duncan; Roger Prentice, North Vancouver, and the Pacific Salmon Society of Vancouver.

Forty-eight other objectors had signified their intention of protesting the Utah plan. Pollution control director William Venables limited the

A Mass of Tiny Faces Prodding the West

When Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova thinks of Korea, she sees only a mass of children's faces, prodding the conscience of the West.

In her own way, she has, for 25 years, tried to ease the suffering of at least some of these poor. Their numbers are almost overpoweringly large, not only in Korea, but in Vietnam, India, the Middle East, Hong Kong and Europe.

FOUNDER

Monday, she returned to Victoria, as she has done every year since 1953, to launch the annual fund-raising and clothing drive of the Unitarian Services Committee of Canada, the private charitable organization she founded in 1945.

This marks the 18th consecutive year that the Victoria Daily Times has sponsored the USC's Children of Asia Fund in the region.

Speaking at St. John's Church to 150 people, mostly elderly women, Dr. Hitschmanova revealed her story of human need and misery with slides taken on her 1970 Middle East Asian tour.

The USC sponsors medical and child care clinics, vocational training schools, self-help agricultural and construction projects, social welfare and community centres and feeding programs for the overseas poor.

Last year, for example, the USC supplied 640,000 pounds of barley for Korean flood victims, treated 132,445 patients in Indian health clinics, dispensed more than four million cups of milk in India and Korea.

Additionally, 315,755 pounds of clothing were shipped to Korea, Hong Kong, the Middle East and Greece.

To finance these projects, Dr. Hitschmanova travels across Canada in the fall and early winter appealing for

Portuguese Among Invaders

UNITED NATIONS (WP) — The special security council mission investigating the recent invasion of Guinea saw no white mercenaries but did find half a dozen black members of the Portuguese army, it was learned Monday.

These blacks are understood to have acknowledged that they were members of the regular Portuguese forces stationed in neighboring Portuguese Guinea, where it is assumed that the attacks originated. Guinea itself has harbored "freedom fighters" seeking to "liberate" the Portuguese African province.

As a result, the committee is thought to have gathered indications linking Portugal with the attacks of 10 days ago, although there has been no attempt yet to crystallize the opinions of the five members. It is believed that there is some evidence of Portuguese logistic involvement.

The committee met Monday and will meet again Tuesday to prepare a report to the security council expected by the end of the week.

B.C. Takes Hard Line On Pesticide Control

Use of DDT and other long-lasting pesticides in British Columbia will be by prescription only beginning next year, Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford said today. The new regulations will be the toughest in Canada, Shelford said.

The provincial government will issue such prescriptions in only exceptional cases where other means of control can't be found, Shelford said.

Cabinet regulations approved Monday set March 30 as the starting point for the new controls "which will pretty well eliminate" the use of DDT, dieldrin, aldrin, heptochlor and similar insecticides, Shelford said.

SOUGHT CONTROLS

B.C. had earlier asked for national controls but is taking action on its own in the absence of such action, he said. Other provinces will be asked to follow suit.

"Regional regulations are absolutely hopeless," Shelford said in stressing that he still feels national and international co-operation will be the only way to proper control.

Shelford said the government would exercise strict control on the number of outlets for prescription insecticides.

Canadian Lobby Successful

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Mitchell Sharp continued intensive lobbying at European Economic Community headquarters here today to find a soft landing spot for Canada when Britain drops Commonwealth preferences to enter the common market.

He appeared to be making some headway on the Continent, adding to new-found encouragement gained during the weekend in the British Isles where the Tory government displayed significantly more sympathy over Ottawa's concern about wheat, timber and other exports than did Harold Wilson's Labor government a few months ago.

External Affairs press briefing officer Ross Francis told reporters here Monday night that UK Premier Heath, Foreign Minister Alec Home and other Conservative cabinet members listened carefully to Sharp's plea for phased entry into ECC to give time for Canadian exporters to adjust gradually to the new situation.

"We have, I think, a somewhat better relationship with this government than with the Labor government," said Francis. "We had a very obvious problem when Wilson came to Ottawa last January."

"He was invited . . . to indicate that he would keep us informed of the progress of (EEC) negotiations but treated our ministers in private meetings and the press in public to a dazzling display of non-committalness.

SHARP
. . . lobby for trade

"The position now is somewhat better in that we are being kept regularly informed and given an opportunity to register our views."

Sharp was told in London that the UK is only making a serious issue of New Zealand agriculture and Commonwealth sugar arrangements because those are "life or death" matters for countries concerned.

Sharp pressed Canada's need for time to roll with the punch as the long-term impact of UK entry could be absorbed if there were no sudden short-run disruption to the $1 billion plus Canada-UK trade, 70 per cent of which could be affected some way if the transition is not arranged smoothly, allowing more trade with the EEC as a whole or finding alternative markets.

CABLEVISION 10 PROGRAMS. 5 p.m., Ladies First; 6 p.m., Project Travel, Blue Water Holiday; 6:30 p.m., You and the Law; 7 p.m., Victoria Outdoorsmen, Fishing Edition; 7:30 p.m., B.C. Tel Science Series, Gateways to the Mind.

NANCY. 6 p.m., Channel 2. The Busiest Bride in the World. Adam, in a whirlwind of official functions, gets the full meaning of being married to the president's daughter. He hasn't gained a bride . . . he's gained a globe-trotting dignitary.

THE MOD SQUAD. 7:30 p.m., Channels 4 and 8. The ABC network seems to be going hot and heavy for ghostly chillers, including its regular series. The Squad gets involved in such a story tonight, not really a ghost story, but one eerie enough to produce some similar reactions. Peggy Lipton is the natural choice for the lion's share and Vincent Price, Hollywood's answer to Edgar Allen Poe, is the guest star. He is supposedly dead, and has been for over 20 years. When there are suspicions that he is still alive, Peggy goes to find the truth: Is he really dead?

JULIA. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. There's a great lesson to be learned from this poignant episode, specially for fathers of young boys. Earl Waggerdorn and Corey have school assignments to build water wells. Steve can't be helpful enough to Corey and Earl's father has taken over his project, making his son a silent partner. Both boys appreciate the help despite a deep disappointment. They wanted to do their work themselves.

THE MOVIE OF THE WEEK. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. "Run, Simon, Run." Burt Reynolds was made for strong but sensitive Indian roles like this one. He is a Papago Indian who served a ten-year sentence for killing his brother. Every day has been spent waiting for his release to get vengeance on the real killer, in traditional Indian fashion. But on his release, he finds the people of his reservation subdued by modern reservation life and laws. His passion to bring them back to their pride and determination conflicts with the white Indian agent, a lovely lady he falls for. The late Inger Stevens is featured.

STOREFRONT LAWYERS. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Shadows of Doubt. An accusation from the defendant in a robbery case shakes the storefront office. The accused, when found guilty, demands a motion for mistrial, charging that David Hanson asked $2,500 to arrange a suspended sentence with the district attorney's office.

JOHNNY CASH. 9 p.m., Channel 8. Singers Merle Haggard, Anne Murray and Home and Jethro are the special guests. Anne sings her million-seller Snowbird, Merle sings Sidewalks of Chicago and Johnny sings Put Your Hand in the Hand of Jesus and Twenty-Five Minutes to Go.

FIRST TUESDAY. 9 p.m., Channel 5. Two of the principle features tonight are from opposite sides of the world: Taiwan to the University of Notre Dame. The propaganda battle between Communist China and the Republic of China on Formosa is spotlighted, sometimes looking like a creation of Gilbert and Sullivan were not its history and future consequences so deadly serious. Propaganda efforts across the small channel separating the two nations takes every form from sophisticated leaflet bombing to literally shouting across the ways. Despite the topicality of the college football situation, the Notre Dame story is told in terms of contemporary students rather than athletes. Notre Dame is depicted as another student body recognizing the needs for change in modern society and working toward these ends. The difference is the abhorrence of violence and the determination to "change" with its use, in any form. Father Theodore M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame president, is among the guests.

TO ROME WITH LOVE. 9:30 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. Visitors from back home make some mighty big changes in the lives of the Endicott family. There's a lively widow from Illinois who turns grandpa on, and a former Iowa neighbor has Alison doing the short-berth bit. Alison remembers her neighbor real well, but she never experienced the heady feeling strolling the Iowa cornfields that she feels with him as they lightly trip down the Via Veneto.

Stanfield Raps Auditor's Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said today he has asked all Conservative MPs to launch a Christmas recess assault in their home ridings on the government's bill to restrict the powers of the auditor-general.

He said at a news conference that he does not accept as true a "rumor" that the government will drop the bill.

"If it intends to do so, the government should remove it from the Commons order paper forthwith," he said.

"Its continued presence there is clearly an attempt to intimidate the auditor-general."

He said a government campaign of intimidation against Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson began this year after Mr. Henderson disclosed $40 million in wasteful expenditures.

The Trudeau government had continued its government by rumor campaign by allowing a cabinet leak over last weekend that the auditor-general's bill would quietly be allowed to die."

This was a typical ploy intended to persuade the country to lower its guard.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader, told him Monday the government intends to have the bill debated in the Commons.

He added that he does not know whether the government intends to go as far as a vote on it.

The bill would restrict the authority of the auditor-general to report to Parliament all cases he deems worthy of comment.

The government maintains that Mr. Henderson has been commenting on government policy and not just on the spending of public money.

Mr. Stanfield described the government move as giving blunders privileged status and removing "this embarrassing watchdog's hold on the seat of the government's pants."

He said he would as prime minister repeal the bill if the Liberals forced it through Parliament by using closure.

Canada Completes Pakistan Airlift

DACCA (CP) — Canada completed its relief airlift to cyclone-battered East Pakistan today with all indications showing that supplies are getting to those who need them.

The last of 12 Yukon aircraft employed in the airlift was scheduled to arrive back at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, Ont., tonight.

The Yukons and one Boeing 707, manned by crews from 437 Squadron of Air Transport Command, flew more than 240,000 miles and carried 208 tons of blankets, tents, medical supplies and food.

Lt.-Col. G. W. Webb, military adviser to the airlift, said here Monday that he watched loading of boats and aircraft carrying the relief supplies south to the stricken delta region and examined the Dacca warehouses where goods were initially stored.

"Everything we have brought in has moved to the disaster area," he said.

"There is no evidence that much of the supplies are disappearing en route—the Pakistani army is supervising movement closely."

Until last week, it had appeared that relief supplies being transported to Dacca by dozens of foreign countries faced lengthy delay in local warehouses before moving to the delta region, where an estimated 200,000 persons were killed by a cyclone and tidal wave Nov. 12.

However, by the middle of the week the logjam had broken with British, American, French and German troops assisting in the movement of supplies to the stricken area.

The emergency airlift of Canadian relief supplies is to be followed up later with aid sent by ship.

Mexican President Inaugurated

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Luis Echeverria Alvarez takes over as Mexico's 26th president today in a colorful inauguration ceremony in Mexico City's Chapultepec Park.

Outgoing President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz was to hand the reins of government over to Echeverria with the ceremonial presentation of a green, white and red sash embroidered in gold by artisans of Tlaxcala state.

Echeverria, who won the June 5 election by the landslide always given the candidate of the Institutional Revolutionary party, promised during his campaign to continue the social, agricultural, educational and industrial programs of Diaz Ordaz. He said he would put special emphasis on agrarian reform, expansion of education and creation of 100,000 jobs a year for the booming population.

The Institutional Revolutionary party, or PRI, has been continuously in power 42 years. The constitution prohibits a president succeeding himself, and Echeverria was Diaz Ordaz's interior secretary.

Echeverria is a 48-year-old lawyer and career politician. The son of a government employee and a native of Mexico City, he became a journalist after receiving a master of laws degree from Mexico's National University. He went to work for the PRI at 24.

Mine Report Denied

BONN (AP) — West German officials today dismissed as "complete nonsense" a British newspaper report that the United States wants work started immediately on a string of anti-invasion atomic mines near West Germany's frontier with East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

The officials said U.S. forces in Germany have ground-based nuclear explosives but there are no plans to plant these along the East-West border. They said the explosives are not mines that detonate on contact, but must be set off by remote control.
